MRS. E. W. CONVERSE DIES WITH ESCORT IN FALLS CHURCH CRASH

Capital Society Woman and Kansas City Man Lose Lives.

AUTO LEAVES ROAD IN ROUNDING CURVE

PAIR WAS RETURNING FROM VIRGINIA DANCE

Farmers Nearbly Hear Noise of Car's Impact and Hasten to Aid.

Speeding toward Washington from a dance at a fashionable estate in Virginia, Mrs. Elizabeth Walter Converse, beautiful Capital debutante of a few years ago and prominent in local and New York society, was killed early yesterday morning, with her male companion, David Drage, socially prominent in Kansas City and well known here. Mrs. Converse was 27 years old. Drage was the same age.

The tragedy occurred alongside a cemetery near Falls Church, Va., at 6 o'clock in the morning. The expensive touring car, driven by Mrs. Converse, careened off the road into a ditch, hurtled into a tree, bounded off to strike another tree, and finally smashed into a telephone pole, hurling both occupants into the air.

Mrs. Convers received a fractured skull, a broken right arm, a broken left leg and a crushed chest and shoulder. She was almost instantly killed, it is thought. Her body was removed to Pearson's undertaking parlors in East Falls Church to await an inquest.

Drage Dies in Hospital.

Drage died at Emergency Hospital, where he was rushed after farmers discovered the wreck, havin been attracted to the scene by the noise as the car left the road. The force of the impact was so powerful that the shoes weer torn off the woman's feet. They weer found 100 fet apart.

The telephone pole was broken off at the base and the front of the automobile was smashed in. Mrs. Converse was identified by a driver's license found in her handbag. This license was issued to her mother, Mrs. Emma J. Walter, of 10 Kirge street, Chevy Chase, Md., with whom Mrs. Converse was visiting.

Drage was reportde to be an old friend of the Walter family and was staying at the Walter home as the guest of Beverly Walter, the dead woman's brother.

Another brother of Mrs. Converse, Donald M. Walter, was killed in an automobile accident November 28, 1927, near Rockville.

Made Debut in 1923.

Mrs. Converse was the wife of James Vail Converse, widely known banker and sportsman of New York City. Her first husband was F. Addison Brastow, of 2013 N street northwest, a local advertising man well known in Washington society. Mrs. Converse was married to Brastow in 1923, soon after she made her debut. She was considered Washington's prettiest debutante of that year.

Mrs. Converse was divorced from Mr. Brastow two years ago and married Mr. Converse soon afterward. Mr. Converse is understood to have met the charming young society woman in 1927 at the home of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Gould Shaw. They were married September 18, 1928, in the Says: Since 1492, October 12 has properly been Columbus Day. But only of late it has been generally celebrated as a holiday. Such observance rests on a secure foundation. Measured by its effect on all following history the voyage of Columbus, ending in the discovery of a new hemisphere, was an achievement of the first magnitude. Possibly others preceded him, he was the first who made known the existence of America to European civilization. He is entitled to rank forever as the greatest of all explorers.

But the glory of his exploit, great as it was, becomes almost unimportant when compared with its results. It marked the inception of the modern era. The minds of men were opened to new thoughts. The gold and silver of America gave a new trend to the life of Europe. The arts began to flourish. The people began to assert their rights. More colonies brought more trade. A new age appeared, great in captains, admirals, statesmen, poets and philosophers, and finally new nations dedicated to human freedom arose on this side of the Atlantic. These are partly the reasons why Christopher Columbus is entitled to be honored.

NEARBY MARYLAND CRASHES KILL TWO

FRIEND IN SERIOUS STATE

Two men were killed and one was seriosly injured in auto crashes yesterday near Meadows, Md., and Branchville, Md.

James Tillman, 20 years old, of 510 F street northwest, was fatally injured when the automobile he was driving crashed into a culvert on Edmonston road, near Senator Schall's home.

Autoists found him in the wreck. The Prince Georges County rescue squad brought him to Providence Hospital, where he died. His chest had been crushed.

Frank O. Grimes, 31 years old, of Camp Springs, Md., was fatally injured yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding crashed on the Marlboro pike, near Meadows, Md.

George L. Gray, 43 years old, of Oxon Hill, Md., was seriously injured. Grimes was brought to Casualty Hospital by Prince George's County Policeman Frank Prince. He died soon after admittance.

Police were unable to learn the cause of the accident. Gray could not tell how it occurred. Grimes' chest was crushed. He also had a fractured skull. Gray has lacerations of the face and a possible skull fracture.

The men were found in the wreck and Prince brought them to the hospital.

SPANISH EXILE BACK; 50 HURT IN RIOTING

Thousands Meet Macia as He Reaches Barcelona; Radicals Hunted.

MADRID THWARTS PLOT

Barcelona, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Fifty persons were reported injured at Lerida today in clashes between police and a crowd which attempted to parade in honor of the return of Col. Francisco Macia, Catalonian Nationalis leader, from several years' exile.

Thousands met Col. Macia at the railroad station and extended an enthusiastic welcome to him and his family. After the Macias had gone home, the crowd started marching up the street. Police charged them, and eventually broke up the line. Since none of the injured was taken to a hospital, the authorities believed all their hurts were slight.

Madrid, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The govtrnment of Premier Damaso Berenguer today continued to round up and arrest radical labor agitators and so-called Communists in Madrid, Barcelona, Seville and other places, announcing that it had suppressed an extremist plot for antigovernment strikes and uprisings.

The total number of arrests has been kept secret, but is believed to be several hundred. Semiofficial information yesterday was that 50 radical leaders had been arrested, and that 300 in Barcelonia alone were being sought.

The police dragnet has worked quietly and efficiently without causing disturbances.

BRAZIL DENIES VICTORY TALES OF INSURGENTS

Federals Dispute Claims and Assert Spirit of Revolt Is Waning.

MOVEMENT PLACED IN VARGAS' CONTROL

CITY CALM, ORDERLY; U. S. SHIPS UNHARMED

Government Will Dominate Situation, Says Bahia's President-Elect.

(Associated Press.)

Insurgent headquarters in Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, claimed general advance of revolutionary troops along the border of Sao Paulo and Parana, with victories at Jacarezinho, San Jose da Platina, Punto Ribeira, Ourinhos and Singues.

A government statement listed the encounters at Jacarezinho, Punto Ribeira, and another at Itarare, state of Sao Paulo, as federal victories. The government statement, issued at Rio de Janeiro, also said that rebels attacking Caravellos, small southern Bahia port, had been repulsed and many of their number taken prisoner. The insurgents claimed to have occupied and to be in control of the city.

Insurgent claims of victory in the state of Alagoas also were disputed by the government, which asserted that spirit of the revolutionists was beginning to wane, and that there was no question of Rio's being able eventually to control the situation.

Vargas Takes Control.

Dr. Getulio Vargas, president of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, and defeated candidate for the national presidency, assumed control of the entire insurgent movement and left Porto Alegre for the Sao Paulo front.

Pernambuco, Brazil, Oct. 12 (A.P.). All Brazil northeast of the Sao Francisco River today is in the hands of the revolutionary armies, who, heartened by tremendous popular acclaim, are beginning an offensive into the states of Sergipe and Bahia, still loyal to the federal government in Rio de Janeiro.

The state of Alagoas fell before forces commanded by Capt. Juarez Tavora, aided by enthusiastic volunteers of Pernambuco and Parahyba, much as did Pernambuco just a week ago. Two thousand citizens of the two states enrolled for the movement against Maceio and Ciudad Alagoas, and now will assist in the invasion of the south.

Cheered by Crowds.

Both army and volunteers left here in trucks, multitudes gathering in the streets and cheering them on their way. Food, cigarettes and flowers were showered on the departing forces, who took Maceio with little opposition and organized a revolutionary junta there. Two American ships in the port were not molested.

Porto Alegre, Rio Grande Do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Dr. Getulio Vargas, president of this State and defeathed liberal candidate for the National presidency in the last election, has taken over entire control of the revolutionary movement against the Rio de Janeiro government.

He has delegated the presidency of this State to Osvaldo Aranha, liberal politician, and has left here for the front where he will assume active charge of operations against the State of Sao Paulo.

After having attempted to land troops on the coast of the State of

DIES SUDDENLY

THOMAS H. ROBINSON.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF MARYLAND DIES

Thomas H. Robinson Expires Suddenly at His Home in Belair.

LEADER IN HIS PARTY

Belair, Md., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Thomas H. Robinson, attorney general of Maryland since 1923, died suddenly of a heart attack at 6 o'clock this morning at his home here. He was 70 years old and the Democratic nominee to succeed himself in the November election.

Although Mr. Robinson had not been in the best of health recently, he appeared at his Baltimore office yesterday. He returned home at the usual hour and became ill about 9 o'clock.

He was born in Maryland in 1860 and admitted to the bar in 1883. He was a delegate to four Democratic national conventions and chairman of the State delegation in 1920 and again in 1924. His widow and four children survive.

Under Maryland laws the Democratic State central committee must meet before next Saturday to nominate a candidate to take his place on the State ticket.

One of Mr. Robinson's first official acts was to concur in a ruling of his predecessor, Alexander Armstrong, that the enforcement of the prohibition laws was not incumbent upon the police of Baltimore City. This decision brought him much notoriety.

Thomas H. Robinson, two-time attorney general of Maryland, was a candidate on the Democratic ticket to succeed himself in the election next month.

Mr. Robinson until recently was one of the outstanding figures in the Democratic party in Maryland and was well known to the Democrats of other States through contacts he made at the national conventions of his party. He was chairman of the Maryland delegation to the Democratic national convention in 1920.

Born 70 years ago, Mr. Robinson entered politics early in life and for 40 years continued his interest. He served thre terms in the State snate and in 1923 was elected attorney general of the State. He was reelctd in 9126 and seeking his third term this fall.

Born in Harford County, Md., Mr. Robinson attended the schools there and read la wat the county seat, Belair. He was the attorney in that county for the Pennsylvania Railroad and had a sizable practice when he was elected attorney general.

The death of Mr. Robinson has created a complication for the Democratic party. The vacancy left on their ticket must be filled by the State central committee. Already the names of half-dozen aspirants for the place have been put forward. No action will be taken, however, until the burial of Mr. Robinson on Wednesday.

WHIPPING POST IS SUGGESTION OF WICKERSHAM

DOES NOT TOUCH ON DRY LAW DIRECTLY

Declares There Is Too Much Lawmaking to Make People Good.

PRISON CONDITIONS ARE SCORED BY HIM

Sound Education on Regard Due Law Is Urged as Violence Check.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Flogging as a punishment for racketeers and bandits was suggested here tonight by George W. Wickersham, chairman of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission. It was put forth in a speech read before the convention of the American Prison Association.

Mr. Wickersham, without touching on prohibition directly, declared that there was too much lawmaking in an effort to make people good by that process, but also said that the example of many people in showing contempt for laws with which they do not agree was one reason for the growing disrespect for all law.

Mr. Wickersham's remarks on flogging were made in the coulse of a discussion of the means of preventing crime.

"In this country," he said, "we seek to compel obedience to law by punishment of which, generally speaking, there are three kinds, viz., death, imprisonment, fines. Imprisonment is mitigated by suspended sentence, or probation, and by discharge on paroie after serving only part of the stipulated sentence.

"In England and in Canada, flogging by birch or by 'the cat' also is inflicted. I know of only one State—Delaware—in the United States where the whip is used. A careful inquiry into the results of flogging as a punishment for certain offenses and a prevention of further wrongdoings, may well be made to determine the desirability of employing it in the war against banditry and racketeers.

Sees Advantages as Deterrent.

"As a deterrent to others, flogging would seem a priori to present great advantages, but it would be unsafe to assume that as a fact without inquiring into the subsequent career of the flogged offenders as well as the general effect upon the volume of crimes of the character thus punished."

On the general subject of law enforcement, Mr. Wickersham said in part:

"We boast of the achievements of our civilization. We pride ourselves upon the success of democracy. Yet crime is rampant and every daily newspaper spreads before us tales of increasing lawlessness. Our machinery of justice is overworked. Our prisons are overcrowded with men made desperate by the conditions in which they are compelled to exist.

GANGSTER SHOT

JACK "LEGS" DIAMOND.

GEN. LEE EXTOLLED AT MEMORIAL RITE

STUDENTS LAY WREATH

Stratford-on-Potomac, Va., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Extolling Gen. Robert E. Lee as the practical builder of a new Christian South on the ruins of the old, Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president emeritus of Washington and Lee University, today said there was a pressing need for the idealism of Lee in the life of the Nation.

Dr. Smith's address was delivered from the steps of the ancestral Lee home on the banks of the Potomac before several thousand persons attending exercises commemorating the sixtieth anniversary of the Confederate leader's death.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia; Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, of Greenwich, Conn., president of the Lee Memorial Foundation; Dr. Bolling Lee, of New York, a grandson of Gen. Lee, and State directors of the foundation from many States also spoke briefly.

Gen. Lee was the creative engineer of the new industrial South, Dr. Smith said. "He envisioned the change from the old order and helped prepare the people, becoming president of a great educational institution."

Messages from 26 States were read to the gathering.

Gov. Pollard recalled a prediction of his father that Lee would be honored by the North and South within the governor's life time, and added a prediction of his own that eventually a statue of Gen. Lee would be erected in Washington along with those of the Nation's great.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Boys of the North, 6,200 students at Lane Technical School, Chicago, today paid tribute to the wartime leader of the South on the sixtieth anniversary of the death of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

In historic Lee Chapel this afternoon, L. C. Borland, a graduate of the Lane School and now a student at Washington and Lee University, laid a memorial wreath from the Lane students at the base of Valentine's famous recumbent statue of the Confederate leader.

Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines, president of Washington and Lee, accepted the gift on behalf of the university on whose campus Gen. Lee built

Mystery Fund Sent To Care for Diamond

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Jack Diamond, wounded gangster, had not been at Polyclinic Hospital more than an hour or two today when a messenger brought an envelope to the management of the institution. It contained a note, unsigned, which read: "Please see that Mr. John Diamond receives the best possible attention money can buy."

Accompanying the note was a roll of $3,000 in $100 and $20 bills, dirty and crumpled.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Five bullets from the pistols of unknown assailants today struck down Jack ("Legs") Diamond, suave gangster, racketeer and beer runner who recently gained world-wide notoriety when several European countries refused to permit him in their domains.

The former bodyguard to Arnold Rothstein, slain underworld financier, was taken in a private ambulance from the Hotel Monticello in West Sixty-fourth street, where the shooting occurred, to Polyclinic Hospital, where surgeons were unable to perform a planned operation because of his weakened state. Four bullets had struck him in the chest and sides and one in the scalp and his condition was grave.

Show Girl Is Held.

Miss Marion Roberts, believed to be a show girl, tonight was taken in charge of detectives for questioning in regard to the shooting of Diamond.

The detectives said they found her hiding under some clothing in a closet in the apartment of a girl friend in Eighth avenue.

"Why did this have to happen to me?" she said nervously.

Detectives said she occupied Room 831 in the hotel where the shooting occurred.

The apartment in which the young woman was found is occupied by Miss Agnes O'Loughlin, actress, who recently sued Rudy Vallee for breach of promise. Vallee has denied all her allegations.

The police said Miss Roberts recently told friends she was engaged to Diamond.

Detectives assigned to the case met a baffling wall of mystery similar to that surrounding the killing of Rothstein.

Grins at Police.

Diamond told them he was shot by three or four men who burst into his room and opened fire as he sat partly dressed on the edge of his bed in room 829. He denied he knew the men and when police suggested he knew why he had been shot he

First Finding of Dinosaur Eggs in America Announced

Discovery in Montana Made Known at Princeton; Extinction of Giant Reptiles Now Laid to Raids by Mammals.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The first discovery in America of eggs of the dinosaur, prehistoric animals ranging from the size of tabby cats to 80-foot lengths, was announced tonight at Princeton University.

The eggs were found last summer near Red Lodge, southern Montana, along with discovery of another fossil which suggests an answer to one of the great riddles of evolution, why dinosaurs became extinct after populating possibly the whole earth and seemingly dominating it.

Announcement of finding the eggs was made by Dr. Glenn L. Jepsen, director of the Scott Fund expedition of Princeton University, who unearthed them.

This is the second authenticated find of dinosaur eggs. The first were found in Mongolia by Roy Chapman Andrews, of the American Museum of Natural History. The Mongolian eggs, nearly a foot long, at first were pronounced 10 million years old, an estimate which was raised to 95 million years last winter after scientists had checked the radio activity of the minerals which turned them to stone.

Describing the Montana work, Dr. Jepsen said:

"A number of broken remains of eggs were found, in fragments not more than an inch in diameter. Their age is estimated at millions of years.

"The fragments resemble those found in Mongolia in several particulars, both occurring in closely similar geologic formations. The American ones were found in the upper lance formation which was deposited in upper cretaceous times."

Upper cretaceous is the end of a period which geologists estimate as beginning about 125,000,000 years ago

Girl Saw Tragedy, Dies; Her Death Laid to Shock

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Eighteen-year-old Alice Corff witnessed the death of John S. Zweifel, whose automobile was struck at a grade crossing. That was Saturday.

Today she died. Physicians said the girl was suffering from meninges, an affectation of membrane surrounding the brain, and apparently induced by shock and worry.

Man Held as White House Car Again Figures in Crash

For Second Time in Nine Days Executive Mansion Vehicle and Another Collide; Reckless Driving Is Charged to Gainesville, Va., Man.

For the second time in nine days a White House automobile figured in a collision late Saturday night, when an official car driven by Archie Houch was slightly damaged in an accident with a machine operated by Silas Russell, of Gainesville, Va., on the Bull Run Bridge about 14 miles beyond Fairfax.

The collision occurred while Houch was driving unaccompanied from the camp of President Hoover on the Rapidan River back to the White House. Houch immediately took in custody Russell and turned him over to Fairfax County authorities, who placed against the man charges of reckless driving. He will be arraigned at Fairfax this morning before a justice of the peace.

A week ago Saturday a White House machine, assigned to George Akerson, as secretary to President Hoover, and driven by T. W. Parker, collided on Pennsylvania avenue near Seventeenth street northwest with a machine, with slight injury to two girls in the latter car.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover returned to the White House last night from his mountain lodge in Virginia after an unusually fast run through the heavy Sunday traffic.

Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, who went with the President to the camp, said they found Herbert Hoover, Jr., who is ill with a tubercular infection, "doing very nicely." He is expected to remain at the camp until cold weather forces a change, and then a decision will be made as to where he should be taken.

Mr. Hoover, accompanied in his car by John Agnew, of London; Capt. Boone and Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, returned earlier than usual, arriving just before dusk. Heavy traffic was encountered along most of the 100-mile drive, particularly as they neared the capital, and a different route, leading through Potomac Park, to the White House was taken to avoid the jam.

Leading or Following?

Man is an imitative creature. He follows the actions of another and even shapes his thoughts to a similar pattern. Others follow his example until a circle of uniform action has been completed. This has been well illustrated during the past few months. Persons who have been entirely unaffected by the conditions of the stock market, the drought, or depression in some industries, have adopted the spirit of pessimism, have curtailed buying and have influenced others to do the same . . . It is time to break the vicious circle—to lead in a program of wise expenditure that will react to your immediate benefit and to the advantage of the Nation.

Police shrugged when asked for a motive for the attack, the implication being one guess was as good as another.

While he lay on the operating table Diamond gasped out a request that his wife, who is at the luxurious Diamond summer home at Acra, N. Y., be notified. Police complied.

Running Battle With Law.

The hospital to which he was taken was the one in which Rothstein died after being mortally wounded in November, 1928. Police contended Rothstein was shot during a card game in the Park Central Hotel but were never able to establish their contention or bring the slayer to justice.

Diamond's career has been a long running battle with the law in which he almost always came off victorious. He has been arrested 23 times, five of them in connection with murder charges, but has served only a short reformatory sentence.

Widespread publicity came to him with the recent capture in a Brooklyn flat of one of the most extensive gangland arsenals ever taken. The seizure was made by detectives who trailed a chauffeur of Diamond's to the apartment.

Found Blood-Stained Car.

Four arrests were made and questioning of the prisoners led to the finding of a blood-stained automobile in a Brooklyn garage. The car belonged to Harry Western, owner of a roadhouse in the Catskills, who had disappeared. Later Harry (Skunky) Klein, one of the prisoners, told police he was a $75-a-week beer runner for Diamond and that he had been given $50 by a man named McNamara to drive the Western or to New York and "ditch it" off a dock.

Then it developed that Diamond had gone to Europe for treatment for a mysterious stomach ailment. Police cabled foreign authorities. When his liner reached Britain Diamond did not go ashore but continued to Belgium, whence he was deported to Germany. There he was detained while authorities sought a berth for him on a liner returning to the United States. All the liners reported they were full and he finally was shipped home on a freighter. No attempt was made to arrest him here.

During his detention in Germany he expressed great indignation at reports that his trip was due to his gang's being "fed up" with him.

"Very Sick Boy."

One of the bullets which struck Diamond took a downward course and penetrated the abdomen, a wound similar to that which killed Rothstein. Chief Medical Examiner Norris, who is rarely called except in homicide cases, visite dthe hospital and declared Diamond "a very sick boy."

In the room where the gangster was shot police said they found no sign of disorder and no evidence of gambling or drinking. Nearly every one in the hotel was questioned.

Diamond, growing weaker every minute, was pressed to tell who shot him.

"I was seated on the end of the bed," he said. "I registered at the hotel last night. I was awake this morning and partly dressed. The door was closed, but not locked. Suddenly it opened and there were three or four men in the doorway, and they all fired."

Assailants Were Seen.

"Do you know who shot you?" a police lieutenant asked.

"It came so quick I did not recognize any one," the gangster replied.

Commissioner Mulrooney said he believed Diamond knew the men. He added that a chambermaid saw two of the gunmen run down the stairs after the shooting and he had ordered her held for questioning.

Detectives told a story of the shooting different in some of the details from that related by the wounded racketeer.

Jacob Ginsberg, manager of the hotel, was one of the first to go to Diamond's aid. Ginsberg, the detectives said, lived in rooms 823, 824 and 825 with his family and on Saturday night reserved rooms 828 and 829. This morning, the detectives declared, Diamond left room 831, which was occupied by a show girl, and went to room 829 to take part in a conference with a number of his associates.

He was there a short time when the shots were heard. Diamond was said to have chased his assailants from the room to the elevator, leaving a trail of blood.

The whereabouts of Ginsberg, the hotel manager, was somewhat of a mystery tonight. Police said they had located him "out of town" and he had agreed to return for questioning.

Wife Collapses at News.

Acra, N. Y., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Alice Diamond collapsed today when news of her husband's shooting in New York City was brought to her.

Revived, she exclaimed: "I must go to him quick. He sent for me."

Then she ran out to her garage, climbed into one of the half dozen automobiles there and started for New York.

The Diamond home here is evidence that the racketeer lived in fear of invasion. It is a three-story frame building set well back from the road. On the porch is a large flood light capable of illuminating the road for a quarter of a mile in either direction. Two large police dogs guard the entrance.

Diamond Case Similar To Rothstein Murder

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The shooting of Jack "Legs" Diamond today offers a striking parallel to the slaying of Arnold Rothstein, whose bodyguard Diamond once was. Facts similar in both cases were:

Both shot after conferences with associates in hotel room. Rothstein was summoned to the Park Central Hotel by a telephone call. Diamond went to confer with associates in a room of the Hotel Monticello, where he was wounded, detectives said.

Both refused to name their assailants or say why they were shot.

Both were taken to Polyclinic Hospital.

A chambermaid was held for questioning in each case.

Prince Is Fined $500 For Slapping Policeman

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Prince Karl Odescalchi has ben sentenced to pay a fine equivalent to about $500 for slapping the face and generally assaulting and abusing a police officer who attempted to arrest him for reckless driving.

The judge stressed that the prince previously had been fined for running over and killing a pedestrian and has violated traffic regulations twelve times.

FOREIGN BOND LIST SINKS DURING WEEK

Political Outlook Causes Latin-American Issues to Drop Steadily.

DOMESTIC SECTION OFF

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The bond market suffered a severe setback last week under a storm of liquidation that brought a drastic decline in South American bonds and spread to virtually every section of the list.

Quoted values of Latin American obligations melted away as the Brazilian revolution gained headway and further undermined the confidence of American investors who previously had been disturbed by political and economic developments in other countries. Nearly every day of the week Latin-American issues dropped to new low levels for the year on losses which, in many instances, read like the movement of equity issues.

The perpendicular drops of Brazilian, Colombian, Peruvian, Argentine and other Latin-American obligations were without precedent in recent years. The cumulative effect of the selling was to reduce the quoted value of many issues from ¼ to 1-3. Moody's estimated that the average paper loss on each $1,000 bond of South American dollar bonds during the past decade, most of which developed this week, was $75.

Changes in European List.

The rest of the foreign list reflected the unsettlement to a lesser degree. Largest drops in European bonds were in German obligations. German International 5½s declined about 5 points and the Dawes 7s reached a new low. Toward the end of the week these governments steadied, following confident expressions of Dr. Hjalmer Schacht, former head of the Reichsbank, that Germany will fulfill its obligations.

The liquidation of prime domestic bonds was not so easily explained. In bond circles, it was attributed to several factors. Some called it a technical reaction from the peak levels reached in a laborious but virtually steady climb of several months. In another quarter, dealers were reported to be liquidating their holdings in anticipation of new financing this fall. In addition some selling was prompted by the weakness of the share market forcing speculators to sacrifice investments to protect their marginal accounts.

Speculative Issues Lose.

The averages for 30 domestic corporation bonds showed the sharpness of the setback, resting 1.3 points lower at the end of the week. As usually is the case when a sharp reaction occurs in the stock market, share privilege bonds and speculative issues moved with them, to new 1930 minimums. Second and third grade rails were heavily sold, apparently on adverse earnings reports. The prospect that some railroad mortgage issues may be stricken from the legal list accounted for some of the sharp declines.

Offerings for the week totaled $119,739,000, the largest portion of which was in one issue—the $100,000,000 4 per cent loan of the Dominion of Canada. The issue takes rank as the largest single piece of foreign borrowing consummated in the American market this year, being $1,750,000 larger than the German 5½ per cent loan.

50 INJURED IN RIOT AS MACIA RETURNS

the Catalonian Separatist movement and fertile fitld for radical agitation.

Its leaders are supposed to include several hundred Communists, influential men in the most radical labor groups, extreme Republicans and Catalan Separatist agitators.

The police say that these men went out all over Spain from Barcelona organizing political strikes and proposing still more serious uprisings, by which they hoped to overthrow the government and eventually establish a republic.

Upon learning of this movement the authorities yesterday began to arrest suspects in great numbers. They claim the plot has already been crushed and no longer represents a menace.

Invocation of martial law is not contemplated.

Maj. Ramon Franco, Spain's foremost aviator, who was among those arrested yesterday, continued a prisoner in the military prison of Madrid. Officially he is charged with "breach of military discipline," but it is thought that his recently avowed republican sympathies had much to do with his arrest.

Strikes continued at Seville, Malaga and Vitoria, and smaller ones at other places. A general strike in Barcelona has been threatened tomorrow but is still uncertain.

Hunt Starts as Quartet Robs Pair, Slaying One

St. Genevieve, Mo., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A widespread search was on here today for four Negroes, one a woman, who shot and killed Harry Panchot, 45, and critically wounded Paul Ritter, 38, after robbing them at Little Rock boat landing, about 2 miles north of here early today.

After shooting the men the Negroes robbed them and then threw them into the Mississippi River, throwing rocks at Ritter when he did not sink.

Cure for Tattooing Found by Detective

Lyons, France.—Dr. Locard, the most famous scientific detective in France, has made a hobby for years of tattooing. Contact with criminals from all over the world who have come to his laboratory in Lyons has taught Dr. Locard virtually everything here is to know about various systems and markings of tattooers, if not a little more. For he has been able to announce recently a cure for tattooing, something hitherto unknown.

Well, here is what Dr. Locard says to do: First, apply to the tattooed area a concentrated solution of tannin. Then open each hole made by the tattooer, and rub each tiny wound with a pencil of silver nitrate. The skin will turn black, then powder it again with tannin. Within sixteen or eighteen hours, according to Dr. Locard, the tattoo marks will disappear. Caution must be used in this method, and a doctor's advice is necessary. Not more than two square inches of flesh should be treated at one time.

COOPER NOT TO RUN IN TENNESSEE RACE

Pressure of Business Bars Senate Candidacy as Modificationist.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Col. Wade H. Cooper, prominent Washington banker who was considering entering the Tennessee senatorial race as an independent pledged to prohibition modification, announced yesterday that pressure of business precluded his participation in politics. Although Col. Cooper has been living in this city for the past twenty years he has maintained a residence in Nashville, where he was active in philanthropic and educational movements.

About a week ago he said that changing sentiment in favor of modifying the dry laws had led him to consider running for the Senate in opposition to Representative Cordell Hull (Democrat) and Paul E. Nevin (Republican), both exponents of prohibition.

Needs Two Parties.

In his statement yesterday Col. Cooper declared that the country needed two new parties representing liberal and conservative groups, "as there is really no difference between the Republican and Democratic parties as at present constituted."

His statement follows in full:

"I am most grateful to the people of Tennessee, who have urged me to enter the contest for the United States Senate, but under the circumstances I can not possibly see my way clear to do so, as my entire time is consumed with my own private affairs.

Modification Believed Solution.

"My only purpose in considering the Senate at all would be with the hope of finding a satisfactory solution of the liquor problem and get it out of politics. I think the modification of the Volstead act to allow light wines and beer is the only solution I can see at this time. This would likely enable the Government to collect about $500,000,000 of taxes which is now going to the bootleggers while the Government is expending millions of dollars in an endeavor to enforce the law.

"As soon as I have time I expect to make a few speeches on this subject in Tennessee and other parts of the country. What we need is two new parties—a Liberal and a Conservative party—as there is really no difference between the Republican and Democratic parties as at present constituted. The leaders of these two parties get up a sham battle around election time and that is about all it amounts to."

Two Sisters also Survive.

Besides her mother and brother, Mrs. Converse is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Brown and Mrs. Roland A. Waddill, both of Washington and socially prominent here. Funeral arrangements will be made after the inquest, which will be held today.

Drage is the son of Col. and Mrs. Frank B. Drage, of Kansas City, socially prominent in that city. Col. Drage is an Englishman, having come to this country several years ago.

Drage and Mrs. Converse, at the time of the tragedy, were returning from a raccoon hunt and old fashioned barn dance at "Clovelly," the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill at Warrenton.

State Will Direct School of Radio

South Dakota Will Have Receiving Set in 5,400 Buildings.

Pierre, S. Dak., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Radio education which may set the pace for the Nation is planned for South Dakota's schools by E. C. Giffen, State superintendent of public instruction.

As the first step in a campaign to put a receiving set in each of the State's 5,400 schools, Giffen has induced a radio company to make South Dakota an experimental center for radio education on a hitherto untried scale.

Seeking to expand its educational market, a radio set is being donated for each county superintendent's office and for college teacher training departments. From several stations State school leaders will broadcast messages to county meeting, carrying out Giffen's theory that the lack of adequate teacher supervision is a pressing need.

With this start, the State superintendent will encourage school boards to buy receivers for every school, making possible daily broadcasts of school music, lessons and instructions to teachers.

PICKUPS IN TEXTILE INDUSTRY IS SHOWN

STEEL OUTPUT DECLINES

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A bright spot in a week of confusing and discouraging developments in business and finance has been indication of a brisk acceleration of activity in the textile industry.

This is viewed as significant by the Annalist, which says, "An outstanding characteristic of the 1921 depression was that revival in the textile industries preceded recovery of business in general."

Pessimism, nevertheless, was reported by many observers as having reached the blind depths of 1914 and 1921, when few could foresee the periods of unparalleled prosperity which were in the making. The premature forecasts of recovery so numerous a few months ago were said to be making illusions difficult to dispel. At this time political disturbances abroad, which might be viewed with equanimity in prosperous times, have caused much nervousness.

Steel Output Resume.

Most discouraging of the week's business statistics was the American Iron and Steel Institute's figures as to steel output in September, showing a new low for the year, although July had been widely regarded as the bottom. At the end of the week, however, the United States Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage report showed a drop of 155,866 tons in September, against the much larger drop of 441,851 in August, which provided considerable encouragement. Despite the further reduction in the corporation's backlog of orders, its book at the end of September was slightly larger than on that date three years ago.

Outstanding among the September textile reports is that of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, showing a gain in sales of much greater than the usual seasonal proportions. Corroborative evidence was seen in the statistics on raw silk deliveries to mills for last month, which returned to normal volume, after dropping some 40 per cent below normal early in the summer.

Building Projects Gain.

Bradstreet's reported that building gained over August in September, the first time September has shown an increase over the previous month since 1917. Sales of radio sets and miscellaneous merchandise of that character were reported as in large volume.

Declines in commodity prices, along with unsettlement in the stock market, were aggravating developments, although wheat, after getting close to the September lows, developed a better tone at the end of the week. Cepper held at 10 cents a pound, and as expected, the statistics for September showed an increase of nearly 16,000 tons in stocks on hand. Buying of copper and other nonferrous metals was in fair demand, however. Lead prices were under pressure.

A firmer tone in the New York money market was regarded as indicating increasing commercial demands to finance accelerating activity. The Department of Commerce's figures on bank debits to individual accounts gave the same indication. Freight car loading, as reported for the latest week, again declined, although the drop was slight.

"It is a thoughtful and altogether lovely courtesy that these boys should offer a wreath to the memory of Lee," President Gaines said. "Living in a State remote from Lee's Virginia, in a State which prevailing historical sentiment does not always confirm Lee's political judgments, these young men have evidently paid tribute to Lee the man, and a rare quality of manliness prompted this gift.

"It is our hope that these Chicago boys who have thus manifested a generous interest in Lee may draw from the story of his life some inspiration toward those powers of character which alone can make life worthy."

Man Takes Own Life But Saves His Pets

Detroit, Oct. 12.—Andrew Duczinski and Daniel, his cat, who never were friends, died together in a gas-filled room at Duczinski's home. The man's real pets, Dulcey, a canary, and Jabberwock, a parrot, he placed in their cages outside the door so they could escape both the gas and their natural enemy, the cat.

Duczinski, with the cat curled in his arms, was found in his room by his children, Michael and Jean, who had called to visit him. Outside the door they found Dulcey and Jabberwock, safe from the deadly fumes and the cat that had tried to take their lives on several occasions. A gas jet was open.

HEAVIEST 1930 CURB TURNOVER RECORDED

UTILITY ISSUES HARD HIT

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Wearied by the most tumultuous trading since November, the curb market welcomes the holiday tomorrow. Brokerage circles regarded the movement of prices last Friday as indicating at least a temporary selling climax, although it was pointed out that a reaction from the rally was inevitable.

The heaviest selling of the year came last week, sending hundreds of active shares to new lows for the year or considerably longer. The downward movement, which had been the general trend for a month, was accelerated by the liquidation of stocks in companies having interests in turbulent Brazil, notably American & Foreign Power, Brazilian Traction and Electric Bond & Share. The latter figured in the selling because of its holdings in American & Foreign Power.

Early in the week a comparatively few shares accounted for a large percentage of the daily turnover, but as the decline broadened the entire list was carried sharply lower. Suspension of Prince & Whitely for alleged insolvency and the subsequent liquidation in stocks with which it was associated, especially the firm's Investment Trust, was distinctly unsettled and led to renewed pressure throughout the market.

Probably the largest losses in percentage of quoted values were suffered by the investment company issues. Goldman Sachs Trading, United Founders, Blue Ridge, Shenandoah and Ungerleider were among the weakest shares, although they rebounded substantially from the lows.

In the utilities Electric Bond & Share dropped a dozen points to 53¼ against its November low of 50. Brazilian Light & Traction yielded 8 and Niagara Hudson dipped 2½. Recessions in the group generally ranged from 3 to 10 points.

The pressure against the oils was reflected in a 4-point drop in Standard of Indiana to 41, a new low.

Cities Service sagged to 22¼, also a 1930 minimum, while Vacuum broke 6 to 65½, and Gulf tumbled sharply to around 90.

Industrial specialties in which the market is thin, showed the families' violent moves. Aluminum, Ltd., was off 30 points and Aluminum of America 13.

CLIMAX IS REACHED IN SALES OF STOCKS

LATE REBOUND OCCURS

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—After coasting down hill for a month, the stock market had its long-expected selling climax last week, resulting in a general housecleaning of weakly held stock, and considerably reckless dumping of holdings by investors.

Not until the Standard Statistics weekly price index of 404 stocks had touched the lowest level in three years did the market rebound decisively and bears rush to cover, shattering what Hull, in his exhaustive study, "Industrial Depressions," published nineteen years ago, called "Cyclic Delusion No. 2," namely, "Prices will never rise again."

Past Performances Cited.

Veteran Wall street observers said that the market was merely following the pattern of previous periods of depression, going to extreme depths as stocks are dumped overboard by holders who have lost their sense of value, as marginal accounts are weakened and jettisoned, and bears make use of the general confusion to reap profits.

President Whitney, of the stock exchange, helped to still considerable agitation which arose over short selling. In an address in Chicago he pointed out that reports of bear raiding are usually exaggerated in times of depression, and that bears can influence the market as a whole only when holders of stocks lose their heads. He explained that short selling provides the impelling force of recovery.

Selling Climax on Friday.

The selling climax, coming on Friday, was aggravated by failure of a large commercial house the previous day, although attorneys stated that creditors would probably be paid in full. It gave the market a 6,000,000-share day, the third largest of the year. This climax carried stocks up so swiftly, as shorts suddenly found themselves pinched, that a substantial secondary reaction developed today, although it left price above the bottom levels which represented the turning point.

A combination of factors, such as a slackening of steel mill operations, political unsettlement abroad and fresh declines in the leading commodity markets, aggravated the selling movement in stocks. The money market was firmer, although call loans did not rise above 2 per cent. A firming of money at this time is regarded as a good sign, showing that expanding business and trade is taking up the surplus of credit.

Chinese Mapping Out 56 Rebuilding Plans

Nanking, China, Oct. 12.—Fifty-six national reconstruction schemes have been mapped out at a national conference held in Nanking and presided over by Chang Ching-kiang, who has done much to modernize his province, Chekiang.

Chang warned against "paper construction" and pledged his colleagues to exert their utmost to bring the schemes to fruition, which call for such things as the opening of coal mines and oil fields, the intsallation of a large scale government printing bureau, the improvement of the paper manufacturing industry, the dredging of the Woosung and Yellow Rivers, the installation of interprovincial long-distance telephone systems, development and subsidizing of electrical enterprises and the issuance of an irrigation reconstruction loan.

WICKERSHAM HINTS AT BANDIT FLOGGING

DRY LAW NOT TOUCHED

Outbreaks against these conditions are savagely repressed, yet nothing seems to check the careers of bandits, burglars, racketeers and other enemies of the social order.

"Is there no remedy for this? Is society helpless to compel obedience to its duly enacted laws?"

More Than Legislation Needed.

"Very slowly we are coming to realize that something more than legislative fiat is necessary to make good citizens; that all the threatened punishments legislative imagination can devise will not compel actively rebellious human natures to abide by rules of conduct that run counter to their wishes, their tastes, their needs or their prejudices. Something more is necessary.

"Everywhere throughout our land there are deep stirrings of dissatisfaction with existing conditions; with the laws and their administration, with the prescribed methods of dealing with those found to have violated them. Our prisons for a time keep the comporatively small number of lawbreakers who have not succeeded in wriggling through the nets of justice from pursuing their careers of wrongdoings. But the percentage of recidiviam—so far as we are able to ascertain it from the imperfect statistics available—very strikingly indicates that imprisonment seldom reforms a criminal.

"How could it when men are confined in hopelessly overcrowded prisons, with unsanittary conditions, first offenders being herded indiscriminately with hardened professionals, and all kept in a state of enforced idleness?

Revenge and Reform Mixed.

"Our penal laws and their administration very largely follow traditional lines and are a hopeless mixture of revengeful and reformatory measures, executed in an imperfect, haphazard manner. Vast sums are invested in lands and buildings for prison purposes. Yet seldom are increasing needs met in timely manner."

"Prisons," as Dr. Wines once said, "are dark places. They attract little public attention, unless conditions such as those which recently have disgraced penal institutions in so many of our communities provoke outbreaks, and desperate men, regarding even death as preferable to living hells, invoke riot, fire and murder in the blind fury of their desperation.

"Even then, frightened public sentiment is more anxious to be assured that all danger of attack from infuriated convicts is over than to remedy the cause of the outbreaks. Official investigations too often result merely in whitewashing negligent officials and fail to probe the fundamental causes of the troubles. In every State there should be a careful investigation into the condition and administration of its jails, penitentiaries, prisons and other custodial places, and a candid statement of the facts found.

"When the facts are fully made known we may expect some intelligent remedies. The fundamental question, I take it, is how is society to be best protected against crime? The first practical consideration naturally involves the machinery of prevention.

Too Much Law Brings Contempt.

"There is no doubt that the great volume and constantly widening categories of legislative prohibitions, with attendant penalties for their disregard, tends to create a contempt for law. Yet much of this legislation probably is unescapable.

"What are our schools, public and private, doing today toward forming habits of respect for law in the young committed to their charge? The fundamental responsibility for the existing disrespect for the law rests on parents and teachers. The example of contemptuous disregard of any law by the educated well-to-do part of the community has a disastrous effect upon those who attempt to profit by violation of laws enacted for the protection of life and property. Men lose respect for any particular law when they see other laws openly flouted by men occupying honored places in society.

"It was well also that public sentiment should be aroused to prevent unnecessary lawmaking. Too few of our best citizens interest themselves in what the legislature is doing while it is doing it. Too little attention is paid to the designs and the activities of organized groups engaged in promoting legislation which from their honest viewpoint may have a worthy purpose, but which may also unwarrantably intrude into other fields of legitimate activity. Greater attention to the making of law is a basic requirement in the problem of improving our social state.

Adequate Police Forces Necessary.

"The next important step in prevention is the establishment and maintenance of adequate police forces, honestly administered without interference by corrupt political methods. Large as is the sum expended on police, it may be doubted whether there is an adequate and properly trained force in any city of the Union.

"Nowhere do the police forces appear to have developed methods of defense equal in intelligence and method to those of the aggressors. Nowhere apparently—not even in Chicago—has an enlightened and imperative public sentiment demanded that the police forces be organized, given adequate appropriations and held strictly accountable for the protection of public order. Much modern crime is simply warfare on society. Like the successful conduct of other kinds of war, the interests attacked must be organized and equipped to take the offensive against the enemy and to defeat the attacking forces by employing more efficient methods than the latter possess.

"Too large a number of persons accused of crime escape conviction by reasons of delays and technicalities; the opportunities to escape punishment for those who can afford to employ unscrupulous criminal lawyers are disgracefully numerous. There can be little doubt that if 95 per cent of all criminals were captured and punished within, say, three months after committing the crime, there would be a great diminution in the volume of crime.

Policy of Punishment.

"But when, after all, a man has been convicted and becomes amenable to the law, the vital question is, What shall be done with him? Is he to be punished as an example for the deterrence of others, or as a warning to himself? Is society to wreak vengeance upon him? Is the State to be charged with his maintenance throughout the remainder of his life? Is he to be treated as a vicious outlaw, or be made one? Is his mental condition to be taken into consideration? Is his reformation and restoration to society as a normal self-controlling, self-respecting member to be the objective of post-conviction treatment, or is he to be punished and thrown aside without regard to his future? These are the great problems of that part of social science we call penology.

"There are certain conclusions that would seem to be beyond controversy. Among them are (1) that our prisons and other institutions where men and women are restrained of their liberty, as a punishment for crime, should furnish decent sanitary conditions for their inmates; (2) that there should be adequate protection of individuals from contamination by direct contact with the depraved, and (3) that occupation should be furnished to all, as idleness is the prolific mother of evil.

"It is a travesty on justice that the State should subject an offender against its laws to treatment which not only does not afford encouragement to reformation, but almost certainly subjects him to such contamination as to complete his moral downfall beyond remedy."

$125,000,000 CREDIT GAINED BY GERMANY

International Bankers Are to Discount Six Months' Treasury Bills.

RENEWAL OPTION GIVEN

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., announced today that a group of international bankers had put a credit of $125,000,000 at the disposal of the German government, subject to action by the German Reichstag authorizing the credit and providing a method of repayment.

The announcement said a syndicate of banks had been formed by the Reichsbank in Germany to participate in the credit, while in the United States a syndicate has been formed by Lee, Higginson & Co. in which certain foreign participants also will be included.

The credit, it was said, will take the form of German government six-months treasury bills. The various syndicates have agreed to discount these bills in the amount of $125,000,000, and have granted the German government the option to renew the paper three times.

The American institutions which are participating in this credit are: Lee, Higginson & Co., the Chase National Bank of the City of New York, Bankers Trust Co., International Acceptance Bank, Inc., Continental-Illinois Bank & Trust Co., Chatham-Phenix National Bank & Trust Co., the New York Trust Co., Irving Trust Co., the Marine Trust Co. of Buffalo, the Bank of America N. A., Bank of Italy National Trust & Savings Association, the First National Bank of Boston, Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., the Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York, First National Bank of Chicago, the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, Central Trust Co. of Illinois, J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, Foreman State National Bank, Chicago; First National Bank of St. Louis, Central United National Bank, Cleveland; Anglo & London Paris National Bank.

In Canada the Bank of Montreal of Montreal will participate.

Insanity Plea Made Too Late by Burglar

Visalia, Calif., Oct. 12.—Although he moaned and acted in a peculiar manner, declaring he had at one time been confined in a hospital because of insanity, Edward Cookson, 40, was taken to San Quentin Prison to start serving a sentence on a burglary charge. Crookson started his unusual behavior when his plea for probation was denied, just as Judge J. S. Clark started to sentence him.

Apparently in good condition, mentally and physically, until he learned he would not receive probation, he told Probation Officer Charles Poole that he had been confined to a hospital because of insanity while in the United States Navy and the Canadian army, and said his brother in England was in an asylum.

ROBBERY OF $1,000 IN GEMS REPORTED

Chevy Chsae Stock Broker's Guest Also Misses Suitcase.

THIEF CLIMBER PORCH

Thieves stole more than $1,000 in jewelry from the home of Charles C. Carroll, prominent District stock broker, at 1 Quincy street, Chevy Chase, Md., Saturday night, police were informed yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll discovered the robbery early yesterday when a guest of the couple missed a suitcase, containing wearing apparel. Miss Helen Mommomier, of Baltimore, the guest, looked for her suitcase and it was missing.

The Carrolls and their guest had been to a show in the city Saturday night. When they returned, Mrs. Carroll noticed heavy footprints on the polished floors. She did no thecome suspicious until Miss Mominger discovered her loss.

They looked for several articles of jewelry they had placed in a bureau drawer. The trinkets, composed of a bracelet, rings and brooches, had been stolen. One hundred shares of stock also were part of the loot.

Montgomery County Policeman James E. Shoemaker investigated and found that the thief had entered the place by climbing a front porch and entering through an unlocked window.

EGGS OF DINOSAUR FOUND IN MONTANA

and lasting about 50,000,000 years. Thus the Montana eggs might be about 75,000,000 years old.

The suggestion of the dinosaurs' fate came from finding near the eggs a small tooth of an apparently contemporary animal, a mammal possibly of the possum family. The early mammals, although small, had better brains than the dinosaurs, which were reptiles despite their legs, various horns, armor plate, claws and teeth.

This competition from some higher form of intelligence has been a favorite theory to account for extinction of dinosaurs, but mammals have been largely left out of the picture because evidence of their beginnings is found mostly in a later age.

Virginia Women Are Hurt in Fight

One, With Man, Is Chargde With Assault After New York Row.

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Margery Coffman, 24-year-old divorcee of Harrisonburg, Va., and Arthur Gross, 31, were held in $1,000 bail each for the grand jury in West Side Court today on charges of fellonious assault. Their arrest followed an early morning fight in an apartment in which Mrs. Coffman, Gross and Mrs. Virginia Taylor, also of Harrisonburg, were injured.

Testimony at the hearing indicated the cause of the fight was gross' alleged refusal to leave the women's apartment after he had taken them home from a dinner party.

Several stitches were taken in Mrs. Coffman's scalp and a cut over her left eye was sewed up by an ambulance surgeon. Two stitches were taken in a wound in Gross' chest where he said Mrs. Coffman had stabbed him. Mrs. Taylor suffered a scalp wound.

METHODIST CHARITY BOARD TO BE NAMED

OFFICIALS WILL ATTEND

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Election of a commission on benevolences will be among the matters of business to be transacted by the Virginia Methodist Conference to be convened here by Bishop W. B. Beauchamp Wednesday.

The commission is to work in cooperation with the general commission on benevolence created by the last general conference to supervise the financial interests of the church. Dr. W. F. Quillian, general secretary of the board of Christian education, is secretary of the new commission and will represent the organization as well as the board of education at the conference.

The Board of Christian Education, also created by the 1930 general conference, was a merger of the old boards of education, Epworth League and Sunday school. Dr. Quillian will explain the organization and purpose of the new board, which has general headquarters in Nashville. Nashville officials are to cooperate with the annual conference in setting up conference boards of Christian Education.

Board to Be Elected.

The Virginia Conference Board will be elected at this session, and the first executive secretary will be elected to take the place of the three former secretaries of education, Epworth League and Sunday school.

Dr. T. D. Ellis, general secretary of the board of church extension, with headquarters at Louisville, Ky., will visit the conference in behalf of the interests of that board.

Dr. W. G. Gam, general secretary of the board of missions, Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. E. H. Rawlings, secretary of education and promotion of the same board, will speak to the conference in regard to the work of the board of missions.

Dr. Hillman to Attend.

The board of lay activities, located at Nashville, under the general leadership of G. L. Morelock, will be represented at the conference by Dr. J. N. Hillman, member of the board and president of Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va.

Fred T. Barnett, associated secretary of the hospital board, Atlanta, will visit the conference in behalf of the hospital interests of the church.

Two representatives from the Methodist Publishing House will attend the conference during the special session commemorating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the publishing concern. Dr. A. F. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, published at Nashville, represents business interests of the organization, and the Rev. G. T. Rowe, of Durham, N. C., will be the anniversary speaker.

GIRLS' DORMITORY CORNER STONE LAID

Edwin Gould Is Principal in Ceremony at Baptist Home for Children.

OTHER NOTABLES SPEAK

Edwin Gould, of the Edwin Gould Foundation of New York, laid the corner stone of the girls' dormitory at the new Baptist Home for Children in Bethesda, Md., yesterday afternoon before a crowd of more than 500 persons.

The new building, to be known as Gould Hall, is one of a group to be erected at a cost of $90,000. When completed the new structures will have accommodations for about 60 dependent children, who will be placed under the care of Miss Mary Talmadge, superintendent of the home.

Mr. Gould studied the site on which the home now stands for two years, and expressed his pleasure at the location in Bethesda. He came from New York yesterday to attend the exercises held in his honor.

Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District, addressed the assemblage on behalf of the District.

Among other notables who spoke were Representative Grant M. Hudson, of Michigan; Stedman Prescott, attorney, of Rockville, Md., and E. Hilton Jackson, chairman of the board of trustees of the Baptist Home.

Dr. John A. Biggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, and Dr. O. O. Dietz, of Brookland Baptist Church, conducted the devotional exercises.

United Daughters 1812 In West Virginia Elect

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 12.—Mrs. William H. Vaught, of Point Pleasant, W. Va., former State regent of the West Virginia D. A. R., was elected a vice president of the United Daughters of 1812 at the annual meeting of the State Daughters of 1812 in Point Pleasant the past week.

Mrs. D. W. Snyder, of Huntington, formerly of this city, presided at the sessions. She is now serving the second of her two-year term as president of the State organization. The only change made in the official staff was the election of Mrs. Guy Hetzel, of Wheeling, to the office of recording secretary to succeed Mrs. W. H. Conaway, Point Pleasant. Two new officers were created—curator, to which Mrs. James H. Trotter, Morgantown, was elected, and librarian, to which Mrs. Samuel J. Christian, Point Pleasant, was named.

$100,000 Estate Left By Man in Winchester

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 12.—Luther Brill, who started life with little or nothing, left an estate valued in excess of $100,000 when he died recently, according to a partial estimate of his estate, made in connection with the filing of his will for probate in circuit court yesterday. He was for many years employed by the late Thomas Cover, sr., in the tanning business, and later engaged in flour and feed milling and general merchandising.

His widow, Mrs. Annie Pifer Brill, receives all his personal property, including notes, bonds and money. His real estate is to be divided into six parts and distributed equally among four brothers, one sister and heirs of a deceased brother.

TAX SLASH SOUGHT AS DROUGHT RELIEF

MAY CUT SCHOOL TERMS

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 12.—With the great drought unbroken in a large section of Rockingham County by the few September rains, a committee of 50 Rockingham farmers, representing each of the five magisterial districts, will appear before the board of supervisors tomorrow and ask for a reduction in county taxes like that given in Augusta County.

The tax reduction petition will be formulated tomorrow morning when committees of nine taxpayers from each of the five districts will meet and decide upon the size of the cut to be laid later in the day before the supervisors. It was stated today that a request also will be made for a reduction in the county school term in order to reduce the county expenses next year.

The drought's blight in Rockingham County is said to be more serious today than it was last summer. The few rains in September did not furnish enough moisture for fall grazing and forage crops. Pasture fields in the county, with the exception of the Broadway Timberville section, are so badly burned that the ground is almost bare. Reports are reaching Harrisonburg that live stock is now beginning to suffer for food on many farms where money is short. Streams which have never been known to go dry are carrynig no water to farms, and many wells are beginning to go dry. It is estimated that 500 farmers are hauling water to their farms now.

The last rainfall of a day's duration in Rockingham was on June 10. There have been showers since then, and the baked ground quickly absorbed this water. The expected rainfall the latter part of September did not materialize.

Sales of Tobacco Considered Good

Farmers, Near Petersburg, Said to Be Behind in Their Curing.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 12.—Bright tobacco sales on the Petersburg market in the first two weeks of the current season have aggregated 102,230 pounds, which sold for a total of $11,318.46, according to figures announced by the Petersburg Tobacco Board of Trade. The price average for the combined sales in the two-week period has been $11.07 per hundred pounds.

In view of the unusual conditions brought about by the drought and the added fact that farmers in the tobacco production areas which market in Petersburg are considerably behind in their curing, the poundage of the leaf marketed here within two weeks is considered good. The local market has not yet seen any appreciable quantity of bright leaf of good grades. Offerings have consisted almost entirely of first pullings.

A marked increase in deliveries the past week, as compared with the preceding week, shows that the market is nearing a point where large offerings can be expected as well as tobacco of the better grades. In its opening week the market handled 30,202 pounds of the leaf, which sold for $2,036.59 at a price average of $10.05 per hundred pounds. Last week sales totaled 72,028 pounds with an average of $11.50 per hundred pounds.

FALLS CHURCH TOWN COUNCIL WILL MEET

Important Matters Are to Be Discussed in Fairfax County Tonight.

DRAMATIC CLUB FORMS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The October meeting of the Falls Church town council will be held this evening in the town hall on Washington street. The members will select one of the forms submitted by the State contracting for he maintenance of the Lee highway through the town. Mayor Leonard P. Daniel states that he will recommend the State maintenance.

The gas company which is laying mains through the town has asked that the houses be numbered so that they may be better identified. Mayor Daniel has drawn a plan which will be submitted tonight to the council. The numbering of the houses will remove one of the drawbacks for house-to-house delivery of mail.

Another important question will be brought up by the water committee of the Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department, which is interested in having the water mains of Arlington County extended to the Fairfax County portion of the town. This committee has issued circulars which have been distributed among the residents urging them to be present at tonight's meeting to assist them in their campaign. They state that i is inended to bring to the attention of the council the advisability, necessity and desirability of instituting immediate plans that will give Falls Church a safe supply of water.

The regular meeting of the Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department will be held this evening in the engine house. Immediately following the discussion of the regular business the members will adjourn to the town hall to all in the fight to bring water to the Fairfax portion of the town.

The pupils of the Franklin-Sherman High School at McLean have organized a dramatic club under the direction of Principal Gordon E. Smith. Emma Bryan was elected president and Katherine Cunningham, secretary-treasurer. Members of the program committee include Ruby Herring, Jane Smoot, James Megarity and Hayde Davis; property committee, Virginia Blue, Louisa Arnold, Jane Smoot, Edith Brumback, Melvin Thompson, Norman Magarity and George Hillman; costume committee, Katherine Cunningham, Eloise Laidley and Albert Follin; make-up committee, Katherine Smith, Helen Corner, Mary Kline, Gladys Able, Frances Bell and Narcissa Jenkins; stage committee, Janice Jarrett, Walter Kadel and Hayden Davis; publicity and tickets committee, Emma Bryan, Katherine Lockwood, Mildred Moore and Westley Dodge. The association will give a program each week during the activities period, from 11 until 11:30 o'clock in the morning.

A Sacred Heart League has been organized in the St. John's Catholic Church at West Falls Church by Miss Estelle Rankin, of Richmond, Va. Mrs. Dan Brown has been elected president; Mrs. Eugene Shreve, vice president; Miss Betty Brown, corresponding secretary; Miss Ann Crimmins, recording secretary, and Miss Charlotte Worthington, treasurer. The league will inaugurate monthly devotional services at the St. John's Church.

The Clifton Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at Clifton Station, will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow evening in the Masonic Hall at Clifton.

The McLean Community and Garden Association will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon in the library. Mrs. J. H. Walton will talk on the Cherrydale library and Mrs. Simpson, president of the Arlington County League of Women Voters, will address the meeting on the importance of a library to the community.

The Women's Missionary and Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church at Lewinsville will hold their annual election of officers tomorrow evening in Dunham Hall at Lewinsville.

The Young Peoples Missionary Society will hold its annual open meeting this evening in the Southern Methodist Church at Andrew Chapel. The Rev. M. H. Cave of the Clarendon Methodist Church will conduct the Bible lesson. Instrumental music will be furnished by members of the Rev. Cave's congregation.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the town of Falls Church will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon in the auditorium of the Madison School at 2 o'clock. Mrs. O. B. Livingston, president, asks that there be a full attendance at the first business meeting of the school year, as plans will be made for a membership drive and assistants will be named for the chairmen of the standing committees.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Arnon Methodist Church at Forestville will hold its meeting tomorrow evening in the church. A nominating committee will be selected.

THE NEW FORD

BEAUTY COMFORT SAFETY
SPEED POWER ECONOMY
LONG LIFE *RELIABILITY

Ford

* Of all the features of the new Ford there is none more important than reliability. It is a reflection of the substantial worth of the car.

Evidence of the high quality built into the Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all — an unusually large number. From the engine to the road, the entire drive of the new Ford on all forward speeds is wholly on ball and roller bearings.

In addition to smoother operation, this saves gasoline, gives the car more speed and power, decreases noise and increases the durability and efficiency of every moving part.

Another important factor in good performance is the care with which the car is made. The aluminum pistons are an interesting example of precision manufacture.

Though weighing more than a pound each, they are made so accurately that they do not vary more than two grams in weight. In size they are held true to within one one-thousandth of an inch. The wrist-pin holes in the pistons are diamond bored to within a limit of three ten-thousandths of an inch. In each motor, complete piston and connecting-rod assemblies are not permitted to vary from each other by more than 3½ grams.

Throughout the car you find many other instances of this same accuracy in the manufacture and assembly of vital mechanical parts. Combined with simplicity of design and high quality of materials, it is the reason for the economy and long life of the car and the satisfactory service it is giving millions of owners the world over.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. You will know then that it brings you everything you want or need in an automobile at an unusually low price.

Note These Low Prices

There is a Ford car for every need at an unusually low price. Appointments and upholstery are in keeping with its mechanical excellence. You may choose from a variety of body colors.

ADVANCES CLAIMED BY BRAZIL REBELS

Revolutionist Armies in South Said to Hold Sao Paulo Towns.

MAJOR FIGHT IS AWAITED

Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The southern revolutionary army claimed today to have advanced over a wide front along the frontier of Sao Paulo and Parana, with their vanguard in some places in possession of several Sao Paulo towns.

In several instances there have been skirmishes between the rebel advance guard and the Sao Paulistas, but official announcements here say the federal forces have fled. As a consequence they have avoided the major battle which the insurgents had expected in the vicinity of Castro, and which now is expected to occur nearer Sao Paulo frontier, or within that great coffee-growing state.

Radio dispatches from Bello Horizonte, capital of the state of Minas Geraes, assert troops of that state are continuing an "impetuous" advance into the state of Rio de Janeiro. Garrisons of federal police which they have encountered are said to have mutinied and disbanded, quitting their defense of the federal government. Twenty thousand Minas Geraes troops were said to be engaged in the movement from that state against Rio de Janeiro.

Bello Horizonte advices stated a detachment from northeastern Minas Geraes had cut into the state of Bahia, above Espirito Santo, and had taken the small port of Caravellos.

Vessels Ordered to Capital.

A radio message from Rio de Janeiro, intercepted by rebel stations here, contained orders to all naval vessels, some of which are stationed outside Florianopolis, or Desterro, to proceed with all speed to the Federal Capital. Meanwhile rebel troops advancing down the coast of Santa Catharina after their victory at Joinville, occupied Blumeneau, a few miles north of Florianopolis. One hundred twenty-five additional prisoners have been taken at Joinville with the surrender of a remaining federal contingent which had held out there.

Troops under Gen. Miguel Costa, of the Rio Grande do Sul army, have occupied both Ponte Ribeira and Ourinho, in the State of Sao Paulo, their leader notified insurgent headquarters here. The way, he said, was opened for capture of Itarare, important railway point on the line from Castro, directly into the City of Sao Paulo. Singues, also, has been taken by the insurgents.

A northern section of Gen. Costa's army reported skirmishes at both Jacareisinho and San Jose da Platina, in northeastern Parana, with forces of the Sao Paulo defending army, but in both cases, it was asserted, the Sao Paulistas fled. Other forces headed by the deputy, Ataliviva Leonel, have entered Sao Paulo.

New State Claimed by Rebels.

The insurgent headquarters claimed also today that the State of Amazonas, which hitherto has been loyal to the federal government, was "convulsed" with revolutionary agitation and it was expected the governor there would be deposed. Mattos Peixotos, governor of Para, was said to have been taken prisoner with a considerable amount of money on his person.

An intercepted radio message from Rio de Janeiro asserted the government was exercising a rigorous censorship on all forms of outgoing communication services to prevent newspaper correspondents from advising their connections of the victorious advance of the rebel armies.

Textile Union Official Delays Danville Return

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 12.—Announcement was made today at union headquarters that Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the textile workers' union, will not return to Danville before next Saturday. He is to stay in Boston until the American Federation of Labor convention adjourns. His absence, it was said, would not stop the issuance of the union's proposed statement, which is said to be an appeal to Congress to investigate the strike, probably Wednesday morning.

The picket lines remained well organized about the mills today, but the situation was quiet. Paul Aymon, union organizer, addressed a mass meeting of workers this afternoon. He reports 25 new members of the union during the past week.

Condition of Two Hurt In Movie Blast Critical

Flagstaff, Ariz., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Two of fifteen persons seriously injured by a premature charge of black powder and dynamite during the filming of a motion picture here yesterday were in a critical condition today. The other thirteen victims were recovering in Flagstaff and Tuba City hospitals.

Twenty-five others were slightly injured, but were treated at the scene by physicians.

PERNAMBUCO THRONGS CHEER REBELS, OPENING CAMPAIGN

Santa Catharina, Gen. Nepomuceno da Costa, commanding federal activities South of Rio de Janeiro, left aboard one of the warships in this vicinity for Santos, port of the city of Sao Paulo.

The president of the State of Minas Geraes today sent a telegram to insurgent authorities here explaining activities of troops of his State North of Rio de Janeiro. He said that the situation was "magnificent" and that Caravellos, Southern Bahia port, and the Northern part of the State of Espirito Santo had been occupied by insurgent forces.

The telegram added that another force was preparing an offensive against Victoria, capital of Espirito Santo. Several interior points in Espirito Santo and northern Rio de Janeiro have been occupied by the insurgents, who are outside of Ciudad Campos, important northern Rio de Janeiro city of 175,000 population.

Rebel Successes Discounted.

Near Ciudad Campos the revolutionary army has taken the hydro-electric works on Pombos Island in the River Parahyba. The works supplies power to a considerable part of northern Rio de Janeiro.

Te rebels, also, he said, have established garirsons on the frontier of the State of Goyaz, interior region which has remained loyal to the government.

Pernambuco, after a week of revolutionary rule, is calm and the people and minor officials of the old regime are returning to their occupations. The provisional government which has been organized is keeping several of the old officers in their posts. A former subinspector of customs has assumed direction of the customs offices.

Ships and mail planes from the south are forbidden to enter Pernambuco by the federal government at Rio de Janeiro, although the revolutionary government guarantees nonmolestation of foreign ships calling here. The new government is determining the validity of the debts left by the old government, and is resuming payment of employes and teachers.

Advices reaching here from the State of Ceara say the governor or president, so-called, has been made prisoner. No details were learned.

Rebel Victories Discounted.

Capt. Juarez Tavora, commanding the Army of the North, has charged his troops to avoid anything in the nature of reprisals in retaliation for alleged wrongs on the Washington Luis regime.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A government spokesman today discounted reports of revolutionary activity and successes which are emanating from Porto Alegre and border points of the state of Rio Grande do Sul.

He said that, for instance, statements from Rio Grande do Sul that 8,000 revolutionary troops had reached the Sao Paulo frontier and that 5,000 had reached Parana during the past few days were declared untrue by military authorities. These authorities said it would take 60 days for the government, in control of all transportation, to place 20,000 men in this area.

Government Held Secure.

Pedro Lago, president-elect of the state of Bahia, in the northern part of the republic, told the Associated Press there was no question of the power of the government to dominate the present unsettled situation. The president-elect, who is a strong government supporter, said:

"What is occurring in Brazil is not revolutionary, but is an act of disrespect and rebellion of two states, conducted by men who have not explained the motives of their proceeding.

"In aid of this movement there have been some disorders in other parts of the country, but the constitutional power is assured excepting in some places in Minas Geraes, Parana, Pernambuco and in practically all of Rio Grande do Sul."

Lagos denied that Alagoas was in the power of the revolutionists. He is leaving shortly for Bahia, which, he said, was entirely loyal to the administration.

Naval Strength Marshalled.

Bahia, Brazil, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Four warships have been assembled in this port by the federals for naval operations against the rebels in the north.

The cruiser Rio Grande do Sul and the destroyer Belmonte arrived today with the transport Commandante Capella, which brought reinforcements for Gen. Santa Cruz, federal army commander.

These vessels, with the auxiliary cruiser Commandante Alvim, which left Rio de Janeiro yesterday, will act as the northern fleet of the federals.

The commander of the Sixth military region, in Bahia, Col. Ataliba Osorio, today cabled to the minister of war that he could rely implicitly on the loyalty of the troops in the district. He reported that the entire state was calm and his soldiers able to handle any emergency.

VICTORIES IN BATTLE ARE FEDERAL CLAIM

2,000 Brazilian Rebels in State of Sao Paulo Are Routed, Is Assertion.

MORALE DECLINE SEEN

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A government announcement today said that federal troops had defeated 2,000 rebels at Punto Ribeira and Itarare, in the State of Sao Paulo, near the Parana frontier.

The statement also asserted that a federal force of 2,000 volunteers had attacked insurgent forces at Jacarezinho, in northern Parana, and, defeating them, had continued their advance into Parana toward Colonia Mineira.

In the State of Goyaz, the announcement said, military police defeated a rebel column raised by Pedro Ludovici, taking him and 70 followers prisoners and putting 200 others to flight.

Caravellas, in southern Bahia, which rebel forces in broadcasts from Porto Alegre claimed to have taken, remained in federal hands, the statement said, after military police defending that port had beaten back an attack of insurgents from Minas Geraes. Three leaders and many of the ranks were captured in the encounter.

Persons arriving in Rio de Janeiro from Bello Horizonte, capital of Minas Geraes, were quoted as saying that a discouraged spirit had begun to prevail in that state because of the apathy of the general public toward events. Lacking support, it was claimed, fighting spirit of the revolutionary forces has dropped perceptibly.

The minister of justice announced that the situation was calm in the federal capital and the State of Sao Paulo, that the rebels were beaten in the State of Parana, and that public enthusiasm for the revolution was waning in Minas Geraes.

Dispatches emanating from insurgent quarters at Porto Alegre said the encounters at Jacarezinho, Ribeira and Caravellos were all rebel victories. Rebel dispatches made no mention of a battle at Itarare, merely saying that capture of that important railway town was expected soon.

Woman Is Seeking To Identify Body

Believes Man Mistakenly Buried as R. C. Marcey May Be Brother.

Believing that he might be her long missing brother, Mrs. T. W. Airhart, of Baton Rouge, La., yesterday asked police for a description of the unidentified man who was buried here several weks ago as Robert C. Marcey, and later disinterred when Marcey returned to his Lyonhurst, Va., home.

Since disinterment the body has been held at the Morgue awaiting identification. Police forwarded the requested information to Mrs. Airhart, but did not expect identification to result, as certain body marks given by the woman did not tally with the corpse.

Marcey, a World War veteran, left Washington some months ago in search of employment. The body of a man killed about six weeks ago in an automobile accident in Maryland was identified as his, and was buried with full military honors in Arlington Cemetery. When Marcey showed up very much alive, the body was disinterred and taken to the Morgue.

Brazilian Rebel Chief Tells Aims of Revolt

By CAPT. JUAREZ TAVORA
(Commanding Northern Revolutionary Army).

Pernambuco, Brazil, Oct. 12 (A.P.). The revolution is not mutinous in character, but is supported by all classes, including rich farm owners, manufacturers, the middle classes and workingmen. All Brazil northeast of the Sao Francisco River is in our hands.

We are pleased to inform all nations, through the Associated Press, of the constructive purpose of the revolution, which hopes to restore morality of administration and to reestablish Brazilian credit abroad, by not abusing loans and practice of severe internal economy.

It is entirely false that the movement has any connection with bolshevic politics. It is important to note that the red badges worn everywhere are the badges of the old distinctive Liberal party, containing an enormous conservative strength.

TARIFF FLEXIBILITY.

Operation of the flexible tariff has not been entirely satisfactory in the past because of the delay in making new rates effective. American producers are frequenly confronted with a new source of unfair competition resulting from discovery of new raw materials, improved processes or inventions abroad. Sometimes industries are ruined before the ponderous machinery of the Tariff Commission can grind out a recommendation to the President for a new rate. In other cases the public must continue to pay exorbitant prices for a commodity when changes in conditions have greatly reduced the cost of production in America.

It is welcome news, therefore, that the new Tariff Commission has evolved a plan for speeding up its investigations. Under the old plan of procedure the commission put its experts to work on every application for a revision of rates. These experts usually spent a year or more gathering data on which the commission could base its recommendation to the President. When their work was complete a public hearing was held, and the commission decided whether or not the request was justified. Under this system the average investigation required two and a half years.

The new plan is to hold public hearings as soon as possible after an application is filed, allowing time for adequate public notice. Applicants will be required to prove that their requests for revision of rates are justified, and the commission will sit in judgment on each case as does a court. Much of the work heretofore done by investigators for the commission can be eliminated in this way and the experts will have less trouble in checking up cost of production, competitive conditions and other elements that determine what a tariff rate should be. Under this arrangement it is expected that an investigation can be concluded within a few months.

Opponents of the flexible provision take delight in describing its complicated machinery and its slow response to the needs of an ever changing industrial world. If the Tariff Commission can eliminate this delay, it will not only take the wind out of the sails of its critics, but will provide more effective protection to American producers and consumers than they have ever enjoyed before.

GLOATING OVER ADVERSITY.

One asset with which the Democrats are blessed in the present campaign is the services of its defeated presidential candidates. The titular head of the Republican party is the President, but propriety forbids him to take any direct part in the campaign. Former President Coolidge is also holding himself aloof from the thick of the fray. But there is no such restraint upon Democrats who have aspired to the Presidency and lost. John W. Davis, candidate of 1924, regaled a radio audience Thursday night with delectable bits of irony at the expense of the Republican party. Al Smith is also to be given a chance to point out to the people the error of their ways in 1928.

Mr. Davis was at his best in pointing out the fallibility of Republicanism. He professed to see "baleful shadows cast by false predictions and unfulfilled promises" across the Republican pathway. The gravamen of his argument was that the Grand Old Party preached prosperity in 1928 and that in spite of its hopes hard times have come upon the country. "The question is," he said, "not how far the Republican party is responsible for the coming of hard times, but whether they dealt fairly with the people in assuring them nothing of the sort could happen under Republican rule."

No one can dispute Mr. Davis' contention that the predictions of Republican leaders in 1928 as to the permanence of prosperity fell short of their mark. When the crash came the administration recognized the seriousness of the situation, and worked assiduously to mitigate its effect. What more could Mr. Davis ask? Does he want the electorate to turn the Grand Old Party out of power because its vision of the future was shaded? Does he claim that Democratic prognosticators are the only seers who can foresee the events of the future? Would he strain the faith of voters to the point of asking them to defeat the party that has checked the monster depression in favor of the party which welcomes adversity as a friend and ally?

Mr. Davis was entertaining, but he hasn't anything more constructive to offer than the ghost writers at Democratic headquarters who gloat over the country's adversity.

EMPLOYERS TRYING TO HELP.

One of the most powerful influences tending to alleviate the unemployment problem is the changed attitude of employers. A few years ago industrial leaders confined attention to what they considered to be their own problems, and left labor to shift for itself. A spirit of antagonism existed between labor and capital, and employers were chiefly interested in hiring workingmen as cheaply as possible.

The change that has come about in the industrialists' attitude has not been better illustrated than in the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers held this week in New York. Unemployment and stabilization of industry were the two outstanding subjects considered. The association now shares an equal interest in the welfare of the workingman with the American Federation of Labor, which has been pondering the same subject at Boston.

Morris E. Leeds, of Philadelphia, told the manufacturers that "the curious and tragic anomaly of millions willing to work and willing to buy, but unable to do so, while industry is overproduced," is due to "industrial stupidity, for which no one is to blame and from which no one profits." The discussion indicated that manufacturers are willing to shoulder a large share of the task of eradicating unemployment. Several plans through which industry and labor are cooperating to insure workingmen against unproductive periods were outlined, and the industrial relations department was instructed to study every suggestion with a view to evolving a general solution.

John E. Edgerton, president of the association, deplored the habit of asking the Government to solve every economic problem. The danger of leaving this solution to politicians was pointed out. It is evident that industrial leaders are cognizant of their responsibility in the matter. They have come to realize that their own prosperity is at stake. Now that unemployment is correctly interpreted as loss of buying power, the industrialists may be expected to do something about it. Workingmen no longer have to rely solely upon their own organizations in the struggle for employment stability.

TO ABOLISH RURAL VILLAGES.

Dr. C. J. Galpin, sociologist of the Department of Agriculture, has a new explanation for the plight of the farmer. The standard of living is low on the farm, he says, because farmers live in communities that are too small. Attempts to provide an American standard of living in these small rural communities are doomed to failure. But Dr. Galpin believes that even with the present small income of the farm a good minimum standard of living can be maintained if the families pool their interests by living in communities with sufficient tax-producing property to maintain modern institutions.

A farm community of 100 families is too small. It can not support a good school, library, hospital, park, playground, church or fire department. For this reason the tiny farm village can not attain a high standard of community life. Its inhabitants are denied the opportunities that are afforded by the towns and cities. "A small community," says Dr. Galpin, "pinches its children, as a tight shoe pinches the foot. A small community today is decidedly grotesque, too, like a tiny hat on a big man." Is it surprising that the farms have lost 12,000,000 persons in the last 20 years?

Dr. Galpin's minimum requirement for a modern farm community is 1,000 families, which means a population of approximately 5,000. For communities that can not attain that size, he advocates consolidation. Only by pooling their resources in this way can rural families provide the attractions that are taking their most alert and ambitious young men and women to the cities. Farmers must have observed this for themselves, for the small rural villages are already fast disappearing.

It is interesting to note that should Dr. Galpin's ideal be realized, rural life in America would be at an end. The present dividing line between rural and urban communities, as set up by the Census Bureau, is a population of 2,500. Dr. Galpin's ideal farm community is twice as large as the smallest community entitled to designation as a city. When such a theory comes straight from the Department of Agriculture it is enough to make the advocates of rural life tremble in their boots. Dr. Galpin's address is certainly a setback to George Russell, the Irish poet, who crossed the Atlantic to send America "back to the soil."

SELLING SHORT.

When the business conduct committee of the New York Stock Exchange recently undertook to curb the bears there was a public demand that short selling be prohibited, either by law or by the exchange itself. It is an uninformed opinion that makes this demand; nevertheless, Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, in an address delivered in Chicago last week took occasion to explain the function of the bear. Inasmuch as short selling is a necessary safety valve in a free market, Mr. Whitney's remarks deserve attention.

"Speculation," said the president of the New York Stock Exchange, "is the process of buying and selling property of any kind with the hope of making a profitable difference between the buying and selling price," while "investing is the process of buying property for the revenue that is expected therefrom." Stock speculation is as legitimate as merchandising, and short selling has its counterpart in contracting in building construction. Short selling is, in effect, the borrowing of securities for delivery on a contract of sale. "When a builder contracts to erect a skyscraper," said Mr. Whitney, "he is short of every bit of material that must go into the building, but he assumes an obligation to purchase it." The person who sells short on the market must borrow the security for delivery, and by this very act he contracts an obligation to repurchase a like amount of the same security at some time in the future. The short seller automatically becomes a compulsory buyer. "The prohibition of short selling," he concluded, "would inevitably result, first, in a stagnant market and then in dangerous inflation uncontrolled by the brake that short sales provide."

Mr. Whitney's defense of the bears will not find favor with every one. Especially when short selling is based upon false rumors calculated to depress prices does the practice become indefensible. But in the long run there must be bears just as there must be bulls, if the market is to be kept in equilibrium.

RIGHT KIND OF LOBBYING.

James A. Emery, general counsel to the National Association of Manufacturers, recently said: "No right is more sacred than that of the citizen to protect the assurance of secure, stable and economic government by informing himself accurately respecting public legislation and appearing before legislative committees to bring his experience, judgment and legitimate political influence to bear upon the issue presented. This is not less a private right than a public duty."

If this statement was designed as a defense of lobbying it may be characterized as unnecessary. No one disputes the citizen's duty to acquaint himself with the progress of legislation and to work for the approval of legislation. Lobbying that is open and above board requires no defense. If it works in devious fashion, concealing its identity and attempting to obtain its ends by corrupt means, it is indefensible. It is because of the distinction between proper and improper lobbying that several attempts have been made to require lobbyists to register. All legislation is produced with the assistance of lobbyists. Congressmen do not as a rule introduce entirely new proposals, or work for their approval, except at the insistence of their constituencies, expressed or implied. Every one who is interested for or against a certain piece of legislation and who registers his opposition or approval is a lobbyist. Legitimate lobbying, whether directed by an association or arising from individual interest, requires no defense from Mr. Emery or any one else.

SETBACK TO PEACE

From the London Times.

A breakdown in the naval negotiations between France and Italy, after they had apparently reached smoother water, would have been disappointing any case. It is the more regrettable just at a time when Europe badly needs a tonic. An improvement in Franco-Italian relations, such as would certainly have resulted from an agreement on naval armaments, would have gone far to restore that confidence in the future which at present is nowhere very steady; and to a great extent it would have calmed the general disquiet caused by the result of the German elections. It is probable indeed that those elections, with the effect which the National Socialist victories were bound to have on French opinion, were among the causes contributing to the breakdown. That only makes the breakdown the more unfortunate, for the inability of France and Italy to settle their differences can only encourage the Hitlerites.

Depressing economic conditions have, almost everywhere, affected the political atmosphere, and the trend of political developments has brought no relief. There is no need to be alarmist; but there undoubtedly exists a widespread feeling of doubt and discouragement about the future, to which a different issue of the naval conversations would have been a useful corrective. Their breakdown can only intensify this feeling and further unsettle the European barometer.

Comment in each of the two countries on this new hitch has inevitably thrown the responsibility on the other. All that need be said at present on that point is that, if both countries are sincerely animated by the sentiments avowed by their representatives at the naval conference, the difficulties in the way of an agreement will only spur them to fresh efforts.

Without a settlement of the French and Italian naval differences there is no hope of a general agreement on disarmament.

It may be admitted at once that the cause of disarmament has received a serious setback from the electoral success of the National Socialists in Germany. When 6,000,000 Germans vote in support of an avowedly antitreaty party, led by a firebrand of the type of Herr Hitler, it is clear that they can only strengthen the reluctance of the French to commit themselves to any serious reduction of their military and naval strength. But if the uneasiness which has been plainly growing in Europe during the last few months has been stimulated, as it certainly has, by Herr Hitler's spectacular triumphs in the German elections, and by his recent fulminations in the witness-box at Leipzig, it only makes it the more necessary to press on the work of disarmament. Definite progress in that task would do more than anything else to exorcize the prevailing uneasiness and would be the most effective antidote to Hitlerism.

JUST A MOMENT.

CENSORED SIGNS.

The Pennsylvania department of highways supplies the heartening information that its caretakers recently completed the destruction of 32,225 roadside signs, "embodying every type of blurb, daub, scrawl and tattered legend that came within the definition of illegal advertising." This clean-up campaign lasted six weeks and was State-wide, according to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. It was directed against signs constructed in imitation of the department's official markers bearing the words "Stop" or "Warning," against others erected on the highway right of way and even those placed on private property without specific permission or lease.

The results of this campaign in the interests of roadside beautification and of safety merit the commendation of all the motorists of Pennsylvania. Together with the recent legislation in New Jersey designed to reduce the number of roadside signs and the activity of other States in censoring these markers, it is evidence that public officials are making progress toward making the highways attractive as well as useful. If legislators will give the highway officials the authority to condemn all signs and billboards which obstruct the view of intersecting roads or of scenery the public will heartily approve.

AGE FACES YOUTH.

There were three old men on a mountain high
And one of them said: "We must block the way
For I have heard strange footsteps day by day
And I know that a younger man draws nigh
And I fear he is coming our power to take,
We must drive him back for our comfort's sake."

And the second man said: "I have seen his face.
His eyes are keen and his arm is strong,
He'll be at our door before very long.
If he once sets foot on this lofty place
It will be the end of our day of power.
We must hold him down to the last grim hour."

But the third man said: "We are old and gray.
We can not keep pace with the step of youth,
We must all give way to the widening truth.
Though we once were wise, we have had our day.
This youth is coming new goals to make,
Let us clear his way for our credit's sake."

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONE Christmas during the Great War, when No Man's Land between the trenches was white with snow, the troops in a certain "quiet sector" began to exchange greetings by means of crudely painted signs.

A few minutes later men who spoke German and men who spoke English were climbing from their trenches without arms and meeting on neutral ground to shake hands and exchange souvenirs.

They were friends. Without masters to drive them or tricksters to blind them with prejudice, men who had been trying to kill one another, and were destined on the morrow to continue their butchery, now met as fellow unfortunates wholly free of malice.

They would fight again, but never again would they regard one another as brutes. Never again would they be tricked by stories of dead men rendered into lard, or infants butchered in wanton cruelty, or prisoners crucified on barn doors.

They saw one another as fellow men—men who had wives and sweethearts and worked hard for a living and asked nothing more than the right to enjoy the poor fruits of their labor in peace—and they liked one another because they understood one another.

During the war between North and South, it was a common thing for men in opposing trenches to fraternize when their officers were not near and exchange "Yankee" coffee for "Rebel" tobacco.

The people back home nursed bitter hatreds. Many in the South were like the congressman who later confessed that he was eighteen years old before he knew "that 'dam Yankee' wasn't all one word," and many in the North pictured their enemies as cruel monsters who delighted in torturing helpless slaves; but the men who did the fighting were free of malice because they knew and understood one another.

It is ignorance that makes war possible. People believe the enemy capable of horrible atrocities because they do not know he is a man much like themselves.

When men know the truth, the truth will make them free of war's organized butchery as it makes them free of cruel religions and fearful superstitions.

An enemy is a man you do not understand. Your true enemy, therefore, is not the man himself but the ignorance that keeps you from being his friend.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Tammany Aiding Tuttle.

New York Times.

If Tammany Hall had set out to do its utmost to give Mr. Tuttle a campaign issue, and to make his election as governor seem probable, it could hardly have chosen more effective ways than those which it has adopted. It might seem that the single theme of Tammany corruption would be too thin to spread over the whole State. With nothing new to allege, the candidate would be in danger of going stale. But every day Tammany gives Mr. Tuttle something new. One blunder by its leaders follows hard upon the heels of another. Scarcely has the Republican nominee held up before his audiences one judicial scandal in this city before Tammany kindly furnishes him another. Every day it piles up fresh ammunition for his oratorical artillery. Seldom can there have been a case of one political party, or a faction of it, giving body and force, constantly renewed, to the campaign of the other. Mr. Tuttle eagerly pounces upon every scrap of damaging stuff that Tammany lays at his feet. Even when he is speaking in dry counties, he does not say—he does not need to say—a word about prohibition. Tammany has relieved him of any political embarrassment on that score by giving him facts and rumors and suspicions new every morning and fresh every evening. In a word, Tammany is today the most active and successful campaigner for Mr. Tuttle.

The Youngest Governor.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

With the passing of the Moody administration, Texas no longer will have the youngest governor in the country. That distinction probably will go to Georgia. The Democratic party in that State has nominated Richard B. Russell, jr., 34 years old, as its gubernatorial candidate, and in Georgia, as in Texas, a Democratic nomination is equivalent to an election. Mr. Russell not only is young himself, but up to now has chosen young political advisers and lieutenants. He is a bachelor and will be the third unmarried man in Georgia history to attain a governorship. Bachelor governors, while rare, are not sufficiently so to be classed as downright oddities. Kansas is certain to have one next year, for both Democratic and Republican nominees in that State are unmarried. In one respect, the Georgia political situation is perhaps unique. The governor-to-be is a son of the chief justice of the State Supreme Court. In honoring a family Georgia has gone at least as far this year as Wisconsin, in which State a United States senator's brother is the gubernatorial nominee of the dominant party.

Where Are Great Democrats?

Detroit News.

There is considerable difference between the Democratic party of 1910 and the Democratic party of 1930. We look in vain for senators like John Sharp Williams, James A. Reed, William J. Stone, George E. Chamberlain, Robert L. Owen, Charles A. Culberson, Thomas S. Martin, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, all of whom were then strong and vigorous, clear thinkers, keen debaters. Where are the representatives like Oscar W. Underwood, Henry T. Rainey, Ollie M. James, Frank E. Doremus, Champ Clark, Claude Kitchin, James M. Cox, Isaac R. Sherwood, Finis J. Garrett, Albert S. Burleson, John W. Davis? There are able men in the Democratic party today, but few who compare with this galaxy. It may be that success will bring the best Democratic brains to the fore; and that is greatly to be hoped.

Hoover on Americanism.

Indianapolis News.

The President's address Tuesday at Kings Mountain was marked by a spirit of sound Americanism, the Americanism which thinks of the country's benefits not only as profits gained, but as advantages to be preserved, and seeks a constructive remedy for the shortcomings which it has the honesty and courage to face. The country is a land of equal opportunity. It gained its liberty on that issue, and it has cherished it throughout its life. The President pointed out that this principle liberated the minds of men and women who found in the new country a new impetus to achievement, and thrust the United States far ahead of other parts of the world which then were more accessible to new invasion. He said that every nation which has borrowed the American idea of equal opportunity has prospered.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Sage of Couer d'Alene Becomes Interested in Fire Losses and Makes Several Pronouncements Thereon.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a proclamation designating the week of October 5 as National Fire Prevention Week, President Hoover stated that the North American continent leads the world in the amount of its annual fire waste.

We Americans are a notoriously careless, hasty people. We are always in a hurry. We have never learned the motto, "to look before and after." Care, prudence, foresight and circumspection are words that we ought to chalk upon our shirt fronts and upon the walls of our houses, that we might have them always before us. There is little satisfaction in perpetually locking doors after horses have been stolen.

It is unfortunate for our health and wealth that America is a cigarette-smoking Nation. All over the country millions of cigarettes are being hastily lighted, and millions of burning matches and of lighted cigarette stubs are being thrown down anywhere—in wastepaper baskets and dry brush heaps, for instance. Not one man in ten thinks of carefully pinching out the fire of match and cigarette before throwing them away. Is it any wonder we have so many fires? The wonder is that the country is not one huge burned cinder. I once watched a lighted cigarette that a man threw down in front of me. It kept alight for at least fifteen minutes. At another time I saw a lighted cigarette that a man had thrown down on the steps of a subway in New York and that the draft had fanned into a veritable bonfire, throwing out sparks in all directions.

Away with the cigarette! Let us prosper once more!

Another great source of loss by fire is wooden houses. We ought to build our houses of stone, brick or stucco. Such houses are attractive looking, they harmonize well with the landscape, and can not be burned from the outside. CHARLES HOOPER.

Those Who Contend That Moral Standards Change With the Times Are Paving the Way to Chaos.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A news item in your paper some days ago told that a New York magistrate, in dismissing a case against obscene literature, said, "what was obscene in the past is not obscene today," which makes us ask what the world is coming to? Is there no standard of morality? or is the standard as changeable as the moon? Some of our modern casuistic writers, such as Bertrand Russell and others, are telling us that there is no standard of morality today; what is right or wrong in one place or time may not be so in another place or time. For instance, if you marry two women in this country, you are arrested as a bigamist; in Turkey, you may marry half a dozen, or could before Kemal came on the scene, and be a philanthropist.

Now all this is simply paving the way to that moral chaos into which the world seems to be drifting. We have seen within the last few weeks three governments of South American republics thrown out because of economic and moral conditions. Canada has recently changed its government for similar reasons. Half a dozen European nations are on the verge of disaster through dissatisfaction with economic, social and moral conditions. Spain is demanding a republic in place of a monarchy. Our own Nation is threatening insurrection if we do not repeal the eighteenth amendment, and now the American Sabbath, the strongest safeguard of our Nation's moral integrity, is being attacked with a violence that threatens its annihilation. With such conditions surrounding us, we need writers, teachers and leaders who shall bring us back to good common sense, true and upright morality and a due regard to religion.

Disagrees With "M. D.'s" Letter on the Subject of Colds—Keep Tissues Healthy and Clean.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Over a quarter century ago Dr. Hercules Sanche, a distinguished physician-scientist and native of Canada, advanced the view, now largely shared by modern dietists, that a "cold" is not some mysterious infection caught out of the air or through want of resistance to "cold" environment, but is nature's manifestation of an attempt to clean up dirty tissues. Such applies not alone to the "cold" itself, but to its various offshoots gone to seed—catarrh, bronchitis, sinus trouble, &c. Pores which are dammed up with a particularly viscid scum are dead so far as function goes, and, at best, skin action in cold weather is feeble.

It is therefore of utmost importance to keep a clear system throughout the winter, and this can only be done by radical changes in the average menu. "Cold" germs can not thrive in a normal, healthy body. An unclean and disorganized body, on the other hand, in their home, and the majority who insist on eating food that vilifies the tissues can not expect to go through each winter without one or more "colds," and thus living in constant danger of being pounced upon by that pathological tiger, pneumonia. Congestion in the Patent Office—Expert Men Taken From Government Service by Industry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am told that there is a turnover of 40 per cent annually in the personnel of the Patent Office. As fast as examiners become expert they are snapped up by industrial concerns interested in patents and inventions.

The Patent Office is from 118,000 to 120,000 cases behind. A year is consumed in putting a patent through. Usually an amendment to the specifications is necessary, in which case the amended application goes to the bottom of the list for another year's wait. I have had an amended application in the grist since 1928, and there is no telling when it will get through.

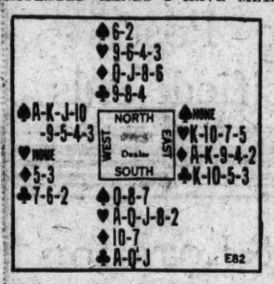
WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



Had the above hand been played in a game of Auction Bridge, the bidding would have been: South one Heart, West three Spades, North pass, East three No Trumps, West four Spades. In Contract the bidding was South two Hearts and West four Spades.

In the play North led a small Heart in answer to his partner's bid; dummy played small, South the Jack as the King was exposed in dummy, and West ruffed. West then led the Ace and King of trumps but was not lucky enough to drop the Queen. Dummy's Ace and King of Diamonds then were cashed and the third Diamond round ruffed in the closed hand. "Well, it all depends upon the location of the Ace of Clubs" the Declarer said as he led a small Club and played the King from dummy. The Ace won and South took in also the Queen and Jack of Clubs and the Queen of trumps. This set the Declarer one trick and gave him ample opportunity to rave about his bad luck.

Did Declarer have a just complaint, or could he have made game?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The way the hand was played for the first six tricks and the way the cards were distributed, the Declarer had a cinch. After ruffing the third Diamond, all that was necessary was to lead a trump. With the Queen of trumps in the South hand and no Diamond left to lead, South would have to lead a Club up to the King, which would spell game for Declarer. South might lead the Ace of Hearts first, but West would discard a Club on that and then game would be assured.

Another plan would have been to play the Nine of Diamonds on the first Diamond trick, hoping that North's and South's Diamonds were evenly divided; that would have failed, however, if South winning had led the Queen of Spades and then another Diamond.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE CHARM OF THE AUTUMN GARDEN.

IN every garden each season presents its own particular feast of coloring, but the autumn is the most glorious of them all. In the spring we find the flowers predominating, a little later when the warmer weather comes we are conscious of the lushness of growth, but when the autumn months roll around we revel in the wealth of fruit and brilliance of the flowers and foliage. Now is indeed a season of great beauty in the garden.

In the tropics we do not find such beauty. Neither do the inhabitants of the Southern Hemispheres know such coloring. The dahlia is spoken of as "the King of the Garden." Wherever we find a dahlia we find a plant that not only demands but holds our attention, until Jack Frost cuts short its carer.

In the early fall goldenrod and even the late summer sunflowers add a jubilant note to the garden, and later, when the many colors of the wild and cultivated asters begin to splash the landscape with tints and tones of blue, the color scheme changes a bit but is none the less alluring.

When, on the approach of the first breath of frost, the annuals are cut down and even the dahlias become brown and withered, the hardy chrysanthemums begin to unfold their brilliant coloring and thus prolong the glory of the garden well into November.

I wonder how many readers of this column know the autumn crocus (colchicums)? If they were better known we would see more of them. They do so well when planted in the grass and add so much to the autumn coloring. The Europeans plant these wee bulbs by the thousands and before long it is to be hoped we will know them better in America. If you are not familiar with these gay little blossoms, ask your dealer to show you the bulbs and tell you something of their culture. They like a rich soil and a sunny position. It is best to plant them among the grass or where their flowers can have the relief of surrounding foliage.

When planting these bulbs, set the corms or bulbs three inches below the surface of the soil. These bulbs usually arrive in this country from Europe in the early part of September and should be planted as soon after their arrival as possible, as they commence to bloom in a few weeks after planting. The foliage comes out in the spring and remains until midsummer. They do not produce flowers until the early autumn. While low-growing little flowers, we need their brilliance to add to the gayety of our gardens in the late fall, when the dahlias and zinnias are on the wane.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Oct. 12.

O-O-O-O-O-OH, that's my dress! But I was in a taxi on my way to a train, and could not get out and get it.

O-o-o-o-oh, there's my dress again! And this time I was in another taxi on my way to a train, which would take me back from where I was at that moment to where I was at the moment I saw the dress for the first time. Doggone!

No Dress, But an Idea—Yes.

So I didn't get the dress, and maybe it's just as well because it gave me an idea to write about today.

Do you know the instant you see a gown whether it is your gown or not? If you do not, why do you not? Won't you try to realize, to learn now, and then to have the knowledge forever, that there are just certain colors and certain shades of those colors that belong to your personal combination of coloring? And that there just are certain lines that are flattering to your figure, and certain lines that are not, and that when these becoming lines combine in a frock, that this frock can not but be the type of frock that is suited to your personality?

All You Need to Know.

It isn't half as hard as it sounds, and it is worth so very much to you to know it. When you have studied yourself to the extent of knowing just this much, it will not be necessary to know more than this in order to be able to say instantly upon beholding a frock, "That's my gown!"

• • • • •

Bernard et Cie, who, as you know, started out years and years ago to be tailors for men, then started making only tailored wear for women, and later blossomed out into full-fledged couturiers, still seem to favor their tailored models and coats. The one I have illustrated for you today for instance, in blue cloth—can't you see the tailor's touch in it? And what woman doesn't like her daytime coat to be as smart and as snappy as only a tailored coat can be?

• • • • •

The most adorable nightgown you ever saw! Yes, and it's quite, quite new, too—it's a model that took us quite a while to work out before we left Paris, but which we did work out very successfully and then made a leaflet about for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It's just one nightgown, and its recommendations are that it is extremely flattering to the figure, and that it can be made to look like several different kinds of nightgowns, by changing this, that and the other thing while you are making it. The French-Maid-Who-Is-Spanish made me two before I left Paris, and they certainly are delightful, so I hope you will get that envelope ready to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post right away.

"Is fur trimming indispensable to smartness?" wails a harassed lady in a plaintive letter. No, it is not. It is true that, in these days of luxury in styles, a great deal of fur trimming, and expensive fur trimming at that, is used. But there are ways to be fur-trimmed on a limited clothing budget, don't think there aren't. One of them is to invest in an expensive fur collar, and have the furrier design it in such a way that it can be worn with several coats. Naturally, he won't be anxious to do this for you, but if you insist upon it he will. I'll tell you some of the other ways anon.

In the meanwhile, don't forget to look in each Sunday's Washington Post for Dare's weekly fashion letter.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

TINY TOTS' CLOTHING.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Simple clothes, easily washed, light in weight and loose enough to allow freedom of movement, should be worn. The amount of indoor and out-of-door clothing varies, not merely according to the season of the year, but according to the exercise the child takes and the temperature indoors and outdoors. An 18-month-old child needs more and warmer clothing than a 4-year-old who plays vigorously. In warm weather a child is more comfortable if it wears little indoors and outdoors. Even in cold weather warm clothing should not be worn indoors if the house is well heated. For cold days outdoors, a warm coat, leggings, overshoes and wool gloves are needed. Sweaters provide an easy means of adjusting the clothing to slight changes of temperature, but a sweater may be too warm indoors unless the room temperature is below 65 degrees Fahrenheit. A sweater should not be worn under the dress or suit, for if worn thus it can not be taken off easily when the child comes indoors. Children are more often too heavily than too lightly dressed. A "built-up" neck is best for a child's underwaist. If it has shoulder straps instead, they should be wide and should cross in the back. The bloomer should be buttoned to the underwaist, and side garters, not round ones, should be worn.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WHOOPING COUGH.

WHOOPING cough ranks with measles as the most deadly of all contagious diseases left to contend with. It is especially dangerous for babies. For children of school age it is not so much of a menace, but such children can carry it from school to the babies at home, making the school a menace to the nursery.

The disease enters in its period of low prevalence just about now, but soon it will begin to climb toward the high plateau which starts with March and ends with August.

There is nothing new to say as to treatment or specific prevention. Serums and other biologics are practically without value either as cures or vaccines. The only new thing to write about is a method of laboratory diagnosis, one that is not so new, but that has had several years to season.

The method consists in having the child cough on a plate of specially prepared culture media and bacterial examination of the culture. If a child has been exposed to whooping cough, and has not had the disease, the parent should be on watch. The incubation period is never less than one week and is usually two. When the child begins to cough one to two weeks after exposure the parent sends to the health department for one of these plates.

When the child has a coughing spell the cover of the plate is removed, and the culture is held directly in front of the child's mouth and about one foot away. The cover is replaced and the plate is sent to the laboratory for examination. The advantage of this method is that it makes diagnosis possible before there is any whoop, and sometimes before there is paroxysmal coughing, night coughing, vomiting, or fever.

Early diagnosis is not of first importance from the standpoint of cure, since there is nothing to do but to let the disease run its course, giving the best possible care and attention. It is of service in preventing the spread of the disease. A child with his disease promptly diagnosed is kept away from other children. When this method of diagnosis is used in schools, it has been found possible to protect other children from exposure. Copenhagen has the honor of having first used this method of diagnosis as a public health procedure.

No More Washday Worries

And Manhattan Saves You Money by Saving Your Clothes

WHY don't you take a tip from this smiling young couple and rid your home of the work and worry of washday too? By sending your clothes to Manhattan you'll find more time for the better things in life and save money in the bargain. ¶ Fresh, clean, long-wearing clothes are the result of Manhattan's famous "Net Bag System" of washing. Pieces are individually inspected and sorted according to color and material into Net Bags marked with your name. In the washers, the gentle cleansing action of pure Palm Oil soap suds and many rinsings of soft warm water remove the dirt and carry it away, leaving the clothes as fresh and clean as new. Much better than the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing that hurries clothes to the ragbag. ¶ And at no extra charge Manhattan collects, launders and delivers your clothes, all in three days. Collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; collected Tuesday back Thursday. Give Manhattan a month's trial and notice the immediate difference in your clothes. What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 13 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Fate is not your friend on this date and she must be grappled with, and not leaned against. There will be a tendency to sidetrack the real issues and to chase the shadow for the substance. Resist temptations to make changes, as your present cot spells more comfort than a new bed at this time.

The child born on this October 13 will have a bold and warlike nature and will be inclined to rush into quarrels. It will go to extremes in both work and pleasures. It will have a strong tendency to play the critic, so that it will be apt to be sarcastic and severe to its opponents.

You have a good mind, but one which is only fitted for detail work. You become confused and are completely out of your ken when you try to handle big things in their entirety. You would be unable to deal with a molecule until you had mastered the profundities of its various atoms. Your fussy precision is often carried too far, however, and you waste precious time, energy and nerve over pifflingly unimportant matters. It would be a blessing for you if you could reserve your best patience and forces for those things which really do count.

Your convictions are not faint and washy, and although your ideas may be mistaken ones, they are at least energetic and sincere. You do not jump to conclusions, but, once they are formed, neither heaven nor man can change them. You do not have a nomadic nature, and you will probably make very few redical changes during your life. You love your ruts and grooves, and they completely satisfy your longings. You keep very close to beaten tracks and are willing to follow your leader. You have very conventional and conservative ideas and are a slave to tradition and custom. You are a little inclined to nag, and particularly so if you be a woman. You like to possess and control those whom you love, and you are a jealous friend. Your thrift almost amounts to penuriousness, and you often go without luxuries and comforts you could well and wisely afford.

Unique Steel House Built By Mrs. Cram

Residence on Long Island Belongs to Daughter of Late Minister.

IN these rapidly moving days when smart folk set the stamp of approval upon the modernist note in everything from housebuilding to clothes, the new slant on homemaking evidenced by Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram, daughter of the late Lloyd Bryce, former Minister to the Netherlands, in the construction of a unique house near the Piping Rock Club on Long Island is quite refreshing.

With the erection of her portable steel house, built in two sections with connecting passage, with no garage nor outbuildings the daughter of the former diplomat has struck the last note in concentrated housekeeping. Two bungalows, each with three rooms, set side by side in the forest opposite the swanky clubhouse are connected by a cement and iron passageway that resembles a Spanish patio. In the excavated basement of one is a living room and dining room. No noise-catching garage finds favor with Mrs. Cram's ideas of home and harmony.

Located in the midst of properties listed at $5,000 an acre Mrs. Cram has serenely established a keynote of simplicity in the establishment which, she declares, holds as great charm as the formal housekeeping methods of the past.

The fireproof construction of the twin bungalows with their steel frames recalls the picturesque estate, Rossdhu, of Capt. and Mrs. Clarence Crittendon Calhoun in Braemar Forest on the outskirts of Washington. All of its walls are fireproof and of steel construction as a guard against fire, which, unless the castle were safeguarded, would prove a serious disaster, owing to the inadequate water facilities.

The Maryland estate, however, with its formal architectural style, copied after that of the Old World, is in direct contrast to the portable home, entirely reactionary and revolutionary, that has been built by Mrs. Cram within the last three weeks.

Mrs. Cram's father, the former minister, passed his childhood in Georgetown and was educated at the Jesuit College there. He was a member of the Fiftieth Congress in 1887-9, representing one of New York's districts. Mr. Bryce was appointed Minister to the Netherlands and Luxemburg in 1911. Miss Edith Cram, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cram, who now is living in the South, has been a frequent visitor to Washington.

Postal Chief Will Fly Over New Mail Route.

Postmaster General Walter F. Brown heads the small list of high officials who will take active part in the inauguration on Wednesday of the Southern transcontinental air mail service from Atlanta to Los Angeles. With Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover and Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics Clarence M. Young, the Postmaster General will fly over the first lap of the route from Atlanta to Fort Worth, Tex., on Wednesday. He will fly back from there on Thursday.

Also making the trip will be Will Rogers, humorist, and several famous women fliers.

President Hoover will this week receive the Secretaries of State of the Dominican Republic, Senor Elias Brache, jr., and Senor Roberto Despradel, who left Santo Domingo by plane on Saturday for Miami, Fla., en route to Washington as special commissioners sent by President Rafael Trujillo to the President.

Senator William H. King, of Utah, who is now in the West, will visit Havana late in October.

Maj. Gen. Sir William Hickie, K. C. B., head of the British Legion in Ireland, will come to Washington tonight or tomorrow from New York, where he has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pitou.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taft 2d are now at their country place at Glen Head, Long Island, where they will be through the autumn.

Mr. French Strother, secretary to President Hoover, and Mrs. Strother are taking a brief holiday in Bermuda.

Mrs. Grace H. Brosseau, past president general of the N. S. D. A. R., will arrive tomorrow for a visit of several days. Mrs. Brosseau recently attended the New York State convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Long Beach, Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hagner Back After Jersey Visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Burton Hagner have returned from Princeton, N. J., where they were guests of Mrs. Hagner's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clowry Roebling, at Landfall, on the Lawrenceville-Princeton road. Mr. and Mrs. Roebling will sail next month on their yacht Black Douglas for a six months' cruise in Latin-American waters.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Crittendon Calhoun had as their guest over the week-end the Rev. Dr. Sylvester Woodbridge Beach, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church in Princeton, N. J.

The Consuls General of Italy, Brazil and the Spanish-American republics gave a reception last night at Mecca Temple in New York following the concert of the Brazilian and Spanish-American music given by the United States Army Band and the Arion Singing Society of Brooklyn there.

Mr. W. J. Eck, of Washington, assistant to the vice president of the Southern Railway System, left San Juan by airplane on Friday for Santiago, Chile, where he will be for several weeks.

Dr. DeWitt C. Croissant, of George Washington University and chairman of the board of governors of the Community Drama Guild, will address the Pierce Hall Players tomorrow evening on "Some Tendencies of the Modern Drama." In addition a one-act play, "Good Theater," by Christopher Morley, directed by Mr. William E. Bryant, will be presented.

Try-outs for parts in the play, "The Sting of Deborah," by Lois Compton Fuller, will be held tonight and tomorrow night in Pierce Hall. Mrs. Fuller will also direct this play, which will have its initial performance in the middle of December. It is then planned to take the play to New York for the professional stage.

Capital Group To Assist At Victory Ball

President Hoover Among Honorary Patrons of Nov. 10 Program.

President Hoover is an honorary patron of the tenth annual Victory Ball on November 10 at the Hotel Astor in New York which, each year, is given under the auspices of the New York County American Legion for the benefit of welfare work.

Also serving as honorary patrons will be the Ambassador of Italy, Nobile Giacomo de Martino; the Ambassador of France, M. Paul Claudel; the Ambassador of Belgium, Prince Albert de Ligne, and the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay.

High officials who are members of the honorary committee include Gen. John J. Pershing, head of the committee, and Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord. Gen. Charles P. Summerall and a long list of Army officers will assist them. New York debutantes and younger married women constitute the dance committees for the ball, which generally is attended by a group of Washington officers and their wives.

On the following night the annual ball and reunion of the First Division will be held at the Astor, the President and Mrs. Hoover having granted the use of their names as patrons for the party.

Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay has joined Mr. Jay at their Washington home, after passing some time in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Long, of Montpelier Manor, Laurel, Md., entertained Friday night at a dinner Senator and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Gibson, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Lewis and Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, of Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. David H. Kincheloe, has sent out invitations for a dinner at her home, 5002 Thirteenth street, on Friday evening.

Miss Sally Cary Fairfax Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, of Belvoir, Fauquier County, Va., will be among the buds presented this season and will make her debut both in Washington and Baltimore. Mrs. Charles Ridgely White, of Baltimore, gave a tea yesterday for her niece.

Wall-Hines Nuptial Plans Are Given Out

Ceremony to Take Place on Oct. 29 at Home of Bride's Parents.

The marriage of Miss Frances Winthrop Wall, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall, and Mr. Frank Thomas Hines, jr., son of Brig. Gen. Frank Thomas Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, and Mrs. Hines, will take place at the home of the bride's parents on October 29 at 4 o'clock, the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, pastor of St. Margaret's Church, officiating. The ceremony will be followed by a small reception for the bridal party and a few friends.

The bride, who was presented to society year before last, was graduated from the National Cathedral School and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Hines is a member of the staff of E. A. Pierce & Co.

Women's Bar Association Will Honor Judge Sellers.

The Women's Bar Association will give a dinner on Wednesday evening in honor of Judge Katherine Sellers, who recently attended the Pan-American Child Conference in Peru as representative of the State Department, and Miss Emma Wold, who, in the early summer, went to The Hague as consulting specialist to the United States delegation to the Conference on Codification of International Law. The dinner will be held at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women on I street.

Following the ideas conceived by Mr. Dwight W. Morrow, the former Ambassador to Mexico, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York will open an important loan exhibition of objets d'art of Mexico on Tuesday. The exhibition contains more than 500 individual items, selected largely through the advice of Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of the Department of Fine Arts of the Carnegie Institute, of Pittsburgh, who traveled some time in Mexico studying the country's fine and applied arts.

The exhibition will be brought to

Macaroni and Spaghetti Contest Begins Today

$100 in Cash Prizes Offered to Woman for Best Recipes for Making Edible Dishes; Ends October 31.

We take more than usual pleasure in announcing a new recipe contest that's going to be different from any one we have ever conducted before. A macaroni and spaghetti contest.

It sounds jolly, doesn't it? Because it's original and because it will deal with two of America's most popular foods.

Every woman, of course, is familiar with Mueller's macaroni and spaghetti. We assume that. But perhaps you will be anxious to learn more ways of preparing both of these delicious dishes which are practically a meal in themselves. So we've based our newest recipe contest on Mueller's macaroni and spaghetti. And if there are any of you who don't know about them you will have the next three weeks to do so. The contest starts right now—today.

We are going to offer two contests—one for the best recipes using macaroni and one using spaghetti. So look into your recipe file or your favorite cook book and jot down from them the recipes for macaroni and spaghetti and send them in. Our Mueller contest begins today and will continue until Monday, October 31.

Names of winners in both contests will be announced November 3 on the woman's page of this paper.

We've made the rules extremely simple and they must be followed accurately. This recipe contest will not mean only cash awards, together with boxes of Mueller's products for winners, but it will be a medium of recipe exchange for housewives who keep a "weather" eye out for new dishes with which to regale their families.

Whether you are a present user of Mueller's macaroni and spaghetti makes no difference. Now will be a splendid time to learn about them if you haven't already.

Rules Governing the Contest.

1. Each contestant may submit as many recipes as she wishes, calling for macaroni or spaghetti.

2. A part of the wrapper of a Mueller package must be inclosed with your recipe.

3. Write on one side of the paper only. Be sure your name and address are on each sheet of paper you submit. This is important.

4. Mail recipes to Macaroni Contest Editor, care of The Washington Post.

5. The contest closes at noon on October 3.

6. The names of the winners will be announced on November 3. The prize-winning recipes will also be published.

THE PRIZES.

Macaroni Contest.

A United Artists Production.
Directed by David Wark Griffith.

David Wark Griffith's camera conception of Abraham Lincoln's life story came to the screen of the National Theater yesterday afternoon, a special performance for educators of this city, and at night a showing to the general public.

Down in the Congressional Library there are some 30,000 volumes dealing with phases of Lincoln's life. Perhaps there are more books on Lincoln than on any other American character. At any rate, a great number of historians delved into almost every incident or happening to Lincoln, from the cradle to the grave. In the screen presentation at the National there is precious little that is not historically accurate, and certainly nothing not covered in the school books. Nearly all the material might be found in the ten volumes by Nicolay and Hay, entitled "Abraham Lincoln, a History of His Time."

It is made very plain in the biographies that Lincoln lived in a house that had only three walls—at Nolans Creek, Hardin County, Ky. And yet this was not due entirely to what many suppose to have been the shiftlessness of Lincoln's father, Tom Lincoln's supposed inefficiency has been often cited as being responsible for the impoverished condition of his family. As a matter of fact, it was the operation of the old Virginia law, which granted to the oldest son the estate of the father, that started Abraham Lincoln on his career as a rail splitter, saw him reared in a home minus a wall. Here, then, is the drama Abraham Lincoln set in its natural theater, since the stage, too, is always without its fourth wall.

To sketch Lincoln's life in so short a compass as this, in the film sponsored by Griffith, the script written by Stephen Vincent Benet, was not only difficult to do, but next to impossible. A glorious attempt was made, and the finished product, while it may be somewhat disappointing to real students of Lincoln's life, is, nevertheless, a carefully worked out story. Most of the major events, from the time Lincoln entered politics till he was elected to the Presidency, and to the day he was fatally shot by John Wilkes Booth, are depicted; with special emphasis on the war period.

Lincoln was wrapped up in the war. He was the outstanding figure in the war, his plans carried the war to successful conclusion, and had actually begun a humane reconstruction of the Union. It would have been no great disadvantage, then, to have shown his influence carried over into the aftermath.

Quite a deal of time is devoted to the battles of Sheridan in the Shenandoah. There is no allusion to the great two-fold victory of Gen. George H. Thomas in the fighting around Nashville and Franklin, when he won the greatest victory of the War Between the States. It may not be the dramatic plan, but the completeness of Sheridan's victory in the Shenandoah Valley campaign might well have been suggested, in the picture, by a question of Gen. Jubal A. Early. He asked one of his regimental surgeons as they were returning alone to Richmond, the army having been dispersed: "Doctor, I believe you assured us in the Richmond Secession Convention that the Whigs would not fight?" Early's well equipped army of 42,000 men had been broken up as a military organization. Lincoln then sent a telegram to Sheridan: "Thank God for your great victory. I'm inclined to run down and see you and the boys," or words to that effect.

There are some remarkable portraits of the past in this work, "Abraham Lincoln," one of the outstanding historical films—and the finest portrayal of all is by Walter Huston, who plays the great emancipator. Huston picks up the character at the age of 20 or so and carries it through to the fifty-sixth year, the changes coming gradually and gracefully. Unless memory fails, or early reading impressions are dimmed, Lincoln's law partner, Herndon, was one of the giant race that lived before the flood; but he is here shown by Jason Robards as a much smaller man, when most historians agree he was nearly of the stature of Lincoln.

Una Merkel, who plays Ann Rutledge, Lincoln's first sweetheart, contributes one of the fine pictures to the gallery. She was here two seasons ago with Helen Hayes in "Coquette," and singled out then as a remarkable young actress. Other noteworthy portrayals come from Helen Freeman, as Nancy Hanks Lincoln; Kay Hammond, as Mary Todd Lincoln; E. Alyn Warren, as Stephen A. Douglas; Ian Keith, as John Wilkes Booth; Fred Warren, as Gen. Grant, and Hobart Bosworth, as Gen. Lee.

Some of the scenic photoplay is beautiful.

Only one spot, dramatically, mars the picture: the theatrical representation of Lincoln so bowed by grief that he throws himself, lamenting, on the rain-sodded grave of Ann Rutledge. One may doubt whether this is history.

GAYETY

When sixteen pretty chorus girls were endeavoring to make "Novelties of 1930," the most uninteresting show of the season, Miss Roberts, a beautiful stately figured brunette, made her appearance and from then on the slow atmosphere of Novelties reversed. The inspired principals then gave Gayety-goers the snappiest and cleverest entertainment of the year. Miss Roberts, making her inital appearance with the cast, looks better than anything Jimmy Lake has sent on the boards of his theater this season. Jean Bodine, a flashy brunette, put over some clever specalities. Peggy O'Niel, George Reynolds, Harry Clex, Andy White, and Artie Lloyd also play prominent parts.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Robed in Romance."

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I know from your letters to others that you can help me. This is my story: I was going with a boy 26 years of age, he being five years my senior. We often talked of marriage, and we had many plans. I really love him. It happened he had to go on a trip and there he met a girl. Knowing her only three weeks, they married. I had heard nothing from him. His boy friend told me about it, so I immediately returned his fraternity pin. This all happened seven months ago. This is my quetsion: "Why can't I forget him?" There hasn't been a week passed that I haven't had at least two dates since I knew of his marriage, yet when I come home I find myself thinking of him. I haven't seen him since. I am glad he doesn't live in this town, but why do I keep thinking of him?

He has a valuable pin belonging to me and I sent him a short note asking for it, and at the same time congratulating him, but he hasn't answered one way or another.

I read in your column at one time the way to forget a man is to get another. I have gotten several and it seems my feelings for him do not lessen at all. I have tried hard not to think about him. Every thing he has ever given me I put out of sight.

One boy I go out with knew of my affair and he asked me about it. I told him how much I cared; we are only very good friends, and he said, "Gee! I wish some one would care for me like that."

Help me, Miss McDonald, because I'm just miserable. At times I'm laughing and two minutes later I'm crying.

I'll be looking forward to your reply. Thanks very much.

"JUST CAN'T FORGET."

Nothing is true, but thinking makes it so. You, my dear, are romantic and you have robed in romance a very commonplace and susceptible youth and the alleged "love" he offered, which, by the way, was but the readily won interest of a negligible and evidently inflammable person of the other sex. Far from being a great love this was a cheap encounter with a shallow personality, a rather shoddy experience and one well ended.

Turn on the light good and strong, and look this man over as for instance his mother-in-law might. And do not forget the matter of his retaining your pin which no doubt came in handy as a gift for the bride. Stop thinking of this episode as a romantic interlude and accept it as just an untidy incident in an otherwise orderly existence. Whoops, my dear! Just wait till love appears. Then you will understand.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Animal Training.

There are those who argue that the training of young children is largely a matter of developing a set of serviceable conditioned reflexes.

Thus to teach a child to keep away from such things as hot stoves, matches and sharp knives we have only to inflict pain every time he makes a move to touch them.

The theory is that, as with animals so with children, an association of pain with a certain act may be set up which will prevent them from indulging an impulse in that particular direction.

Yet it is true that the expert animal trainer resorts to physical punishment less frequently than is commonly thought. He relies much more on the cultivation of a certain rapport between himself and his subject.

Affection, eagerness for approval, and spontaneous alertness—these he knows are necessary to bring out the best in his pupil. He knows that even a dog will learn more for love of his master than through fear of his whip.

Surely children far more than puppies can be led by the desire for approval and through the confidence they feel in one they love.

True, a sharp slap promptly administered will teach a child to refrain from certain acts—at least when the adult who can be counted on to do the slapping is present—but it is a question whether the tabooed knives and matches will not exercise an all the more compelling fascination the moment the adult is out of sight.

A child is far better trained to leave dangerous things alone by accepting substitute interests when he moves in their direction, and by the trust he feels in the grownup who tells him that these things will hurt and that he must therefore not touch them.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

The cotton frock rules supreme for sports and spectator sports. It is in evidence everywhere at fashionable rendezvous.

The pointed treatment is impressive of capelet shoulder in this becoming shell-pink pique. The bias piping in deeper tone is its sole trimming.

You can make it exactly with 2⅝ yards of 39-inch pique with 4¼ yards of binding for the medium size.

Style No. 565 may be had in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

JOHN L. LEWIS' FOE URGES LABOR PARTY

RAPS CHIEF OF WORKERS

Mt. Olive, Ill., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Alexander Howat, long a leader in mine union affairs and now bitter critic of John L. Lewis, head of the regular wing of the United Mine Workers, sees a labor party in this country the only means by which labor will receive justice.

"Eighty-five per cent of the citizens of this country are laborers and we cannot expect to get justice until we have labor represented in the legislative halls of our nation," Mr. Howat told several hundred miners who gathered here for memorial services over the graves of three Mt. Olive miners who gave their lives for organized labor in the Virden Mine riot 32 years ago.

Mr. Howat urged the miners to indorse the movement for a labor party, which, he said, already had taken root in some southern Illinois cities. He said the reorganized wing of the United Mine Workers, of which he is head, proposed to obtain enactment of the old age pension bill as well as the enactment of a law which would obtain unemployment insurance for the workers.

The reorganized union, Mr. Howat stated, "is more determined than ever," to continue its fight against Lewis and his organization. The Lewis wing, he said, was a "company union," and he described Mr. Lewis as a "tool of the coal operators."

"If the operators asked Lewis for anything, they usually got it," Mr. Howat continued.

Practically all of the several hundred miners who came here for the memorial services yesterday had departed for their homes today.

It is here in this miners' graveyard that "Mother" Jones, beloved by Illinois miners, regardless of the faction to which they belong, has asked to be buried. More than 100 years old now and near death, she will be laid to rest in a graveyard here protected by giant oak and maple trees when the end comes.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

WARNING that it is in no sense a popularity contest, but to determine voice quality, Dr. Albert W. Harned invites the public to help select the best singers in the District national radio audition finals tomorrow night. (WRC—6 o'clock.)

The group will include Misses Aurelia Neville Beck, Florence Yocum, Ina Holtscheiter and Helen Churchill Dalby; also Edwin Charles Steffe, Giuseppe Bruno, Harold Blaine Cornwell, jr., and Leonard Davis.

The two successful singers will go to New York, where finalists will be selected for the $25,000 in cash awards and ten music scholarships given by Atwater Kent.

Mary Garden will blow rings of smoke during the Camel Hour Wednesday. (WJZ net, but not WRC, 9:30 p. m.). David Warfield will join Eddie Cantor and Al Jolson in what we believe to be his first national broadcast Thursday.

Other big news is that William Gillett has also been captured and next Monday night will begin a notable series entitled "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes."

A NEW concern which is to make disc records for broadcasting stations is reported to have offered Al Jolson $5,000 for a single record, with Al holding out for a contract for 52 weeks at a guarantee of $235,000.

The company, said to be backed by John J. Raskob, William J. Kinney and their old pal, former Gov. Al Smith, is also understood to be angling for Paul Whiteman.

An attempt will be made Thursday over the radio to give the reactions of a man escaping from a crippled submarine during an actual test of the "Momsen lung" at the Naval Base at New London.

His announcing is always so correct we hesitate to ask Herluf Provenson whether it wasn't Fritz Kreisler who wrote the operetta "Apple Blossoms" rather than Victor Herbert, as he said Saturday night?

THE prediction of Francis Jenkins last week that the day is coming when great transmitters in Hollywood will broadcast pictures to thousands of theaters, at one time, from the same negative, brings to mind a prophecy made by Charles E. Rowe, September 14, 1928.

"Picture programs," Mr. Rowe declared at that time, "will be sent from central stations—broadcast, as we now understand the term—and thrown upon the screens as pictures and into the theaters as music and voice, almost eliminating manual attendants at the theaters."

The Socialists have appealed to organizations all over the country to join in a protest tomorrow when Station WEVD, of New York, charged with being off its frequency, will appear before the commission to keep from being closed down. The station has been on the carpet several times before, but each time has put up a stiff fight and come out victorious.

It is probably the only broadcasting station in the world erected as a memorial to an individual, the late Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, whose initials it bears as call letters.

JUST as Stanley Bell, announcer of Station WMAL, was about to present Gen. John J. Pershing to the national audience recently, he suddenly had an attack of hiccoughs. Mr. Bell found he could do nothing else but leave the microphone.

Luckily for him, William Doherty, of Columbia, was present and took over the microphone, doing such a good job of introducing the general that he received a couple of fan letters.

A radio listener remarked yesterday: "I have bought more phonograph records during the past two weeks than ever before. This has been because I am sick and tired of having my musical programs over the radio accompanied by such a great amount of advertising.

"I realize that in the present scheme of things advertising is quite necessary to pay the freight but many advertisers are now injecting too much advertising into the entertainment which they offer."

WALTER PRESTON, program manager of Station WBBM, Chicago, was being grilled by opposing counsel during the recent hearings for 50-kilowatt power conducted by the Radio Commission.

"Were you listening-in to the cafe broadcast the night of the murder there a week or so ago?" asked the lawyer.

"No," Mr. Preston replied, "I was not. Murders aren't special events in Chicago."

A reader asks if a harp has been added to the "Amos 'n' Andy" orchestra.

No, the different effects heard lately in the theme song have been created by the pianist playing an arpeggio accompaniment.

From The Humorist: "The moon," says a radio expert, "throws back the wireless waves from the earth." We don't blame it.

KING BORIS ARRIVES ON VISIT TO FIANCEE

Princess Giovanna and Court Officials Welcome Him to Italy.

WILL PLAN MARRIAGE

San Rossore, Italy, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Bulgaria's bachelor monarch, King Boris, arrived at the Italian Royal Palace here tonight from Sofia and was greeted by his fiancee, Princess Giovanna, the royal family and high court officials.

The King, whose train reached Trieste early in the morning, arrived at the Pisa railway station at 8 p. m. and immediately came on by automobile to San Rossore. His car was preceded by motor trucks carrying a number of brilliant blue trunks, containing his effects and those of his suite.

Despite bad weather, a large crowd of villagers stood outside the entrance to the royal grounds and gave King Boris a rousing ovation as his automobile entered.

Will Arrange Details.

While he is visiting his fiancee, the King will inhabit a small palace known as the "Gombo," about half a mile from the "Cascine Velocchie" villa of the royal family.

Overnight and tomorrow, King Boris will have a chance to talk over the marriage plans with his future father-in-law. King Victor is due in Rome for an official function Tuesday morning.

The present plan is for Boris to make a brief visit now to Princess Giovanna and her family, and then to return to Bulgaria, returning later with Premier Liaptcheff and court officials for the ceremony itself.

Wedding Scene Secret.

The place where the marriage will be solemnized is veiled in secrecy. San Rossore, Assisi and Pisa are all contending for the honor.

In the preparations for the king's arrival, the visitor whose presence roused most speculation was Count de Vecchi di Val Cismon, Italian Ambassador to the Vatican, and one of the quadrumvirs of Mussolini's march on Rome.

It is understood that Count de Vecchi is keeping in close touch with his embassy by telephone in order to be posted about the latest views of Pope Pius concerning the wedding of a Catholic princess to a monarch of the Greek Orthodox faith.

Vitican to Lend Aid.

Vatican City, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Every possible aid the Vatican can give without departing from the immutable precepts of the Roman Catholic Church, will be afforded King Boris of Bulgaria to make his marriage with Princess Giovanna of Italy possible, the Associated Press learned from an unimpeachable source close to the Pope himself. A Vatican pronouncement probably tomorrow is expected to make this clear.

The Vatican the informant of the Associated Press said, has not forgotten that King Boris is the son of a Roman Catholic father and mother, and was forced in infancy to adopt the Orthodox faith, for which the former Czar Ferdinand is "known to have apologized to the boy."

Roman Catholic ecclesiastical visitors in Bulgaria state there is no record in recent years of King Boris having publicly received the sacrament in the Orthodox Church within his kingdom.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON
Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

GIRL AND BOY FLIERS LAND IN TEXAS TOWN

Laura Ingalls Is Forced to Halt by Weather; Buck's Motor Balky.

BRITISH AVIATRIX READY

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Robert Buck, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Miss Laura Ingalls, of St. Louis, seeking to establish West-to-East transcontinental flight records, landed here today after flights from Albuquerque, N. Mex.,

Buck encountered engine trouble over Tucumcari, N. Mex., and was forced to land here for repairs. Miss Ingalls landed on account of bad weather.

Both expected to take off at daylight tomorrow for the East. Buck left Albuquerque at 8:40 a. m. (Mountain standard time) and landed here at 12:40 p. m. (Central standard time). Miss Ingalls left the New Mexico city at 6:42 a. m. (Mountain standard time) and arrived here at 10:25 a. m. (Central standard time).

Buck is atempting to set a new junior transcontinental West-to-East record. He recently flew from Newark, N. J., to Los Angeles in 28 hours and 33 minutes, claiming a similar East-West record.

Miss Ingalls last week reached Los Angeles after an elapsed flying time of 30 hours and 27 minutes across the continent, setting a record for women. She is now trying to establish a new West-East mark.

Buck's elapsed time to Amarillo from Los Angeles was 9 hours and 33 seconds.

The fliers said here they were not racing. They said they happened to take off from the Pacific Coast at approximately the same time.

"This is not a race, just a coincidence," Miss Ingalls declared.

Portugal Denies Report Navy Held in Disfavor

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—An official statement today decried reports "malevolently spread that the government holds the navy in disfavor, and that some sailors had been shot as a consequence of the ill-feeling." The statement declares the government wishes to assure the navy of its complete good will and disclaims any solidarity with individuals who have attempted thus to disrupt the public order.

It is a fact, the statement adds, that some minor conflicts have occurred, and that two sailors have been wounded. Police arrested one of the assailants who turned out to be a man dismissed a year ago from the police force.

James Melville Quits Solicitor General's Job

London, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Sir James Melville today resigned his office of solicitor general in the MacDonald ministry, assigning reasons of health. He will retain his seat in the House of Commons and will return to that body after a holiday abroad.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

Robin Smith, a young and rising but extremely sensitive poet, is invited to make one of a country house party. He accepts because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present; but he is so worked upon by the contrast between his youth, poverty and awkwardness, and the polished, blase manners of the other guests, that after quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiance, he locks the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his attic room. When Robin does not reappear the house guests start a search for him. The Earl of Winston is also missing. The guests decide to make a search of the house.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER VIII.

"Very well," assented Miss Haddon with outward indifference, although her heart beat fast with apprehension. She wondered if she could have offended or hurt Edward Winston during their brief conversation. She wished desperately he would return. "The prince and I will play some Chopin until Sir George returns with the culprits."

Quite unexpectedly Lady Gwendolen burst into hysterical sobbing, punctuating it with shrill laughter. "Oh! Oh!" she moaned. "I know something has happened to Edward!"

"Sweetheart, don't!" Donald Flint's arm went protectingly around the girlish figure, and he bent his handsome face close to hers. The other guests looked on with faces on which amazement and consternation were mingled. The anxiety which was gnawing at her heart began to show in Muriel Haddon's face.

When Gwen was quieter, Donald Flint turned to the others. "I ought to tell you all that Lady Gwendolen has promised to become my wife," he said simply.

The storm of congratulations which followed entirely drove the other matter from every mind but one. Sir George stood hesitatingly, his brow drawn in a worried frown; then he turned abruptly and disappeared in the direction of the left wing.

Lady Gwendolen was soon smiling, though her eyes were still misty. She had determined to control her feelings. After all, as Lady Dorothy had just reminded her, Edward was ten years older than she, and perfectly able to take care of himself. Thunderstorms always upset her nerves; it was the only time she was aware that she had any. And in other ways tonight had been particularly difficult; she had been torn between the lure of wealth and power and prestige offered her by Donald Flint, and the romantic yearning of her earlier years. She knew she was capable of loving a man deeply, for always; the sort of love that was giving, not getting. And she felt instinctively that neither she nor Donald loved that way. For them both it was not a question of giving, but of getting. It was true he was deeply infatuated with her, but her passion was less deep, and partook largely of a woman's admiration for a man of worldly power.

To Lady Dorothy's immeasurable relief, some of the equilibrium and lightness and superficiality so socially necessary was restored. She noticed that Sir George was missing, and rightly surmised that he had gone in search of the missing guests.

In less than ten minutes Sir George returned. His face was less ruddy than usual, and he had a concerned air about him which told its own tale.

"You didn't find them?" Lady Dorothy heard her own voice, and in it was a note of alarm.

Sir George shook his large head gravely.

"I have been everywhere. I can find no trace of either Lord Winston or Mr. Smith. None of the servants appear to have seen them."

"Did you go to their rooms?" It was Bruce Armstrong who spoke. The musicians had stopped playing, and were listening with absorbing attention.

Sir George nodded. "I did."

"Wasn't either in?" Andree had taken her husband's arm, and was looking with frightened eyes up into his face. "Surely Mr. Smith was in, for he went to look for his poems."

"I don't know, my dear," he said gently. "Lord Winston's room is empty, and Mr. Smith's door I found locked."

"Locked" exclaimed Lady Dorothy, incredulously.

"Locked!" exclaimed Andree in dismay.

"Didn't you knock?" asked Miss Haddon.

"There was no answer."

"Did you knock loudly?" asked Lady Dorothy. "Those old doors are thick, and he may be sleeping soundly." She wanted to grasp at that last straw. He might be asleep. . . . it was better than . . . she couldn't think further.

"I knocked again and again, very loudly," Sir George was saying. "And your little maid on that floor knocked and called, too."

"Don't you have a duplicate key, Lady Dorothy?" Andree asked, with a tremor in her voice.

"No," answered the hostess weakly. "If only I had. . . ."

"We must open it at once!" Bruce Armstrong took command. "Ring for your man, Lady Dorothy, and ask him to bring me a jimmy. I'm rather a clever housebreaker, as I'll presently prove," he added, with a grim smile.

While they all waited, Lady Gwendolen sat with her face white and drawn, all the joy and beauty gone out of it, staring straight in front of her. She pulled absently at the tiny scented piece of linen which was her handkerchief.

She couldn't have explained why she was so upset. It wasn't any tangible fear. She knew that Edward was a thoroughly brave and self-reliant man, and he was her only concern, she assured her confused self again and again. What did she, Lady Gwendolen Winston, care about the fate of an obscure poet by the name of Robin Smith? Why, nothing, of course. Of course, nothing. Yet that afternoon she had discerned something wild and ridiculous, something wonderful and young, with an eternal youth, a defiant sort of tenderness in the ill-kempt poet which stirred her as she had not been stirred since she was a girl of fifteen, dreaming in the Canadian woods, where a sky and stars, and a whispering wood promised her something she had never found. It was too poignant and sweet to bear. For distraction she turned to the handsome man of the world who was to be her husband. He was kindness and thoughtfulness itself. Lady Gwendolen was tired and just a bit frightened of what the future might hold for her. She gave herself up gladly to his protection. His arm about her gave her strength; not the strength of exultation, but the strength of resignation.

"Ah, here we are!" Bruce Armstrong's deep voice broke in upon her disordered thoughts.

Lady Gwendolen looked up and saw him taking an unfamiliar tool from the servant. It all came back to her in a flash. They were going to break in the door to the poet's room. It was locked. There had been no answer to their repeated knockings. It was locked.

"Thank you," Armstrong's voice was continuing. "I think I can manage without your help, although you might stay around in case I want you again. Now, I'm going to Mr. Smith's room," he turned to Lady Dorothy as he spoke.

"And I am going with you." The hostess rose with peculiar dignity as she spoke. "I will tell you all now, before we open the door, that I will never believe anything bad about Robin Smith. He's nothing but a dear little boy at heart."

"That we will see," said Donald Flint as he sceptically raised his fine eyebrows.

"I want to go with you. I insist on going," Lady Gwendolen said to Mr. Armstrong.

"You may as well all come," he capitulated graciously. "It will prove to be nothing but a mad poet's escapade, I hope, and it's easier following the thing than waiting here."

"We must get candles," said Sir George. "It is very dark there."

"Oh, I remember, the lamp is broken and I forgot to order a new one. What must Mr. Smith have thought!"

"Just what I told you, you sweet thing," Gwen took the older woman's arm. "These writers are frightfully temperamental, you know. Remember the time Justin Marks, the painter, smashed your best flower bowl in a rage because the arrangement of the flowers didn't suit him?" Gwen smiled at the remembrance.

"Such people should be shut up," commented Sir George Opie shortly. It could plainly be seen that he was irritated by the hysterical turn of affairs.

"He appears to be!" retorted Miss Haddon flippantly. She, for one, refused to take fright at a bogey. The poet's whereabouts were not worrying her: It was Lord Winston who filled her entire consciousness. What, oh what, had she said or done?

They were following Bruce Armstrong up the side main staircase, with its magnificent antique carved rail; they turned down the same broad corridor lit with hanging lamps which Robin Smith had traversed earlier in the evening, turned again at abrupt right-angles down the narrow passage running the full length of the left wing of the old house. They came to the four steps which had been Robin's undoing, but they did not fall. For though the illumination of the candles was not brilliant, it sufficed to show the way. They crowded about the door while Armstrong endeavored to manipulate the lock. It was not an old lock, nor a difficult one. It quickly gave way before his skillful handling; the door opened slowly. The room was dark. The silence was as absolute as if every one of the tense spectators were holding their breath. Then quite unexpectedly a brilliant flash of lightning came through the open casement window. For an instant the room was brightly lighted. And in that brief space there was time to see the body of a man lying face downwards on the floor, half concealed by the valances of the old-fashioned bed. Then the room was dark again.

And from the flickering half-light in the hall a woman was heard moaning.

"Stop, Andree," commanded her husband sternly.

CHINA FEDERALS SEE CIVIL WAR NEAR END

30,000 Insurgents Reported Killed by Nationalists; Reds Still Menace.

NEW CAMPAIGN LOOMS

Shanghai, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Conclusive victories claimed tonight by Nationalist government officials foreshadowed the end of China's latest civil war.

Nanking's military machine now is operating solely in northwestern Honan Province, seeking to crush the government's one remaining formidable openly hostile faction, Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang's Kuominchun.

Nationalist military headquarters said that during the last 48 hours Marshall Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist troops had achieved a series of brilliant victories over the rebels along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway and west of Chengchow. They were said to be occupying the important city of Honanfu. Generally smashing the Kuominchun grip throughout extreme northwestern Honan.

Shattering of Front.

The military also said that north of Chengchow government troops had routed the weakening Kuominchun and "Nationalists have crossed the Yellow River, capturing and disarming 60,000 rebels while the remainder have fled northward before our advancing troops."

Nanking said the victories mark the shattering of a united front by the Kuominchun and claimed that "from Feng Yu-Hsiang's original army of 360,000 men, we have killed 30,000, captured and disarmed 160,000 and driven the remaining 70,000 into the southeastern borders of Shansi Province, where, without leadership, equipment or supplies, they constitute no menace as a military unit."

The victories, Nanking said, "will mark the end of the 1930 civil war, which has constituted the most serious threat against the Nationalist regime since it assumed a major position in China's politics."

Look to Red Menace.

As a result of these alleged favorable developments in Nanking's cause, Nationalist circles tonight jubilantly forecast a political future indicating only an era of peace and economic rehabilitation which would allow the government to turn its attention to the multitude of matters awaiting consideration. The most outstanding is the admittedly serious Communist movement throughout central and southern China and has reduced those areas to virtual chaos, paralyzing trade, terrorizing the populace and nullifying Nanking's efforts to establish law and order.

The military claimed Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek had already outlined a plan to withdraw 40,000 Nationalist soldiers from Honan Province, bringing them into Hupeh, Hunan and Kiangsi Provinces, and undertake a campaign against the reds. The number of Nationalist troops would be increased as soon as peace was finally established north of the Yangtze River.

Brazil Inducts Miamian As Head of Methodists

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Dr. W. J. Tarboux, of Miami, Fla., today was consecrated first bishop of the Independent Methodist Church of Brazil in a ceremony at the Cattete Methodist Church.

Dr. H. T. Tucker, president of the first general conference of the church, proclaimed the creation of the autonomous church and traced the history of Methodist work in Brazil since 1886. Bishop Tarboux spent many years in Brazil in church work. He retired several years ago, but returned to active work when Bishop James Cannon, jr., arrived in Brazil this summer to aid in the formation of the independent Brazilian church.

BUILDER MINIMIZES PERIL OF "DUMPING"

Business Intended for U. S. Has Been Diverted, Due to Attacks, Austin Says.

DESCRIBES SOVIET GOAL

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—An opinion that recent charges of commodity dumping by the Soviet government for the purpose of wrecking world markets is only a "hobgoblin" without truth, was expressed here today by W. J. Austin, head of the Austin Co., which is building a $60,000,000 industrial city and auto plant in Russia for the Soviet government. Mr. Austin has just returned from a two months' study of conditions in that country.

Russia offers a market for some hunderds of millions of dollars' worth of technical assistance and equipment over the next few years, Mr. Austin said, but added his belief that continuation of "antagonistic attacks on Russia here may divert much of this business to other countries."

Much business originally intended for American mills already has been lost to Germany, England and other European countries, Mr. Austin said. The Soviet, he explained, is determined to buy from nations with more lenient trade and credit policies.

"I am convinced by observation and experience that the Russian government intends to meet every dollar of the obligations they are incurring, on the nail," Mr. Austin said. "I do not believe any American business is taking extraordinary risk in extending reasonable credit to them on purchases made.

"Russia has no great surplus of many commodities, not even of wheat, for export and there is no danger that she wil launch any program of dumping to break world prices."

"At the same time, vast deficiencies of all kinds of manufactured goods exists there. It will take years to supply these shortages and lift the country's standard of living to a level comparable with that of America."

About 10,000 Russian laborers are employed in the construction of the city which the Austin Co. is supervising. It is located near Nishni Novgorod. When complete, its automobile plant is to be capable of producing 150,000 Ford cars a year. Homes, apartments and business houses will be sufficient to house 50,000 people.

"Russia hopes to do in 25 years what America has been 150 years in doing—the building of an industrial civilization with mass production and high standards of living," Mr. Austin said.

No Secret Here

A simple explanation of great success

A well known author is writing a story about A&P. "What," he has asked repeatedly, "is the secret of A&P's success? Why is it the largest grocer in the world?"

At first he was disappointed and puzzled. For he found no secrets, no key to success. He had expected to solve a mystery, to discover a magic formula. He found, simply, an organization of wide-awake men hard at work.

After a few weeks' study, he has forgotten all about secrets of success, and he is no longer puzzled. But he is amazed at how much can be accomplished when great numbers of men work together with a common purpose. His will not be a new story. Real success comes only to those who believe in what they're doing—and do it.

All A&P men believe that good foods should be sold at low prices—and you'd be surprised to know how simple it is when they all work together.

MORE SPENDING, LESS SAVING URGED TO CURE OVER-PRODUCTION

No Time Now to Scrimp And Pinch, Fisher Asserts

Borrow Intelligently if Need Be to Maintain Standard of Living, Advice of Professor, in Depression.

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 12.—The accompanying chart shows "overproduction" in the prime staples of food, shelter and clothing, as compared with 1929. During 1930 production has been much less than during the banner production year 1929, but consumption has shrunk much more than production. That means people are now pinching on comforts and even necessaries. The price level of commodities has fallen 17 per cent since July, 1929. Manufacturers and producers of raw materials, who have had every reason to diminish their stocks during a period of accentuated hand-to-mouth buying, have found that people save and scrimp more rapidly, even, than they can reduce their production. The tale of carloadings is in point. The shipper's regional advisory boards anticipate that carload shipments of the 29 principal commodities during the fourth quarter of 1930 will be reduced by 600,000 carloads, or 7.3 per cent below the corresponding period in 1929.

Hoover Advises Spending.

That is why President Hoover counsels more spending, more borrowing, to tide over the depression. Last year people spent too much. They were extravagant in buying luxuries and they borrowed too much for speculation on the stock market and in real estate. Many of the securities of the staple industries of the nation were good. People knew them to be good, but they over-extended themselves in buying these and other less sound securities on borrowed money. The strain upon the credit structure became too great; interest rates rose to prohibitive heights, commodity prices crumbled, stock prices crashed and thousands suffered losses which caused business to slump rapidly because of curtailed buying all along the line from ultimate consumer to final producer.

Whereas they spent too much last year, now people are scrimping, pinching and saving to their own hurt and to the injury of all society. Their purchasing power is real, their credit is good, as shown by the fact that installment payments on goods bought last year are being kept up. It is probable these old purchases on installments now stand in the way of business recovery. Installment buying went to extremes. People were too ready to pledge their future. Now they have to "pay the piper." They find that piping comes dear and, in their contrition, they feel they can't pay for anything else. They have gone to the opposite extreme. They don't buy, not because they can't, but because they have lost faith in the future; so prices drop. Now is the time for a little courage and a moderate extension of consumer credit and more buying on installments with reasonable faith that better times are in sight when it will be more appropriate to save and repay the loans now contracted.

Wages Being Maintained.

By their agreement made with the President in Washington last December, the captains of industry have continued to share with labor the economies in production costs and to maintain wage schedules. Public building has been stimulated, thus distributing the proceeds of bond issues in a way to expand pay rolls and create added demand for building materials. Great private agencies such as the electrical and transportation industries have added to their building programs. The banks have cooperated with the boards and advisory committees representing industry, agriculture and merchandising, as well as the Government itself. The President's planning committee on home building and home ownership has worked to make first-mortgage money more available at reasonable terms. This committee calls attention to half a billion being spent on repairs and maintenance of houses now, and forecasts building of new homes at the rate of two and a half billion dollars a year for twenty years to come.

There is also a movement afoot, international in scope, whereby surpluses of raw commodities now in the hands of producers may be sold with the aid of additional credits to people who need these materials for their industries and for consumption. It is hoped that this plan will enable British spinners to buy more American cotton, American silk factories to buy more Japanese silk, American rubber manufacturers to make commitments over long terms with British rubber producers, and so on. The coffee surplus of Brazil and the sugar surplus of Cuba can be disposed of by this plan.

Bank Heads Confer.

The heads of the world's central banks are in conference, devising means to facilitate the distribution of surplus commodities. The President has called on American bankers to contribute further effective measures, in cooperation with the Government and business, which should enable the business man, the farmer, the worker at desk or bench, each to do his part in seeing that needed goods are distributed to potential consumers.

The rate of excess stocks on hand for life necessaries during 1930 over 1929 is indicated in bars above the zero line. Exceptions, showing reduced stocks this year, are shown in bars below the line.

The bankers are in intimate daily contact with all these agents of production and exchange. It is their traditional function to encourage thrift. True thrift means the production and consumption of useful goods in the most economical manner. It does not mean the hoarding of money. At a time like this it means intelligent spending, and intelligent borrowing, if need be, in order to maintain the standard of living unimpaired, and in this process the bankers can be of special aid.

STOCK LIQUIDATION REACHES NEW LOWS

Price Levels on New York Exchange Break Through November Figures.

PARIS MARKET IS FIRM

By E. W. DIEFENDORF.
(Irving Fisher Service.)

Gradual liquidation, which brought the price levels of stock groups on the New York Exchange down in orderly decline up to last week, took on more serious aspect during the last four sessions. The group indexes one by one broke first through their June lows and then their lows of the November crash.

The groups closed last week with losses of from 2 per cent in preferred stocks to 18.5 per cent in the radio and amusement group, with radios, office equipment, electrical equipment, auto accessories, motors, utilities, oils, machinery, household products, coppers, and chemicals suffering losses by more than 8 per cent for the week.

Nine of the twenty groups dropped to their lows on Thursday, but making slight gains to Friday's close, with the office equipment group up by 6.8 per cent; steels up by 1.2 per cent, and chemicals up by 1.8 per cent. Of the remaining eleven groups, all but building supplies closed the week at the bottom; this group showed slight gains from its low of September 30.

Values Off as Prices Decline.

The turnover on the New York Stock Exchange last week held steady with the drop in prices causing the average daily value of tradings in common industrial stocks to fall off by 12 per cent from the preceding week's figure to $116,800,000, and in all stocks by 7 per cent to $159,700,000.

Thirteen of the twenty groups showed lower trading figures for last week with the miscellaneous, radio and theater, oils, coppers, and motors groups off by from three to five million dollars each. Seven groups showed an increase over the preceding week in spite of conspicuous price drops. The steels, utilities, electrical equipment, chemicals and stores groups recorded increases of from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 each, with Woolworth, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Bethlehem Steel, Byers Co. and United States Steel conspicuous in the list of individual stocks.

Berlin and London at New Lows.

Foreign stock exchanges continued to move in sympathy with the New York Stock Exchange last week, bringing all of the Irving Fisher foreign stock price indexes to new lows.

The situation in Paris was considerably improved last week, with the index dropping but 1.2 per cent, compared with a decline of 5.8 per cent in the preceding week. Stock price levels in Berlin and London showed increasing weakness as the indexes dropped by 7.2 and 6.1 per cent, respectively, compared with the weekly changes of 0.7 and 3.2 per cent in the preceding week.

Gilt-edged securities are still holding their heads above their November 13 low by 4.3 per cent having broken through the June bottom by nearly 6 per cent, while semiinvestment stocks closed last week at the record low of 84.8, 21 per cent below the November low and 15 per cent below their June low.

Break Through 1929 Lows.

Speculative stocks broke through their November 1929 and June 1930 lows by 27 and 24 per cent, respectively.

From the September high, investment stocks had suffered by 17 per cent at the low on October 9; from this they gained by 0.8 per cent to the close of Friday's market.

The semiinvestment and speculative groups slid off in price to the close, with total losses during the past month of 22 and 32 per cent, respectively.

The net loss last week was greatly in excess of the preceding week, totaling 7 per cent in the first grade, 9 per cent in the second grade and 14 per cent in the third grade groups.

When Interest Is Low.

Probably the great majority of unthinking business men believe that interest is low when money is plentiful, and high when money is scarce. This view, however, is fallacious, and the fallacy consists in forgetting that plentiful money ultimately raises the demand for loans just as much as it raises the supply, and therefore has just as much tendency to raise interest as to lower it.

Gold Rush and High Interest.

The current interest rates in the early days of the California gold rush were quoted extremely high—at 1½ to 2 per cent per month.

The thirfty Michael Reese is said to have repented of a generous gift to the University of California, with the exclamation: "Ah, but I lose the interest." This was a very natural regret when it is realized that interest was 24 per cent per annum.

COMMODITY PRICES MAKE SHARP GAINS

Rise Follows Two Weeks of Weakness Which Has Been Outstanding.

RAW MATERIALS IN LEAD

The Irving Fisher index of wholesale commodity prices rose by 0.73 per cent last week. The rise followed two weeks of conspicuously weak price levels, when the index dropped by 1.8 per cent from 83.6 for the week ended September 19, to 82.3 for the week ended October 3.

There was more than average activity in prices last week, with 62 per cent falls against 38 per cent rises. In spite of the fact that the number of falls were greater, the size and weighting of the rises was sufficient to cause the index to make a definite move.

During the last three weeks the commodity index has indicated an active market, with prices of individual commodities fluctuating at much wider range than during the summer. The weekly changes in the index since August 23 have pointed to a steadier level, with four weeks of rises to three of falls in the last seven weeks. Yet the drops were so costly that they more than wiped out the gains. Discounting the fact that the post-war low was reached a week ago, prices are fluctuating and not holding a steady decline.

Dollar Buying Less.

The purchasing power of the dollar dropped last wek by 0.74 per cent to 120.6, or 20.6 cents more than its value in 1926.

October 11	82.9	120.6
October 4	82.3	121.5
September 27	83.1	120.4
Year ago	94.7	106.6
September average	83.3	120.1
August average	82.3	120.2
1929 average	96.8	103.9
1928 average	98.2	101.8
1927 average	94.2	106.2
1926 average	100.0	100.0
1925 average	105.2	95.1
1923 average	101.1	98.9

The raw materials group of commodities continued to be conspicuous in last week's market. The index rose by 2.22 per cent, following drops of 1.58 and 0.84 per cent in the two preceding weeks. Apples, coal, coffee, eggs, calfskin, beef and hogs were the items that caused the group to rise, in spite of weak prices in cotton, grains, jute and silk. Semimanufactured goods droped by 0.53 per cent to 75.3, a low, having maintained a steady rate of decline for the past two weks. Finished goods were steady last week.

Agricultural and nonagricultural products shared last week's gains. The agricultural index was up by 0.84 per cent, and the nonagricultural index up by 0.62 per cent. The purchasing power of farm products again pointed with advantage to the farmer.

The foods group, up by 1.06 per cent, and the farm products group, up by 0.79 per cent, with rises of 1.26 per cent in the hides and leathers group, 2.83 per cent in the fuel and lighting group, and 1.42 per cent in the miscellaneous group, counteracted the losses in the textiles, metal products, building material and chemical groups.

Foreign Price Levels Off.

The trend of wholesale commodity price levels in Europe again moved downward last week, following the short period when the steady decline was broken by price fluctuations which held out a ray of hope for better conditions abroad.

There was some improvement in the commodity market in England, indicated by a drop of but 0.55 per cent last week, compared with a drop of 0.95 per cent in the preceding week. The index for France indicated no improvement, dropping by 1.4 per cent last week. The level in Germany rose by 0.67 per cent last week from the low of 90.2 to which the commodity price level dropped in the preceding week.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Oct. 12.—Wall street will observe Columbus Day tomorrow, following the custom of observing a holiday on the next day when it falls on Sunday. All of the security and commodity exchanges and the banks will be closed and activities in the financial community will be at a standstill.

New municipal bond issues scheduled for award this week amount to $13,824,278, compared with offerings of $30,515,000 in this group last week. The largest single issue scheduled for award is $3,422,000 Phoenix, Ariz., water, sewer and funding bonds to be placed on Wednesday. Financing of $1,000,000 or more also will be placed by St. Louis County, Mo.; Belleville, N. J.; Irvington, N. J., and McLennan County, Tex.

September proved a good month for domestic coal in the Nation's bituminous markets, though lump and egg figured principally in the increased demand, Coal Age reports. With the resulting increase in production of the larger sizes, coupled with the continued business depression, slack and screenings accumulated and glutted the market in many instances, with consequent demoralization of prices on those sizes.

Arrivals of all coffees in the United States for the quarter ended September 30, the first three months of the current crop year, amounted to 2,559,542 bags, against 2,518,440 bags in the corresponding period last year, the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange reports. Stocks of all coffees in the United States as of October 1 were 933,614 bags, compared with 688,765 bags on October 1, 1929.

BOND PRICE LEVELS CONTINUE TO DROP

RAILS ALSO IN DECREASE

The drop of 0.7 per cent in bond price levels last week caused the index to go off by 0.4 points. The group indexes, public utilities excepted, all showed lowering price levels, with second grade rails off 1.98 per cent, industrials off 1.33 per cent and first grade rails off 1.00 per cent. First grade rails, however, saw a high on Monday of 106.12, from which it dropped by 1.11 per cent to close the week. Public utilities did not respond to the generally lowering price levels, holding the index at last week's figure of 103.6.

Of the 70 bonds in the Irving Fisher Selection 48 per cent saw lower prices over the week, 26 per cent rose, and 26 per cent remained the same. Rails, both first and second grade saw 90 per cent of the group off in price, other groups being steadier.

Although the trend of bond prices has been down since September 26, when the index reached a high of 102.2, the falling off by 0.9 per cent in two weeks from this high brings the index back to a point 0.75 per cent above the summer low on July 1.

INDIAN SPRING GOLF TEAM WINS INTERCITY TITLE

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—It was about eight years ago that Michael McTigue, a timid and evasive lightweight champion, fell into the professional error of fighting a native son of Georgia in Columbus, in that State. The error was the more grevious because Michael, himself, was an Irishman with a brogue as thick as oatmeal, and his manager, Joey Jacobs, was a New York Hebrew boy with a nose like the wheel base of a cradle.

The knights of the Ku Klux Klan, a Georgia brotherhood, were then in the full flower of their nobility and chivalry and were rushing along many a country highway challenging windmills in the name of Nordic supremacy, generally at odds of about 500 to 1 against the windmill.

McTigue Is "Urged" to Change His Mind.

Arriving in Columbus, Michael received the alarming intelligence that the native son of Georgia, Willie Stribling by name, though recently out of high school, was actually a seasoned fighter, due to long private instruction by his father, a circus athlete, and was much stronger than himself. This made Michael meditate and presently he bethought himself of a pain somewhere which would compel him to cancel the bout.

Pursuant to the announcement of this decision a committee of citizens called on Michael and Joey at their hotel to urge them to change their minds back again. Joey Jacobs received the impression that the committee carried ropes, or knew where they could get ropes on very short notice, so he advised Michael to go on with the fight and Michael did.

Accounts of the prize fight varied according to the prejudice of the narrator, but I gathered that Michael made one of his miserable, fugitive, plaintive fights and was beaten by the Georgia schoolboy. At any rate, fast on the heels of the fleeing McTigue party, the Georgia schoolboy came up to New York, attended by his father and his mother and his little brother, who was a bantamweight stripling with some mild pugilistic ambitions of his own, known as Baby Stribling.

Leonard Exhausted "Mammy" Theme Song.

They were an interesing family, just as they stood, but, being show people, they seemed to think they would have to jazz up their publicity in order to put it across. They sent out photographs of Ma Stribling, a handsome woman and remarkably young for the mother of a heavyweight fighter, poising her huge son on her shoulder. Still emphasizing the tender subject of mother love and filial devotion in the ring, Ma Stribling sat at the ringside behind Willie's corner in the old Garden during certain of his fights, embroidering a monogram on a spare set of ring trunks with quiet ostentation.

These might have been effective pictures for the camera and the pen but for the fact that Benny Leonard had just about exhausted the mammy theme in prize-fight publicity and made it ridiculous, so the story of the Striblings as a devoted and compact family unit got away to a bad start.

Pa Stribling was a thick, squatty man, with a cold eye, a thin mouth, and absolute confidence in his son and himself. There was much campaigning against seasoned fighters considerably older and presumably more sophisticated than himself, and Pa was about to match his shrewdness against the rodent cunning of the old professionals of fight management.

"Pa" Still the Boss of The Family.

Pa was youngish, too. Looking at the pair of them, you would have said it was just about an even choice as to whether Pa could or could not still give Willie a licking if family discipline should require that Willie be licked. When Pa wanted Willie to do something or quit doing something he would say, "W. L." rather sharply and Willie would come to heel.

Although they were then setting forth on a long career of wandering forth on a long career of wandering, Pa didn't let go any of his family authority and they remained as compact on the road as though they were still living under the old family roof in Georgia. And, having trouped as show people years before, Pa and Ma knew how to live with the greatest possible ease and economy when rolling across the country, fighting one-night stands.

No professional manager ever obtained a "piece" of Willie Stribling, but that was not for any lack of trying, because many of the boys advised Pa that, although he was very shrewd, he was a country fellow after all and really didn't know the inmost habits of the business and ought to have a partner who did.

Pa directed Willie's fights. Pa was cautious. Willie was his son and Willie was the family business, too. If Willie were clipped on the chin and knocked out the Striblings would be injured not only in their feelings, but in their fortunes as well. So Willie developed a boresome, tug-and-haul style of going which denied the customers something of what they had paid for, and Willie got a bad name in the big centers.

Chauffer Served as Foe On Occasions.

South Dakota Game Here Feature

G. W. Home Debut in Intersectional Night Game Friday.

Maryland-St. John's, C. U.-Loyola Complete Card.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S intersectional clash with South Dakota University Friday night in Griffith Stadium is the feature of this week's local football program.

It is George Washington's home debut, and students, alumni and friends of the downtown school are eager for a glimpse of the famous 1929 freshman team that now does varsity duty. A crowd of 10,000 or more is expected.

Maryland, C. U. Games Saturday Do Not Conflict.

Another night ame is scheduled for Saturday, with Catholic University engaging Loyola, of Baltimore, also in Griffith Stadium. On Saturday afternoon Maryland will meet St. John's, of Annapolis, at College Park. Inasmuch as none of the games conflict, the fans have the opportunity to witness all three.

Several thousand Capital football followers probably will go to Baltimore Saturday afternoon, when Georgetown tackles Western Maryland in the Baltimore Stadium. This battle will attract fans from many points distant from Baltimore.

Gallaudet and American University will travel also for Saturday games. The Blues will play Delaware University at Newark, Del., and the Eagles are booked to meet High Point at High Point, N. C.

The George Washington-South Dakota fray comes at a time when Washington sports lovers happen to be more interested in the gridiron game than at any time in the last decade, so the management is optimistic, to say the least, about paying expenses. South Dakota's long journey will prove a costly item.

South Dakota Choice Over G. W.

George Washington, victorious over Delaware last Saturday, will have a tough battle on its hands, and a South Dakota triumph is not at all improbable. They grow them big and strong out where this team comes from and what the Coyotes might lack in smoothness of performance they undoubtedly make up in physical power.

South Dakota in three games has been tied by Yankton, 7 to 7; swamped Augustana, 86 to 0, and lost to North Dakota State, 25 to 7. A team that can score 86 points deserves respectful consideration, however.

Catholic University showed signs of improvement in its game with Holy Cross last Saturday. The Cardinals did not prove the easy opposition looked for by the Crusaders because of an earlier rout by Boston College. In the fourth quarter C. U. registered five first downs while scoring a touchdown.

Loyola is a team of Catholic U.'s own class, so an evenly contested game should develop.

Maryland may have to work hard to defeat St. John's which is stronger this year than it has been in several years. The Johnnies caused Western Maryland to cut loose last Friday night before the Terrors took the decision, 18 to 0.

Gallaudet Undefeated So Far.

Gallaudet goes to Delaware with an undefeated record to protect, but is facing a job probably too difficult to perform successfully. Delaware held George Washington to a 9-to-6 score last Saturday.

American plays something of a mystery team in High Point, whose activities this fall have not attracted notice beyond its home State. The Methodists will be weakened in the back field due to the loss of Fred Johnson, who suffered a broken ankle last Saturday in the Gallaudet game.

Scalzi, G. U., Among East's High Scorers

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Although Jim Murphy, of Fordham, has played in only two games, while most of his rivals have been out three times, he leads the ball carriers of the East in scoring. Murphy has a total of 54 points to lead Wabbles Hewitt, of Columbia, by 1. Eyth, of Carnegie Tech, and Viviano, of Cornell, are tied for third place with 48 each.

Murphy has scored all his points by carrying the ball across the goal line. He has made nine touchdowns to hold the lead in that respect. Hewitt, Eyth and Viviano each has made eight touchdowns, and the Columbian has added 5 extra points.

Player and College.	Pos.	G.	T.	P.	G.	Tl.
J. Murphy, Fordham	h.b.	2	9	0	0	54
Hewitt, Columbia	q.b.	3	8	5	0	53

Brooklyn Pros Beat Newark Bears, 32 to 0

Brooklyn, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—A powerful attack in the first three periods enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to defeat the Newark Bears, 32 to 0, in a National League pro football game today. All the Brooklyn scoring came in the first three frames with three touchdowns in the second.

McBride, Brooklyn right half back, scored two touchdowns and added two points by placement kicks. Weimer, Kelly and Hagberg each scored one touchdown.

Washington State Surprises on Coast

San Francisco, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Echoes of another thrill-filled weekend of football boomed back over the far West today as fans pieced together the details of a great struggle that stamped Washington State's Cougars as one of the most formidable elevens assembled in many seasons.

A week ago the Cougars amazed the football world with a 16—0 victory over California's Bears. Yesterday they converted all remaining skeptics with a spectacular 7—5 win over Southern California Trojans.

By upsetting the championship hopes of two of California's "big three," Washington State took its place as foremost challenger for the Pacific Coast conference title. The Cougar schedule still lists Montana, Oregon State, Idaho and Washington as conference foes.

At Berkeley, California partially revived hopes of followers with a 7—6 win over St. Mary's College. Seventy-five thousand persons saw the Bears come from behind in the fourth period to nose out their traditional gridiron foe.

Conference standings:

Women Play Today for Golf Title

Miss Hollins Is Only One to Break Par in Practice Round

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Eager for the start of the women's amateur championship competition tomorrow, all but a few of the feminine golfers spent today resting and making final preparations for the six-day grueling grind.

During the practice rounds, but one of the contestants made the eighteen holes under par. During her play yesterday Marion Hollins, Santa Cruz, Calif., and 1921 national champion, turned in a card of 38—42—80, one under women's par. She came to the sixteenth hole with three 4s for a 74 and a new course record, but took an 8 on the sixteenth, when her ball found an unplayable lie.

Miss Quier Equals Par With 81.

Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., who has been shooting consistently in the low 80s, equaled par with an 81. Both are considered threats to the championship crown won four times by Glenna Collett, New York City.

Miss Maureen Orcutt, of New York, the Canadian women's champion, and Mrs. O. Hill, of Kansas City, 1929 Western women's champion, and Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, had 83s. Mrs. Harley Higbie, of Detroit, shot an 86.

While today was by mutual consent a day of rest, several of the women went to the course for a few final shots before the tournament gets under way. Failure to get under the par barrier was responsible for the activity on the course today.

It was considered probable today scores in the low 90s would prove sufficient to make the qualifying list of 32 for Tuesday's first round of match play.

Colgate Leading East Scores With 178 Points

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Andy Kerr's mighty Colgate array has jumped into the lead in the race for Eastern scoring honors with 178 points in three games. Closely pressing the Maroons are Cornell, with 174, and Dartmouth, with 173 points, respectively.

Of the 26 unbeaten and untied teams in the East, 13 boast uncrossed goal lines, Colgate and Dartmouth being among them.

100 Northwestern Gridmen Vaccinated For Smallpox

Capt. Bruder, Attacked by Malady, Has Light Case, But Is Likely to Miss Three Important Battles.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Coach Dick Hanley led 100 members of the Northwestern University varsity and freshman football squads through a wholesale vaccination treatment today in an effort to preclude the spread of the smallpox attack that sent Capt. Hank Bruder to a hospital.

sonnel from Athletic Director Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson down through the coaching staff, players and trainers, to the humble waterboys, passed through the hands of two physicians in Dyche Stadium, where yesterday the Bruderless Wildcats ripped through Ohio State to a 20-19 triumph.

In addition the 50 brothers of Bruder in the Delta Epsilon Fraternity were innoculated. The half hundred classmates of the stricken captain will be vaccinated tomorrow, although Dr. F. J. Lang, the university physician, and Dr. J. W. Collard, Evanston health commissioner, stated they had found no new cases of the disease on the campus.

The physicians assured Coach Hanley that the gridders would suffer no ill effects from their treatment and would be able to begin practice tomorrow in preparation for the important contest with Illinois next Saturday. No quarantine was in prospect.

Docotrs were unable to explain how the smallpox germs singled out Bruder from the 14,000 students for their victim, but Purple enthusiasts pointed to the jinx that has dogged the star ball carrier through his gridiron career at the Evanston school. In his first year of competition, Bruder, already a power in the back field, suffered a hip injury in a prosaic practice scrimmage that kept him out of all but four games. Last year with the Wildcats' hopes for a "Big Ten" championship centered in Bruder he broke his leg in the second game of the schedule.

Dr. Lang said his case was light but the big half back would have to remain in the Chicago isolation hospital for three weeks, unable to aid his mates against the Illini, Centre and possibly Minnesota.

APACHES TIE, 0-0, WITH TACONY

Philadelphia Eleven Turns Back Drives of Champions.

PLAYING a rough and ready style of football despite the summer weather, the Apaches, District independent champions, battled to a scoreless tie with the Tacony Aces, from Philadelphia, at the Griffith Stadium yesterday.

The Apaches, who defeated the Aces, 18-0, last year, found the visitors an improved combination—one that withstood two ardent drives and came back in the later stages of the game to carry the fight to the local club.

Hilleary's Loss Blow To Apaches.

The loss of Quarterback Huck Hilleary soon after the contest started was a blow to the Apaches. He brought a punt back some 10 yards and was knocked outside, suffering a knee injury that was to keep him idle for the day. The Apaches seldom had their plays to working smoothly thereafter, although on two occasions they were 10 yards from a touchdown.

The Philadelphians must have stopped by the Bethlehem Steel Works for their linemen. They had three half-ton boys in the center of the line in Carson, Dodds and Young, who bounced Apaches backs to the ground throughout the game.

Don McCann, one of the outstanding Apache heroes in the Mohawk game last year, proved the most consistent ground gainer for the Indians, although Birthright and Hudack got off several good gains. Birthright's kicking was of high order.

The Apaches had a slight advantage in first downs, making six to the visitors' five.

Clausen, with a No. 5 on his back, and Furhman, No. 10, were the standout players for Tacony.

A fumbled punt brought the first scoring opportunity. Tobin, Apache guard, recovered the ball on the Tacony 10-yard line but the Apaches could gain only 5 yards in three downs and lost the ball when a pass was grounded over the goal line. Play was between the 30-yard lines from that point until late in the second period, when Furhman intercepted an Apache pass to put Tacony within scoring distance.

The visitors completed two passes

Frankie Frisch Hurt in Baltimore Contest

Baltimore, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Frankie Frisch, captain and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, National League baseball champions, suffered a bruised leg muscle in an exhibition game here today that may end his present barnstorming tour.

Frisch, playing with an all-star aggregation against the Black Sox, of Baltimore, collided while running to first with the Black Sox right fielder, who had come in to attempt a double play. He was carried from the field and an examination made by a physician. The player's spikes tore the flesh of the Cardinal captain's leg.

With Frisch on the all-star team were Charley Gelbert, Cardinal shortstop, and Johnny Neun, of the Boston Braves. The score was 10 to 0 in favor of the Black Sox.

Northwestern Plays Stanford in 1932-33

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—While excitement over the condition of Capt. Hank Bruder raged in Evanston, Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern completed arrangements with Stanford University for home and home football games in 1932 and 1933. The first game will be played at Palo Alto, Calif., in 1932, with the second contest being scheduled for Chicago in connection with the world fair. Hanley completed negotiations by telephone with Stanford representatives at Minneapolis, where the coast team met Minnesota yesterday.

Columbians Beaten in Final

Murphy Beats Hufty for Congressional Club Title.

Nordlinger, Harrison New Champs of Their Clubs.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE inter city golf team championship, staged under the auspices of the Maryland State Golf Association, was won yesterday by the team of the Indian Spring Golf Club, which defeated its opponent, the Columbia Country Club, in the final round by the over whelming margin of 10 points to 5 on the Indian Spring course.

There was some thrill to the final round when the first three four-ball matches ended with the score all even. After these three matches, however, there was no doubt as to the outcome, for Herbert L. Lacey and Harold N. Graves, Indian Spring, came in with 2½ points as against ½ point for Clyde B. Asher and L. W. Laudick, Columbia, and then the finishing touch was applied by Sam Rice and T. W. Belshe, of the home club, who won by 3 points from Paul J. Frizzell and Norman B. Frost.

Sasscer-Spicer Score Too Many "Birdies."

Leroy Sasscer, the Indian Spring Club champion, paired with Elliott Spicer, had a close match against Miller B. Stevinson and Everett Eynon, for after being three up at the turn they allowed the opponents to win the next three holes, squaring the match. However, the three birdies which Spicer scored and the two birdies credited to Sasscer proved too much for the Columbia players. The summary:

Miller B. Stevinson and Everett Eynon, Columbia, vs. Leroy D. Sasscer and Elliott Spicer, Indian Spring. Total—Indian Spring, 2 points; Columbia, 1 point.

Thomas P. Bones, Jr., and George P. James, Columbia, vs. J. Munro Hunter, Jr., and Dr. L. S. O'Tell, Indian Spring. Total—Indian Spring, 1½ points; Columbia, 1½ points.

Albert R. Mackenzie and W. Carlton Evans, Columbia, vs. J. V. Brownell and James W. Harvey, Jr., Indian Spring. Total—Indian Spring, 1 point; Columbia, 2 points.

Clyde B. Asher and L. W. Laudick, Columbia, vs. Herbert L. Lacey and Harold N. Graves, Jr., Indian Spring. Total—Indian Spring, 2½ points; Columbia, ½ point.

Paul J. Frizzell and Norman B. Frost, Columbia, vs. Sam Rice and Thomas M. Belshe, Indian Spring. Total—Indian Spring, 3 points; Columbia, 0 points.

Clarence B. Murphy repeated his victory of last year in winning the club championship of the Congressional Country Club yesterday, defeating Page Hufty 4 and 3 in the final round. At the end of the first nine Murphy was 3 up and increased his lead 4 up when he won the tenth hole. He was still in the lead when the fifteenth hole was played, which was, in fact, the crucial hole of the match, for when on this hole Hufty over-approached the green, the result was no longer in doubt. The summary:

First flight—Semifinal round—C. B. Murphy defeated Maj. J. E. McClure, 3 and 1; Page Hufty defeated W. W. Jones, 4 and 4. Final round—Murphy defeated Hufty, 4 and 3.

Consolation—Semifinal round—Franklin Parks, Jr., defeated Bruce L. Taylor, Jr., 4 and 3; S. T. Ansell defeated Thomas Bradley, 6 and 4. Final round—Parks defeated Ansell, 4 and 3.

Second flight—Semifinal round—F. T. Mitchell defeated J. L. Barnhard, 1 and 2; C. A. Bennett defeated W. F. Smith, 1 up. Final round—Mitchell defeated Bennett, 3 and 2.

Consolation—Semifinal round—A. H. Plant, Jr., defeated J. H. Sheppard, 4 and 3; W. H. Grimes defeated V. A. Sisler by default. Final round—Grimes defeated Plant, 2 and 1.

Third flight—Semifinal round—C. V. Singer defeated F. G. Awalt, 3 and 1; A. J. Walker defeated Emmett Dougherty, 6 and 4. Final round—Walker defeated Singer, 4 and 3.

Consolation—L. G. Goode defeated W. E. Shea, 5 and 4.

Howard Nordlinger, who won the club championship of the Town and Country Club, now the Woodmont Club, in 1926 and 1927, yesterday again won the club championship, defeating Dr. M. B. Fischer in the final round, 4 and 3. The match which excited the greatest interest of the day, however, was played in the semifinal round between Nordlinger and Max Weyl, who has been the club champion during the past two years, 1928 and 1929.

This match was so closely contested that both players were all even on the eighteenth tee. Nordlinger placed his second shot on the green and

2 CHAMPIONS FIGHT THIS WEEK

Singer and Walker to See Action; Wolgast Bout Off.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, who is recognized in his own State and in New York as flyweight champion, has injured a hand in training, and so the first title bout of the new indoor season has been called off.

Wolgast was scheduled to battle Frankie Genaro, of New York, who holds the title recognition of the N. B. A., over the 15-round route in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Madison Square officials announced today the date would be filled by the meeting between Justo Suarez, sensational Argentine lightweight, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., former holder of the world's featherweight championship originally scheduled for October 22. The revised arrangements for the preliminary program have not been completed.

Two Champs to Entertain This Week.

Despite the loss of the championship battle, the fight faithful of the Nation will have two champions to entertain them this week. Al Singer, lightweight title holder from New York, heads the card at the Chicago Stadium Tuesday night in a ten-round bout with Eddie Mack, of Denver. King Levinski, light heavyweight slugger who recently stopped Leo Lomski, and Tom Kirby, Boston heavy, meet in another ten-rounder on the same card.

Mickey Walker, who holds the mid-

EQUIPOISE MAY SET MARK FOR JUVENILE WINNERS

DominoHolds Record for Earnings

Whitney Colt to Seek $95,000 More in 2 Big Tests.

By GEORGE DALEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Equipoise, H. P. Whitney's good 2-year-old, is in line to climb over the immortal Domino as the biggest money-winning juvenile of all time. Fred Hopkins, his capable and youthful trainer, has set his eyes on two goals—the one to surpass Jamestown, the present leader, with $151,225, and then to go after the high mark of $170,890 set by Domino, which was unbeaten in nine starts far back in 1893.

With Jamestown in retirement since his spectacular victory in the Futurity at Belmont Park, Equipoise, beaten a head for that kingly prize of $99,600, is carrying on. That short head, just 8 or 10 inches, cost him a place in the golden circle, and a money-winning record of great magnitude. He still has a chance for the record.

This rugged son of Pennant—Swinging, which, like Gallant Fox, seems to thrive on racing, did climb to the silver circle by winning the Eastern Shore Handicap and $26,900 recently over the Havre de Grace track in Maryland. This purse carried his total earnings to $102,475.

Failure of 1929 Aces Seen as Influence.

Hopkins now is pointing him for the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes over 1 mile at Louisville on Thursday, with a gross value of $35,000, and for the Pimlico Futurity of $60,000 over 1 1-16 miles late in November.

These stakes have a net value of around $82,000. When Desert Light won the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes last season his share of the spoils was $26,865, while Flying Heels carried off $55,810 by beating Spinach a head in the Pimlico Futurity of 1929. If perchance Equipoise goes along to win both the spoils, added to his present earnings, would carry him well over Jamestown and over Domino, too, to make him the biggest money winning 2-year-old in the history of the American turf and, so far as known, of the world, witha total close to $190,000.

It looked for a time as if H. P. Whitney would carry out his policy of a year ago and retire Equipoise after the Futurity to the end that he might be the better for the classic 3-year-old stakes of 1931 and particularly the Belmont Stakes, which he has not won since Jöhren scored in 1918. He finally decided, however, to let his good colt go along to fill his various engagements.

Hopkins Points Star For Club Stakes.

Mr. Whitney may have been moved to this decision by the failure of Whichone and Boojum to profit by their early retirement in 1929, just after they ran first and fourth, respectively, in the Futurity. Boojum never got to the races this season while Whichone suffered from ailments which hampered him in his most imporjant races. He did win the Withers, Saranac, Miller and Whitney Memorial for a total of $57,370, but was beaten twice by Gallant Fox.

In the 75 years which make up the history of racing in this country only ten 2-year-olds have won $100,000 or over and two of these—Jamestown and Equipoise—have gone over the top this season. Here are the mighty ten in the order of the years in which they raced.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Laurel Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Md., Oct. 12.—The Columbus Handicap, featuring the Monday offering at Laurel, has all the elements of a keenly competitive contest among middle-class handicap horses, but due to the speed of HOT TODDY and the sparkling race of SUNVIR Saturday in defeating Dr. Freeland, these two horses, coupled as the K. E. Hitt entry, should rule the public choice. The entry is picked to win, and if either is withdrawn, the other should still dominate.

HOT TODDY'S defeat of Caruso at Havre de Grace, as well as his triumph over William T. at Chicago, gives this 5-year-old son of Ed Crump the position of honor in the entry, and his consistency is attested by the fact of his having been out of the money only three times this year. But SUNVIR'S race Saturday, in which he made Dr. Freeland so tired that he dropped back to fourth, also gives him a good chance even if running without the assistance of HOT TODDY.

The contender seems to be FULL DRESS, notwithstanding the dull race of the black son of Man o' War last Friday, when he was third to Conclave. That was a fast pace, and the Coe filly distanced the Glen Riddle horse. SUNVIR also has early speed, while HOT TODDY can finish with the best, and between the two FULL DRESS may be again overcome. BUDDY BAUER should be a factor on the fast track. He has beaten HOT TODDY this year. The Bradley horse can not run on any but a fast track. He is not consistent, but capable of giving a surprise. SOLACE, the Seagram horse, is top weight, and may be a contender. Among the entries for the Columbus is CAPSTONE, a 3-year-old, which will carry the colors of Mrs. John Hay Whitney.

FIRST RACE—The Middleburg Stable's PHANTASIME, second to Grace Darling in her start here on opening day, is selected to win the first race, fashioned for maiden 2-year-old fillies. Her other good race was at Havre de Grace when second to Tambour. Glen Riddle Farm's CENTER STONE should be the chief contender, on her fast race at Belmont Park, beaten a head by Straying. The show money may go to GREENS, daughter of Epinard, and third to PHANTASIME in her last start.

SECOND RACE—This race, a steeplechase, probably is the most uncertain of the seven events. LORENZO, J. E. Widener's foreign-bred horse, seems to be coming around to form, after an absence of two years from racing. He started once this year at Belmont Park. His best races were at Belmont Park, where he beat Jolly Roger when that horse was at his best. It is merely a matter of condition. STONEY LONESOME is next best, and is known to be in form. LE DIGARD and GOLDEN GORSE are the others having a chance.

THIRD RACE—TOKI will have ZEAL to beat in the third race. This filly was second to Gerard Friday, leading most of the way. ZEAL, supposed to be best at a distance, has been showing speed, but stopping. The son of Zev may go on at the shorter route. ERIN QUEEN has a chance for chief money and should be as good as third. SECRECY may go well.

FOURTH RACE—Two-year-olds get their second chance of the day in the fourth race at 6 furlongs, the Genoa Purse, secondary feature. Bradley's BLACK TYRONE is regarded best. His last race was good—third to Pennate. H. P. Whitney has a fast colt in HALCYON, winner in impressive fashion Wednesday. TOMMY BOY, winner of his last three races, has a chance to make it four, and is regarded almost a certainty for some part of the purse.

SIXTH RACE—STORM is selected for the sixth race. In beating Ormondbird at Havre de Grace, the Geneseo Stable plater earned the right of favoritism, although MAKE HASTE has won his two last starts in Maryland and may be the choice. DARK ABBOTT should hold the others safe.

SEVENTH RACE—In the seventh race all FRANCES ST. L. will have to do to insure victory is to repeat her race of Friday, when she beat a large and similar field to this one. HOMELIKE has been beating fields as good as this one in Canada, and is dangerous. WANDERING GOLD has won three of his last five starts, and a contender in the others. He will figure in this race, and may be better than rated.

KING'S PALACE WINS.

Using a clever aerial attack, the King's Palace Team beat the favorite Apaches, 18 to 6, in the opening game of the Sport Mart League. Scoring honors went to Cochran and A. Creele, the former scoring two touchdowns, one on a pass and the other by virtue of a blocked punt. Robinson's kicking was outstanding. Sacrey, Maisel, Fasnacht, Collins and Scarlato featured on the defense.

TEAM TITLE TO INDIAN SPRING

Columbia Easily Defeated in Intercity Final.

holed out in two putts, while Weyl, short of the green on his second, took three from off the green and lost the hole and the match. The summary:

First flight, semifinal round—Howard Nordlinger defeated Max Weyl, 1 up; Dr. Melville B. Fischer defeated Fulton Brylawski, 2 up. Final round—Nordlinger defeated Fischer, 4 and 3.

Second flight, semifinal round—Jack Shulman defeated Jesse Miller, 4 and 3; Philip Feyser defeated Dr. Aubrey Fischer, 3 and 1. Final round—Feyser defeated Fischer, 3 and 1.

The club championship at the Argyle Club was won yesterday by L. T. Harrison, who has been a member of the club for only a year and who began his golfing career as a caddy at the Washington Golf and Country Club, and who, in 1913, was a caddy for the late President Woodrow Wilson, being picked up at his home in Cherrydale by the secret service officers who followed the President out to the club.

Harrison's victory over the veteran members of the club was unexpected. However, he had his opponent, J. C. Biggs, jr., five down at the turn, and although Biggs won four out in the succeeding five holes, Harrison gathered himself together, so to speak, and won on the thirty-fourth hole. The summary:

First flight—L. T. Harrison defeated J. G. Biggs, jr., 3 and 2. Consolation—M. A. Shipley defeated J. A. Cox, 1 up, 19 holes.

Second flight—Carl Noetzel defeated E. L. Church, 1 up. Consolation—C. H. Butler defeated W. Aiken, 2 and 1.

Third flight—W. F. Delaney defeated R. M. Beall, 4 and 3. Consolation—L. K. Ashford defeated Frank R. Zuber, 3 and 2.

Fourth flight—T. N. Sheehan defeated W. J. Steckett.

In the final round for the club championship at the Beaver Dam Club the contestants will be Volney Burnett again W. Bion Moore, the latter having won the title last year. The final round will be played at 36 holes next Sunday. The results of the matches yesterday were:

First flight—Semifinal round—Volney Burnett defeated C. H. Phipps, 4 and 3; W. Bion Moore defeated R. M. Brown, 4 and 2.

Second flight—Semifinal round—H. C. Hodges defeated H. L. Jones, 6 and 5; E. Benson defeated W. C. Ashford, 8 and 5. Third flight—Semifinal round—D. P. S. Swope defeated C. O. Davis, 5 and 3; A. France defeated W. A. Powers, 4 and 3.

Class A—Nonqualifiers—Semifinal round—A. J. Doyle defeated H. Bailey by default; G. Buckingham defeated Earl Day, 3 and 2.

Class B—Nonqualifiers—Final round—N. H. Herrell defeated N. H. Laden, 2 and 1.

Class C—Nonqualifiers—Semifinal round—J. H. Allen defeated H. T. Sullivan, 6 and 5; S. Rubinstein defeated J. H. Burdett, 1 up.

Comparatively few matches were played yesterday in the club championship of the Bannockburn Club John C. Shorey defeated William L. Pendergast, 2 and 1, and Norman J. Hall defeated W. Fred Byrne, 1 up, in the first flight, leaving the matches between R. L. Burgdorf and J. B. Heron and Leo F. Pass vs. J. T. McCarthy still to be played.

In the women's club championship the results yesterday were as follows:

First flight—Second round—Mrs. R. C. Dunbar defeated Mrs. T. P. Hayden, 3 and 2; Miss I. M. Havey defeated Mrs. F. F. Burchard, 3 and 2; Mrs. Middleton Beaman defeated Mrs. Frank J. Pickett, 6 and 4; Miss Sue Gantt defeated Miss Florence Parker, 4 and 3. Semifinal round—Mrs. Dunbar defeated Miss Havey, 5 and 4; Mrs. Beaman defeated Miss Gantt, 3 and 2.

Second flight—Second round—Mrs. A. H. Perley drew a bye; Miss H. J. Kane defeated Miss Freda Kenyon, 5 and 4; Mrs. R. V. N. Haig defeated bye; Miss Elizabeth Harris defeated Mrs. H. G. Wood, 3 and 1. Semifinal round—Mrs. Perley defeated Miss Kane, 3 and 1; Miss Harris defeated Mrs. Haig, 2 and 1.

LAUREL NOTES

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 12.—The big autumn racing prizes in Maryland are yet to be decided, and there is no stake in the country for juvenile fillies more attractive than the forthcoming Selina, with an estimated value of $36,000 to the winner. All the best fillies in the East and several from the West have been nominated for this stake, to be run next Saturday.

The first five days of the Laurel meeting were favored by the best weather in the month noted for golden sunshine and pure air in this part of Maryland. The attendance has probably exceeded that of any preceding five days in this track. At Laurel, as at other Maryland tracks, women seem to predominate, especially since the building of new grandstands with spacious clubhouses at Laurel and Bowie. Automobile traffic from Washington has been interrupted to some extent by the extensive repairs under way a few miles out from Washington, causing congestion and delay.

Fred Hopkins has big ideas in store for Equipoise, which he has trained for H. P. Whitney. Stepping aside of Jamestown, Futurity winner, has given Equipoise a chance not only to eclipse in winnings the G. D. Widener colt, but to strike at the 2-year-old winning record of $170,890, held by the famous Domino. While the next race of Equipoise will be for the $35,000 Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, Hopkins also expects to win the richer remaining juvenile prize, the Pimlico Futurity, with the son of Pennant—Swinging, which would carry him to a total of around $180,000.

R. Workman, late in starting, leads Laurel jockeys with six winners, with the apprentice, Adams, second, with five, and Leishman, four. W. R. Coe's Stable has first call on Leishman for this meeting. The small boy, Adams, has done some of his best riding in races in which he did not win, and it is now predicted that he will be a sensation. He drives through knot holes and saves ground at turns like a veteran.

The Nevada Stock Farm's Tarpaulin by winning the Richard Johnson Stakes has six victories to his credit. It remains true that the racing public still regards A. C. Bostwick's Mate as the better of the two. Mate had a high-weight handicap in the Johnson and only lost by a short nose.

Aziz falled again, making her twelfth second and several times getting third in what seems to be her vain attempts to win a race. She has started 34 times and is probably the ranking maiden of the turf.

MARIONS JOLT ST. STEPHEN IN CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE

Mardfeldts Beaten, 48-0; Wolverines Tie Petworth.

Centennial-Del Ray, Hawk-Northern Prep Also Tie.

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

One major upset was registered in yesterday afternoon's inaugural battles in the unlimited section of The Post's 1930 Capital City Football League when the St. Stephen's Eleven, last year's 150-pound section title winners, who are competing this fall in the heavier class, suffered a 6-0 trimming at the hands of the Marions. The Mercurys beat the Alpha Delta Omega Team, of Alexandria, 13-0, and the Brooklands topped the Quintens, 6-0, in the other two contests in the division.

In defeating St. Stephen's on the Silver Spring Field, the Marions scored their first league victory in two years. It was also sweet revenge for the 20-0 lacing handed them last year by the Saints. After battling to a scoreless tie for the initial half, Grogan, of the Marions, crashed off tackle for 6 yards and a touchdown late in the third period. The score culminated a 45-yard drive for a tally.

The Marions had the ball inside the St. Stephen's 10-yard mark on three other occasions during the game, but each time were repulsed by a determined Saint defense. The Georgetown eleven seriously threatened to score in the dying minutes of the first half, rushing the pigskin to the Marions' 1-yard line. The period ended, however, before it could run off another play.

Southworth Stars In Back Field.

Southworth, in the back field, and Mutchler and Borden, in the line, were the outstanding players for the winners. The all-around play of Crouch and Jones featured for the Saints.

Punching across touchdowns in the first and third quarters, a powerful Mercury eleven subdued a scrappy Alpha Delta Omega eleven on the Gonzaga Athletic Field. Four hundred spectators watched the Southwest team count its initial points in the first five minutes of play, when Jakie Lewis, stellar half back, went around right end for 6 yards and a score. Late in the third quarter Kelliher, Mercury end, took a 15-yard aerial heave from Wiltshire and ran 10 yards for the second six-pointer. Wiltshire drop-kicked the extra point.

Poor kicking on the part of the Alexandrians paved the way for both Mercury touchdowns. An outstanding feature of the battle was the defensive play of the losers, particularly when their goal line was threatened. For an opening game, the Mercury machine functioned very smoothly.

The ball carrying of Lewis and G. Limerick, of the Mercurys and the play of Williams and Agner for the Fraternity eleven stood out.

Brookland Extended To Win.

A tall, rangy Brookland eleven was extended to beat a lighter Quentin Club by the margin of a lone touchdown on the Gonzaga Gridiron. Warren, Brookland full back, climaxed a 50-yard march for a score by a 5-yard ramble around right end midway in the third period. Ormes' pass to Woodruff for the extra point was wide.

Several costly fumbles and poor kicking handicapped the Brooklands in the first half. At one time during the second quarter they had the ball on the Quintins' 15-yard line, only to lose it on downs. In this same period the Quentins got as far as their opponents' 19-yard mark before being stopped.

With two minutes left to play, the Quentins completed three successive forward passes for a total of 41 yards, their rally being halted by the final whistle. Both clubs registered seven first downs during the engagement, with the Brooklands gaining the most yardage from scrimmage. The all-around performance of Eggleston, stocky Quentin half back, featured the play of both teams.

Seaman Gunners Beat Virginia A. C.

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Oct. 12.—The Seaman Gunners, of Washington, defeated the Virginia Athletic Club in their annual game, 18-0, on the Shipyard Field here today. The three scores of the game were made in the last two quarters.

Bricker accounted for the Gunners' initial marker on a 3-yard plunge over center, while Hanchman turned in two runs that netted the 6-pointers in the fourth period.

Bradley played a whale of a game in the line for the invaders, while Gensmere was the best bet for the Alexandrians.

"FIVES" SEEK 110-POUND CROWN

Midget Champs Play 1929 Runners-Up at Akron.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 12. The Charlottesville Fives are out after another national football title. Last season they won the 100-pound midget championship. This fall they have had to move up into the 110-pound class in their race for national honors. In seven games played, the Fives, who represent the Charlottesville School for Boys, have scored 303 points to 62 for their opponents.

This week they have what they expect to be their hardest game to date, against the Bearcats, of Kent, Ohio. This game will be played Thursday night, October 16, under lights, in the League Park at Akron, Ohio. Kent's team, Midwestern claimants for the national championship last fall, was defeated by the Fives, 27 to 0, in a December game played at the University of Virginia.

Kent Gridders Out For Revenge.

This year the Bearcats are out for revenge. Weight regulations will be strict. Each player must weigh less than 110 pounds and at no time can the team average pass 102.

The Fives have won this season from the Washington Boys' Club, the Tigers, of Fredericksburg, and from junior teams from Miller School, Christ Church School, Woodberry Forest School, Virginia Episcopal School and Staunton Military Academy.

Robert Osborne, former University of Virginia student, who is headmaster of the Charlottesville School for Boys, is coach of the Fives. There are 77 boys of all ages on the team squad.

So far this season the Kent Bearcats have won seven games. They defeated the Kent All-Stars, 79 to 0; the Cuyahoga Falls Midgets, 64 to 0, and the Sebring Juniors, 19 to 0.

Green Bay Pro Eleven Beats Yellow Jackets

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Professional Green Bay Packers took their fourth consecutive football victory of the season today, defeating the Frankford Yellow Jackets, 27 to 12. The game was played before 8,000 fans.

to move up to the Apache 25-yard line, but another went over the goal line for a touchback.

The Apaches opened the second half as if only the left-field stands could stop them. McCann ran the kick-off back to midfield and a pass from McCann to Hudak put the ball on the Tacony 30-yard line. Meyers and Hudak slid off tackles to a first down and Birthright and McCann teamed for another. With the 10-yard line reached, Tacony presented another stone-wall defense, took the ball on downs and booted up the field.

The Philadelphians invaded Apache territory in the fourth period with Brown running back a punt 35 yards to the 40-yard line. After several short gains, Hudak intercepted a pass to end the drive. A little later the Apaches were backed up on their 5-yard line as the result of a bounding punt, but Birthright came through with a long kick. The battle ended with the ball in midfield.

D. C. GRIDMEN BEATEN AT BALTIMORE

Northerns Bow, 13-6, to Irvington Guella Stars.

Special to The Washington Post.

BBaltimore, Md., Oct. 12.—Ripping the opposition's defense to pieces in a concentrated attack in the second quarter, the Irvington Football Club crashed through to its second consecutive victory by downing the Northern A. C., of Washington, 13 to 6, this afternoon at Gibbons Field, at Irvington.

After feeling ot each other with conservative football in the opening period, the Irvington machine opened the throttle. Repeated line smashes by Jim Hahn mixed with several off-tackle plays by Happy Enright paved the way for the first tally. Hahn crashed throgh the last 4 yards for the score. Hammer missed the try for point from placement.

Guella Prevents Shutout Of Northerns.

Immediately afterward Irvington again took possession of the ball and started the parade which ended with another touchdown. Enright returned a punt 40 yards and then a few stabs at the line put the Northers with their backs to the wall on the 2-yard line. A fake reverse opened the gap for Enright to slide through for the second counter. Tussey plowed through for the extra point as the Northern Team was smeared on a fake kick formation.

Irvington appeared satisfied to finish with defensive tactics. Kicking o nthe first down and playing safe at all times, the victors maintained the margin until 3 minutes before the final whistle.

Gobbling in a short kick, Guella, Northern guard, who starred throughout, cut his way past the line of scrimmage, doged the two remaining Irvington men between him and the goal line and raced 40 yards for the visitors' score. Northern was off side on the try for point.

Ft. Myer Eleven Wins From Alex. Firemen

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Oct. 12.—Battery "B" footballers of Fort Meyer opened their season here this afternoon defeating Engine Company No. 5 gridders, 7-6, in a hard fought fray on Haydon's Field.

Williams scored the touchdown and extra point for the soldiers. The smoke easters lone marker came as the result of a pass, Bennet to Brill. The latter racing 12 yards to the goal-line. The try for extra point failed.

Three West Va. Teams See Action This Week

Special to The Washington Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 12.—When the week-end rolls around West Virginia University sports fans will have three Mountaineer teams to follow in action. The Mountaineer varsity grid eleven will meet the University of Detroit as its fifth foe of the season, the game to be played at Detroit on Friday night. On Saturday afternoon the West Virginia freshman grid outfit will meet Potomac State College in its second meeting of the season here.

During the progress of the second quarter of the freshman football game, the Mountaineer harriers will defend their cross-country championship of the tristate in a run with the University of Pittsburgh. The cross-country run will begin between the first and second quarters in the stadium and end between halves of the plebes' battle with Potomac State.

CELTICS BOW TO ARROWS, 13 TO 7

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 12.—Hasse's 3-yard plunge off tackle in the last minute and half of the Richmond Arrow-St. Mary's Celtics football game gave the Richmonders the verdict, 13 to 7, here today. More than 1,000 fans packed the sidelines in Baggett's Stadium to see the initial contest of the two Virginia rivals.

The Celtics were first to draw blood when Dick Allen anared a 15-yard aerial heave from Howard and crossed the Arrows' goal line in the third period. The eel-hipped Celts' back shook off several tackles in making his team's six-counter. Rube Hayman racked up the extra point on a line plunge.

Break Leads to Arrows' First Tally.

Taking advantage of a break in the final minutes of the third period, the Arrows placed the ball on the Celtics' 5-yard line. Beginning the third quarter two tries were made on line plunges for the touchdown. Both failed and Peterson then shot an aerial heave to Plunkett, who leaped high to grab the leather back of the Celts' goal line for his team's first score.

Langford, former William and Mary College star, Arrows' flashy half back, was injured in runing back a punt and had to be taken out of the game. Johns, right end of the invaders, suffered a broken rib in the first quarter, but played through the entire contest.

ered wagon de luxe, and away the Striblings went, touring the back country, booking bouts as they went and making no mismatches. At first Willie and Pa took turns driving the car, but presently they picked up a chauffeur, who also is supposed to have served as Willie's opponent in the ring in a few emergencies. There has been much criticism of Primo Carnera for the hopeless type of opponents that he has pushed over in the course of his American wanderings, but I doubt that Primo, himself, ever imposed on some of the unfortunates that Willie Stribling bowled down as he swept along, he and his Pa and Ma and his little brother, on those barnstorming tours in the covered wagon.

Every now and then Pa would venture back into New York and get Willie another chance with Tex Rickard, but every time he did this he would get up in the corner again and hold the boy on such a short leash that Willie only bored the customers.

Once, after he had married, Willie pulled away from Pa and Ma to get another manager and go his way alone. But in a few days he was back. Pa was somewhat annoyed about this, and he spoke his mind with great freedom and independence. He had taught Willie the rudiments of fighting, he had brought him up from Georgia, had seen him through a hundred fights and more without a serious beating, and had cut the money with him strictly to their agreement, without wasting a dollar. If Willie wanted another manager, now was the time to speak out about it.

Stribling Now Gives Fans Run For Money.

Pa has become ringwise himself. Nobody ever took advantage of him in the rough and tumble financiering of the ring. Nobody ever stole any decisions from him. Nobody ever doped his fighter or bluffed him out of town with any rope or ropes.

Down in Georgia Pa is an executive of a bank and a business man of substance. Willie is a right young man, a flier, a father, and by a process of elimination and survival is coming on to be the heavyweight champion. His boresome style has changed. He has persuaded his Pa to let him punch and is giving the customers an even break for the first time in his life. The Striblings have seen the world, they have made a fortune, they are all young even now, and they still remain a close family group, themselves against the world, but citizens of the world, successful, independent, intelligent and, by all odds, the most interesting family in sport.

Gaithersburg and Rockville Victors in Soccer Openers

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

THAT District soccer fans are due to be treated to first-class sport this season was assured yesterday when six evenly matched Capital City League teams met in three closely contested games. Army and Rosedale fought to a 1-to-1 draw, Gaithersburg triumphed over Silver Spring, 1 to 0, and Rockville eked out a 1-to-0 decision over Fashion Shop. Sizable crowds were at all games and a record-breaking throng witnessed the Gaithersburg victory.

Despite the balmy weather, the players cavorted in midseason style and every game was well worth the time of the goodly sized gathering that viewed each match. Critics who expected to get a line on the possible league champion in yesterday's games were badly disappointed, as each of the three defeated teams displayed championship qualities equal to those of the victors.

It would be difficult to name the outstanding game, as all were of unusual caliber for so early in the season, but a telling factor in each victory, which presages even better contests, was that condition was a deciding point in all of the triumphs.

Rosedale Outplays Foes For 45 Minutes.

Rosedale actually outplayed Army in the first 45 minutes of the tilt at Fort Myer, but in the latter part of the game the well-conditioned soldiers ran the yet short-winded civilians ragged. A stubborn defense by Irving, Wilson and Giddings really averted an Army victory in the waning minutes of the game.

During the first half the Northeast lads had dash and speed to spare, but months of inactivity on the part of most of the squad showed in the second period as Rosedale fell back on a dogged defense to hold its scant one-goal lead. This was matched in the final minute of play.

Rosedale pressed hard in the early minutes of the game and about midway the opening half it was rewarded by a fast shot by Harding past the agile Jones, Army goalie, for the first marker of the game. It continued to press for the remainder of the half, but could not again penetrate the Army defense.

The soldiers, with such veterans in the line-up as "Shorty" O'Connell, Jones, Linn and Petrie, started the closing half with a determined attack but were staved off until less than a minute to the final whistle when Hover, probably Army's outstanding player of the day, drove one through from a mix-up near the Rosedale goal for the equalizing marker.

Rockville Shows Good Team Play.

The neatly clad Rockville eleven strongly resembled the champion Rockville squad of 1928. The team displayed better combination play than usual for so early in the season and otherwise convinced the onlookers that it will have to be reckoned with when the title honors are passed around.

Rockville's opponents, Fashion Shop, also showed potential power and once that Manager Mann strikes on the proper combination the Ninth street boys will be hard to beat, as they really were yesterday. The Maryland kickers did not score until the second period and it was the consensus of opinion that the District lads had outplayed their opponents in the first half.

Poole, Heim and Herman formed a clever defense for the Montgomery County boys while Gandy and the Collins brothers showed an attack above the average. Watson, at goal for Fashion Shop, played a brilliant game throughout. He is one of the youngest goalies in the city but handles his position with the best of them. Trundle played well at half for Fashion Shop.

Gaithersburg Shines On Defense.

Gaithersburg played a brilliant defensive game to conquer Silver Spring. Magruder at goal played a bank-up game and Full Backs Ward and Hoyle saved many shots directed at their uprights. W. Smith was the outstanding Silver Spring kicker.

High lights of the day were—the referees are ruling with an iron hand, two of them banishing players. Fashion Shop had Earl and Tom Clark on the side lines, ready for the fray next week.

Army and Rockville won honors as the best groomed teams.

KNICKS TIED IN VIRGINIA CAPITAL

Fumble Aids Richmond Eleven in 0-0 Deadlock.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—The Knickerbocker A. C. Eleven, of Washington, D. C., played a scoreless tie game with the Councilor Collegians here today in the Richmond Stadium before a crowd of 4,000.

The Knicks mad ea serious scoring threat in the second quarter. They staged a drive at this stage, carrying the ball to the 2-yard line, only to lose the chance when a Knick back fumbled.

The Washingtonians were making their first start of the season and displayed a smooth-working, fast club.

Diehl, former Florida end; McAlwee, Collins and Hill played well in the visitors' line, while Steve Barabas and Hilleary did the best ball-carrying.

Tuck Dalglish, star back, was forced to retire in the second quarter, due to a leg injury.

PEERLESS WINS EASILY.

The Goofus Wangdiddle

And eats only rosin and pitch;
She keeps out of sight
By flying at night
And carries a broom like a witch.

She builds nest after nest,
North, east, south and west,
Which she rents by the day or the week
To birds that migrate—
And this service is great
Though most of the nest she builds leak!

Virginia Aims For Victory At V.M.I.

State Rivals in 26th Annual Game on Saturday.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 12.—After trips to North Carolina and Pennsylvania, Virginia's football eleven will play in the Old Dominion next Saturday. The Cavaliers go to Lexington for the twenty-sixth game with the Cadets of Virginia Military Institute.

Cadets and Cavaliers started their gridiron meetings back in 1893. They have been playing with reasonable regularity ever since. In the early days they skipped a few seasons, but since 1907 they have missed only 3 years, and two of these were during the World War, when football ceased to be.

For two seasons V. M. I. has had rather the best of it. In 1928 they caught the Cavaliers in a slump the week after Princeton was tied, 0 to 0. And last year they presented a veteran team that had almost everything its way. From 1924 through 1927 Virginia had been victorious.

Earl Abell, head coach of the Cavaliers, has been hoping and working to have his charges going at top speed against the Cadets. With Duke one week and with Pennsylvania the next it has been almost impossible to point for the V. M. I. contest. That will have to be done the coming week.

Virginia Faces Hard Game.

V. M. I. is the first of six Southern Conference rivals Virginia will play one after the other. Week after next comes Kentucky, then Maryland, Washington and Lee, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and North Carolina.

Virginia's line will probably get a great deal of drilling during the five afternoonns the Cavaliers will be able to work on Lambeth Field. Coach Abell is not at all pleased with the showing of his forwards. The backs are doing better, some of them at least. Unless slowed down by an injury, Bill Thomas will carry the burden of the Cavalier attack against the Cadets, assisted by Herbert Bryant, Frank Sippley, Jim Beury, Segar Gravatt, Doug Myers, Ben Pinder, Henry Sackett, Ward Brewer, Gene Stevens and maybe some others. Not all of these expect to see action against V. M. I., but they will all be ready.

Virginia's first-year team opens its season here Friday afternoon with the V. M. I. Freshmen. This game will be played on Lambeth Field. The youngsters, who have been drilling under Coaches Randall and McConnell, are still an unknown quantity.

4 of 7 Intersectional Games to Dixie Teams

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Little Albie Booth, Yale's mighty atom, was unable, except on one occasion to shake loose for any twisting broken field runs Saturday as Georgia marched to its second successive victory over the Blue, 18 to 14. Albie's 40-yard heave to Beane in the second period and his 35-yard return of the final kick-off were his main gestures.

Downes, Georgia quarter, provided the big thrill with his 81-yard return of the opening kick for a touchdown. A pass from Chandler to Smith brought the second, while Roberts plunged the line for the winning margin after a 45-yard drive.

Even though a great Carnegie team overwhelmed Georgia Tech in the other major conflict of the East, Dixie teams won four of their seven sectional combats.

The standing of the Southern Conference teams, including games of Saturday, follows:

Team.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Alabama	2	0	1.000
Florida	2	0	1.000

141 Horses Nominated For $10,000 Handicap

Special to The Washington Post.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 12.—Harry Payne Whitney's Equipoise, winner of the $20,000 Eastern Shore and other important 2-year-old stakes this season, and who has won over $100,000 in purses, is included in the 141 nominations Race Secretary Jack Campbell has received for the $10,000 Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap, a mile affair for 2-year-olds exclusively, to be run here on Saturday, November 1.

The Spalding Lowe Jenkins race was inaugurated in 1928, with Twink capturing the purse in 1:39 4-5, which mark still stands.

Man Jailed Over Meal When He Could Not Pay

Boston, Oct. 12.—John S. Shields, of the South End, who was unable to pay in a Scollay Square lunchroom for a chicken sandwich and a cup of coffee he had consumed, was held in $1,000 bail by Judge John Duff of the Municipal Court. In view of his financial embarrassment there seemed to be no immediate prospect of his providing bail.

The lunchroom company charged Shields with the larceny of four ounces of chicken, valued at 20 cents; two ounces of bread, valued at 10 cents, and four ounces of coffee at 10 cents, the court valuation being 40 cents.

Army Cadet Corps To See Illinois Game

West Point, New York, October 12. Maj. Gen. William L. Smith, superintendent of the United States Military Academy here, announced today that authority had been received from the War Department for the entire corps of cadets to attend the Illinois game in New York City on November 8. Detailed plans for the movement have not been completed, but the cadets will leave here Saturday morning and march into the Stadium, performing their usual military evolutions before the game. Following the game they probably will be excused until midnight when they will assemble at the West Shore Station at Weehauken for the return to West Point.

French Race Classic Is Captured by Indus

Longchamp, France, October 12 (A.P.).—Indus, a fine colt by Alcantara, out of Himalaya, owned by Edward Esmond, won the Grand Criterium Stakes, the autumn classic for 2-year-olds, over the mile distance at the Longchamp track today. Four-in-Hand was second and Pearl Cap third.

The winner, ridden by William Scanlan, paid 2 to 1. The race was worth $6,000. Ten colts and five fillies started the classic and Pearl Cap was the first filly at the finish.

Portsmouth Pros Blanked in First Loss

Minneapolis, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Minneapolis Red Jackets handed the Portsmouth Panthers their first defeat in the National Professional Football League, 13 to 0, here today.

Pape dashed 46 yards for the first Minneapolis touchdown in the second quarter, while Joesting went over for the other in the third session after leading a march of three-quarters the length of the field.

The Panthers' back field of Glasgow, McLain, Lumpkin and Bennett failed to gain consistently until late in the final quarter, when the Jackets stopped their long march on the 3-yard line as the game ended.

By HERBERT KIRK. Drawings by NAT Bollier

Trade-Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office

The Goofus Wangdiddle

And eats only rosin and pitch;
She keeps out of sight
By flying at night
And carries a broom like a witch.

She builds nest after nest,
North, east, south and west,
Which she rents by the day or the week
To birds that migrate—
And this service is great
Though most of the nest she builds leak!

AS GEN. MONK WAS RETURNING TO HIS CAMP FROM NEWCASTLE ABBEY WHERE HE HAD LEFT ATHOS WITH THE TREASURE, HE WAS SEIZED BY D'ARTAGNAN AND HIS COMPANION
QUICK, WE HAVEN'T A MOMENT TO LOSE!! WE MUST GET HIM TO THE SHORE AT ONCE AND THEN I'LL MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR US TO LEAVE. WE CAN PICK HIM UP AGAIN AFTER WE SET SAIL!!
USING THE TURN OF THE TIDE AS AN EXCUSE FOR SUCH HASTY DEPARTURE, D'ARTAGNAN AND HIS "FISHERMEN" WERE PERMITTED TO SAIL FOR FRANCE AT ONCE
BUT THE NEXT MORNING AS ATHOS WAS JUBILANTLY LOADING THE TWO BARRELS OF GOLD ABOARD SHIP, PREPARATORY TO SAILING FOR HOLLAND, HE WAS ARRESTED
WHERE IS GEN. MONK? YOU WERE THE LAST TO SEE HIM. HE NEVER RETURNED TO CAMP! WHERE IS HE?!
IN TWO WEEKS GEN. MONK INTENDED TO ENGAGE GEN. LAMBERT IN BATTLE. IF OUR COMMANDER IS NOT FOUND BEFORE THEN, SIR, YOU WILL BE SHOT AS A SPY!!
BUT, MONSIEURS, I DO NOT UNDERSTAND..
ALL THAT DAY AND FAR INTO THE NIGHT GEN. MONK'S OFFICERS HELD A SECRET CONFERENCE
FOR THE MORALE OF OUR TROOPS THEY MUST NOT KNOW OF HIS STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE!! WE WILL SAY THE GENERAL IS ILL IN BED!!

Virginia Aims For Victory At V.M.I.

State Rivals in 26th Annual Game on Saturday.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 12.—After trips to North Carolina and Pennsylvania, Virginia's football eleven will play in the Old Dominion next Saturday. The Cavaliers go to Lexington for the twenty-sixth game with the Cadets of Virginia Military Institute.

Cadets and Cavaliers started their gridiron meetings back in 1893. They have been playing with reasonable regularity ever since. In the early days they skipped a few seasons, but since 1907 they have missed only 3 years, and two of these were during the World War, when football ceased to be.

For two seasons V. M. I. has had rather the best of it. In 1928 they caught the Cavaliers in a slump the week after Princeton was tied, 0 to 0. And last year they presented a veteran team that had almost everything its way. From 1924 through 1927 Virginia had been victorious.

Earl Abell, head coach of the Cavaliers, has been hoping and working to have his charges going at top speed against the Cadets. With Duke one week and with Pennsylvania the next it has been almost impossible to point for the V. M. I. contest. That will have to be done the coming week.

Virginia Faces Hard Game.

V. M. I. is the first of six Southern Conference rivals Virginia will play one after the other. Week after next comes Kentucky, then Maryland, Washington and Lee, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and North Carolina.

Virginia's line will probably get a great deal of drilling during the five afternoonns the Cavaliers will be able to work on Lambeth Field. Coach Abell is not at all pleased with the showing of his forwards. The backs are doing better, some of them at least. Tolles slowed down by an injury, Bill Thomas will carry the burden of the Cavalier attack against the Cadets, assisted by Herbert Bryant, Frank Sippley, Jim Beury, Segar Gravatt, Doug Myers, Ben Pinder, Henry Sackett, Ward Brewer, Gene Stevens and maybe some others. Not all of these expect to see action against V. M. I., but they will all be ready.

Virginia's first-year team opens its season here Friday afternoon with the V. M. I. Freshmen. This game will be played on Lambeth Field. The youngsters, who have been drilling under Coaches Randall and McConnell, are still an unknown quantity.

4 of 7 Intersectional Games to Dixie Teams

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Little Albie Booth, Yale's mighty atom, was unable, except on one occasion to shake loose for any twisting broken field runs Saturday as Georgia marched to its second successive victory over the Blue, 18 to 14. Albie's 40-yard heave to Beane in the second period and his 35-yard return of the final kick-off were his main gestures.

Downes, Georgia quarter, provided the big thrill with his 81-yard return of the opening kick for a touchdown. A pass from Chandler to Smith brought the second, while Roberts plunged the line for the winning margin after a 45-yard drive.

Even though a great Carnegie team overwhelmed Georgia Tech in the other major conflict of the East, Dixie teams won four of their seven sectional combats.

The standing of the Southern Conference teams, including games of Saturday, follows:

Team.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Alabama	2	0	1.000
Florida	2	0	1.000

141 Horses Nominated For $10,000 Handicap

Special to The Washington Post.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 12.—Harry Payne Whitney's Equipoise, winner of the $20,000 Eastern Shore and other important 2-year-old stakes this season, and who has won over $100,000 in purses, is included in the 141 nominations Race Secretary Jack Campbell has received for the $10,000 Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap, a mile affair for 2-year-olds exclusively, to be run here on Saturday, November 1.

The Spalding Lowe Jenkins race was inaugurated in 1926, with Twink capturing the purse in 1:39 4-5, which mark still stands.

G. P. O. FEDERALS COP.

Man Jailed Over Meal When He Could Not Pay

Boston, Oct. 12.—John S. Shields, of the South End, who was unable to pay in a Scollay Square lunchroom for a chicken sandwich and a cup of coffee he had consumed, was held in $1,000 bail by Judge John Duff of the Municipal Court. In view of his financial embarrassment there seemed to be no immediate prospect of his providing bail.

The lunchroom company charged Shields with the larceny of four ounces of chicken, valued at 20 cents; two ounces of bread, valued at 10 cents, and four ounces of coffee at 10 cents, the court valuation being 40 cents.

Army Cadet Corps To See Illinois Game

West Point, New York, October 12. Maj. Gen. William L. Smith, superintendent of the United States Military Academy here, announced today that authority had been received from the War Department for the entire corps of cadets to attend the Illinois game in New York City on November 8. Detailed plans for the movement have not been completed, but the cadets will leave here Saturday morning and march into the Stadium, performing their usual military evolutions before the game. Following the game they probably will be excused until midnight when they will assemble at the West Shore Station at Weehauken for the return to West Point.

French Race Classic Is Captured by Indus

Longchamp, France, October 12 (A.P.).—Indus, a fine colt by Alcantara, out of Himalaya, owned by Edward Esmond, won the Grand Criterium Stakes, the autumn classic for 2-year-olds, over the mile distance at the Longchamp track today. Four-in-Hand was second and Pearl Cap third.

The winner, ridden by William Scanlan, paid 2 to 1. The race was worth 86,000. Ten colts and five fillies started the classic and Pearl Cap was the first filly at the finish.

Portsmouth Pros Blanked in First Loss

Minneapolis, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Minneapolis Red Jackets handed the Portsmouth Panthers their first defeat in the National Professional Football League, 13 to 0, here today.

Pape dashed 46 yards for the first Minneapolis touchdown in the second quarter, while Joesting went over for the other in the third session after leading a march of three-quarters the length of the field.

The Panthers' back field of Glasgow, McLain, Lumpkin and Bennett, failed to gain consistently until late in the final quarter, when the Jackets stopped their long march on the 3-yard line as the game ended.

CLAIRVOYANT THE MAN WHO KNOWS

608 12th St. N.W.

Over Woolworth's 5c & 10c Store

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

WASHINGTON HOST TO WORLD CHURCH SESSION THIS WEEK

Disciples of Christ Meeting, Starting Tomorrow, Marks Pentecost Anniversary.

YOUTH CONVENTION SET TO BEGIN WEDNESDAY

First International Assembly of Churches of Christ to Get Under Way Sunday.

Commemorating the nineteenth hundredth anniversary of Pentecost and the founding of the Christian Church, the International Convention of the Disciples of Christ, bringing delegates from all parts of the world, will open in Washington tomorrow.

Interwoven with this convention is the World Convention of Churches of Christ, which opens next Sunday after the expiration of the program of the Disciples of Christ, and the youth convention, which opens on Wednesday.

A program commemorating the nineteenth hundredths anniversary of Pentecost will mark the opening of the Disciples of Christ convention tomorrow evening in the Washington Auditorium. R. A. Long, of Kansas City, president of the convention, will preside. The program will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Youth Convention Wednesday.

Day and evening sessions will be Sunday morning at 6:30 o'clock a sunrise dedication is planned at the National City Christian Church, at Thomas Circle and Massachusetts avenue northwest. Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock a huge communion service will be held in the Washington Auditorium.

Besides the regular daily sessions, conferences are to be held by various groups of the convention.

The Youth Convention will open at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Luther Memorial Church. It will continue through Sunday.

Communion Service Sunday.

The Churches of Christ, found in 85 countries, have never held a world convention, it is said. Their first convention opens Sunday with the communion service in the auditorium. It will continue through Thursday of next week.

All three groups, the Disciples of Christ, the Churches of Christ and Youth Convention will unite at the communion service next Sunday afternoon. Special committees to be in charge of the service will rehearse at the auditorium tonight.

Rev. J. L. Gordon Dies in California

Man Who Occupied Pulpit Here Succumbs to Paralysis.

The Rev. James Logan Gordon, who occupied the pulpit of the First Congregational Church here for three and one-half years, died at a sanitarium near San Francisco, Calif., late Saturday, according to word received here yesterday.

The Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, Dr. Gordon's successor, conducted a special memorial service at the church yesterday morning, after he had been informed of his predecessor's death by Hugh A. Thrift, chairman of the board of trustees.

Dr. Gordon came to the First Congregational Church in 1915 from Winnipeg, Canada. He remained here until 1919, when he was called to the First Congregational Church at San Francisco. He was stricken with paralysis last spring, but improved, and his death came as a surprise to his many friends in Washington.

WOMAN IS WOUNDED RIDING IN MARYLAND

Struck by Shot Fired From Side of Highway Near Waldorf.

CONDITION NOT SERIOUS

Mrs. Fred L. Murphy, 40 years old, was shot last night by an unseen assailant as she was riding in an automobile with her husband near Waldorf, Md.

Mrs. Murphy was taken to Emergency Hospital, where doctors said her condition is not serious. One bullet had entered her left arm and gashed the left side of her breast. The bullet was not recovered.

Her husband told authorities at the hospital that they were riding toward this city, when a shot was heard and his wife screamed.

At the point where the shooting occurred there are no houses. On either side of the road is an open field and a dense woods. Neither of them saw any one after the shot was heard.

District police immediately communicated with Maryland authorities and a search was instituted in the vicinity of the place where the shooting happened. Mr. Murphy could give no reason for the assault. He had no enemies, he said. He guessed that some one having target practice or hunting in the woods had fired the shot. They live at 427 Fourth street northwest.

Woman Is Killed, Two Hurt in Crash

Car Said to Have Overturned Near Laurel; Survivors Unconscious.

Helen Vaughan, 29-year-old colored woman living at 2412 Seventeenth street northwest, died yesterday morning at Providence Hospital, where she was brought by the Maryland rescue squad following an accident about 5 o'clock on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, near Laurel.

Her husband, Willie Vaughan, also was seriously injured in the accident, and Florence Mason, 19 years old, colored, of 1508 U street northwest, is also in an unconscious condition at the hospital. She was a passenger in the automobile. The auto is said to have overturned on a sharp curve about two miles from Laurel. Both of the surviving victims are in an unconcious condition.

Envoy Describes Rise of Lithuania

In Poverty After World War, Finances Sound Now, He Says.

Rise of Lithuania from its independence after the World War, starting with an empty treasury, to a position of importance in Europe was described by Bronius Balutis, Lithuanian Minister, in a conclave of nations radio talk yesterday afternoon over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

"The government was so impoverished after its creation that the minister of finance had to pass the hat among government employes to finance a short twelve-hour trip to Berlin," declared Mr. Balutis. "A tremendous progress has been made. A sound financial system was introduced and is maintained. The Lithuanian currency has the unique distinction among the currencies of Europe of never having fluctuated. There is practically no internal debt and foreign indebtedness amounts to less than $6 per capita, the lowest national indebtedness on record in any state."

"The Lithuanian language has the distinction of being the oldest living language in the world. It is closely related to the Sanskrit and bears many resemblances to both Latin and Greek. It is indispensable in the study of comparative philology."

Work of Catholic Church Is Lauded

Dr. J. K. Cartwright Declares Civilization of Nations Assured by It.

Dr. John Keating Cartwright lauded the work of the Catholic Church through the years in a radio talk delivered through Station WOL yesterday afternoon from Immaculate Conception Church in its usual Sunday Catholic radio hour.

"In the period of the formation of the modern nationalities the Church assured their civilization," he declared. "No institution of the force to do this was left standing on the ruins of the ancient world except the Catholic Church. Besides forming among these peoples the rudimentary ideas of civilization, the Church managed to keep alive the traditions of letters and the arts."

Miss Catherine Bowers and Miss Florence Yocum rendered vocal numbers, assisted by the church choir under the direction of Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard.

STOREHOUSE BLAZE LAID TO EXPLOSION

FUMES PERIL FIGHTERS

The explosion of an ammonia tank is believed to have caused the fire which yesterday destroyed the candy and nut storehouse owned by Samuel Carpel, 1361 H street northeast.

Alfred Grunwell, a fireman attached to No. 10 Engine Company, was injured when he fell down the stairs of the two-story brick structure. He was taken to Casualty Hospital. His ankle was sprained.

The fire broke out in the cellar of the place and spread to a garage in the rear. Several automobiles were partially destroyed in the fire. Ammonia fumes hampered the firemen in fighting the fire. Masks were worn to get close to the seat of the fire.

Firemen estimated the damage at $4,000.

Radio Group Opposes Superpower Stations

Repudiating testimony offered by high-power broadcasting station officials, independent operators of the Radio Protective Association have asked the Federal Radio Commission to refuse the proposed establishment of 40 50,000-watt stations in the United States.

The protest, filed by Oswald F. Schuette, executive secretary of the association, declares that the requested superpower stations would destroy the usefulness of regional and local stations on all intervening channels.

School Will Have Own Hall of Fame

Gallery to Be Established at John Quincy Adams Institution.

Creation of a pictorial hall of fame at the John Quincy Adams School will be announced at a meeting of the school's parent-teacher association in its first meeting of the season there at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The nucleus of the gallery will include the autographed portraits of President Hoover, Vice President Curtis, Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, Thomas Edison and Dr. C. C. Wu, the Chinese Minister, whose children attend there.

The program of the meeting will be under the direction of the school's schoolboy patrol, the American Automobile Asssociation and Eighth Precinct police, to illustrate the need of educating children to obey traffic rules.

Announcement has been made that Mrs. L. C. Stover will resign the presidency of the P. T. A. there today because of ill health, and that she will be succeeded by Mrs. Dorothy Rus, vice president.

STOLEN PASSPORT SOON DUPLICATED

Two Governments Swiftly Repair Theft From Belgian Girl.

TOURIST NOT DELAYED

International procedure moved swiftly yesterday afternoon following the discovery that a pocketbook belonging to Miss Ghislaine de Meester de Betzenbroeck, of Brussels, Belgium, a guest at the Carlton Hotel, had been stolen, together with her passport and American and Canadian visas.

She discovered the los as she was preparing toleave for Canada with her father, who is vice president of the Royal Belgian Automobile Club and an unofficial delegate to the sixth international road congress, which has ben meeting in Washington for the past week. Personal papers and a small amount of change were also in the pocketbook.

The los swas reported to officials of the Belgian Embassy here, who cabled their foreign department in Belgium and established Miss de Betzenbroeck s identity, and within five hours she had a duplicate passport in her possesion and she was able to proceed with the regular partyof ofreign delegates who are on their way to see how Canadian roads are built.

Police officials and employes of the hotel refused to comment on the loss last night.

Fire Extinguisher Stolen.

Thieves Saturday night took a large brass fire extinguisher, two flower vases, and one decorated metal waste basket from the lobby of the Hampton Courts Apartment, 2013 New Hampshire avenue northwest, according to a report made to police by the manager, Mrs. Bessie McDowell.

CONVICT ESCAPES ON WAY TO TASKS AT REFORMATORY

LACKED FIVE MONTHS OF COMPLETING TERM

Was Serving Two Years for Grand Larceny; Lookout Sent Here.

With five months to serve of a two-year sentence for grand larceny, John Reed, 32-year-old prisoner at the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., yesterday made a successful dash for liberty and is believed to be with his wife and children in an automobile seen around the prison grounds prior to his escape.

Reed, employed as a baker in the prison bakeshop, fled while supposedly on the way to his place of employment from the prison barracks ing. A look-out sent to local police failed to result in any trace of him.

Investigation by prison officials later disclosed that Mrs. Reed had packed her belongings and left the house at 5207 Canal street northwest, where the little family awaited the father's release.

The deserted Virginia roads at the hour of the escape offered no solution to the problem which confronts prison officials. 'Apparently, they say, the break was well timed. In his capacity as baker, Reed was given more liberties than some of the others at the institution. He was in the "trusty" class.

Bishop's Son Plans To Answer Charge

Associated Press.)

Maj. Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, said in a statement last night that charges filed against him in Los Angeles and San Bernardino Counties, involving the issuance of bad checks, would be "answered satisfactorily at the proper time and place."

He said during the past two years he had "been the target of frequent attacks not because I am R. M. Cannon but because I am one of the sons of Bishop James Cannon, jr." He added it was "quite significant" that his Los Angeles office was burned and important valuable papers destroyed four days before he left that city.

The statement also said: "I left California to come to Washington to consult with my father, Bishop James Cannon, jr., on some exceedingly important matters. There was no mystery connected with my going away or my whereabouts."

Schoolboy Who Took Wrong Trolley Found

Lost since taking the wrong street car upon leaving Holy Name School after classes Friday afternoon, 7-year-old Harry Salemmo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Salemmo, of 1223 H street northeast, was picked up yesterday morning by Third Precinct police after an unidentified woman had discovered him wandering about aimlessly seeking his home.

The child, trained to take a street car each afternoon at the corner by the school and to get off at a corner by his home, became confused after boarding a street car proceeding in the opposite direction with several of his schoolmates. He said he finally got off at an unknown corner and can not remember where he went or what he did in the meantime.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GARBLE SISTERS DISCUSS THE WORLD SERIES.

"WELL, what do you think of the world series?"

"I thought it was pretty good from what I read and heard on the radio. George Bernard Shaw pitched a wonderful game, didn't he?"

"I wish I could've gone to Boston to see one of 'em. I had a boy friend there at the American League convention."

"I hated to see Cleveland win that last game."

"Why?"

"If they'd lost it would have been a draw at five games each and then they would've played it off at Kings Mountain."

"I got awfully excited listening on the radio to Floyd McNamee."

"I didn't like McNamee, but they had a newspaper feller on who wos good. Graham Frick, I think it was."

"Wasn't that Cardinal third baseman wonderful? Adolph Hitler, I mean."

"Yeah. He only allowed five hits. It was a shame to take him out for that pinch hitter, Wickersham."

• • • •

"I DIDN'T hear much about Babe Ruth in the series this year."

"I noticed that, too. I guess he just wasn't hitting."

"I remember he knocked out a homer in the first or second game, right after the Cleveland pitcher, Capone, called him Mule Ears."

"Was that Ruth? I thought it was Ty Cobb."

• • • •

"IT was too bad they knocked that little pitcher out of the box so early that last game."

"Wild Bill Thompson, you mean?"

"That wasn't the name. The one I mean's an Irishman."

"Oh, I know. Russell. They call him 'A. E.'"

"That don't sound like it, either. Anyway, he pitched a wonderful game in the third game in Detroit."

"The Red Sox couldn't hit him at all that day."

• • • •

"WHO managed the Red Sox in this series?"

"Gabby Garoud, I think. He lost one arm in the war."

"You can't beat that manager of the Athletics, though, for being smart."

"Connie Machado, you mean."

"That's the one. He's 156 years old and once threw a baseball from the top of the Washington Monument in Pittsburgh."

"He had some good, clever coaches this year."

"Knute Rockne was a big help to him."

"Knute Rockne was the Cleveland or Red Sox coach. I mean Mal Stevens and Lou Little. They doped out every move the other side made in advance."

• • • •

"Maloney made a show of him."

"Well, next year I'm going to see the series if I have to steal the money. Where are they holding it?"

"I think Porto Alegre or Pernambuco. I remember seeing those names in the morning paper."

WORLD SERIES ANALYSIS.

Cochrane and Simmons and Foxx,
Knocking 'e mouta the lot;
Who in a pinch
Will hit, it's a cinch?
Cochrane and Simmons and Foxx!

Douthit and Adams and Frisch—
Hark to their bats as they swish;
Who will strike out
When they're needing a clout?
Douthit and Adams and Frisch!
Or maybe we are thinking of Bottomley.

CALL for Mr. Whitney, who once got a medal for bidding $150 for Steel common!

FAMOUS STATEMENTS OF FAMOUS AMERICANS.

"My son and I are buying stocks now!"

The market couldn't be any worse if Washington had just announced that business had made a 50 per cent gain.

CHICAGO bandits robbed the mayor's wife the other night. It may have been just a sort of sales argument in the campaign to sell Mrs. and Mr. Thompson an armored car for touring purposes.

NO PEACE.

Not only big troubles can bother;
The small ones can pester and tease.
When I have quite finished the pie it
Is then I discover the cheese.

Futility of Life Without Belief Expressed in Sermon.

Dr. Chesteen Smith, pastor of Hamline Methodist Church, at Sixteenth and Webster streets, preached to a large congregation yesterday on the eternal question of the immortality of the soul. His text was: "If a man die shall he live again?" from Job, xiv:14. He said, in brief:

"In this question Job voices the inarticulate doubt of the human mind, and suggests one of the deep and universal longings of the soul. Men of every age have paused at the threshold of death and have wondered what its coming shall mean for them.

"If you answer Job's question in the negative you have greatly discounted the worth of life; you have taken from man the inspiration for his highest and holiest endeavors; you have substituted the audacity of despair for the buoyancy of aspiring hope; you have denied the instincts which have assured him that he was building for eternity; you have thrown away the key to the interpretation of his history; and you have robbed religious truth of one of its mightiest inspirations.

Persistence of Identity.

"Answer Job's question in the affirmative and you proclaim a faith which has always made for the progress of civilization. Answer 'yes' and you can understand the bravery of martyrs,, the patience of sufferers and the holiness of saints. The noblest characters of history, the statesmen of loftiest patriotism, and the philanthropists of abounding charities have been the creation of faith in immortality.

"Notwithstanding the prevailing skepticism of our day, earnest-minded and high-souled people will ever turn with anxious interest to those evidences which help to confirm these deep-seated hopes of the human heart.

"The persistence of personal identity argues in favor of it. In the far-off pagan age of Grecian history, Socrates, the philosopher, had come to believe in the persistence of personality. When his sorrowing friends gathered about him on the day of his death, he smiled upon them and said, 'You may bury me if you can catch me;' and then in human tenderness he said, 'Do not call this poor body Socrates, for when I have drunk the poison I shall leave you and go to the land of the blessed.'

"In a day when scepticism was a prevailing mental attitude in England Lord Tennyson gave utterance to his positive faith in the dominance of personality in these lines:

"'I think we are not wholly brain,
Not only cunning casts in clay;
Let science prove we are, and then,
What matters science unto men?
At least to me—I would not stay.'

Soul Transcends Death.

"In the varied changes which have come to us through the years, our abiding individuality has unified all the experiences and attainments which have come to us. When we think of how we have been able in our personal development to gather strength to marshal forces, and to devise and execute our plans, notwithstanding the constant processes of physical decay, somehow we feel assured that the soul, with such capacities for improvement, with such powers of acquisition, and with such reaches of attainment, will not be destroyed by death. If works are accounted great, the secret workman must be counted greater.

"The works of Michelangelo still survive. The soul of the artist must be greater than the works of his hands.

"'In Memoriam' is still regarded as a master argument for immortality. Surely it can not be more durable than the living soul of Tennyson, the man who gave it to the world. If thoughts live, the thinker ought to live.

Futility Without Faith.

"We must answer Job's question in the affirmative, for without a future life the compensations of this life are inadequate. The gross inequalities in conditions here confuse philosophers and stir reformers. It is difficult to see how the balances of God hang evenly if personal existence is to be measured by this life alone.

"Reason staggers before the proposition that this universe is righteous at the core if it must accept the thought that there is no vindication, no compensation in a future world for a man like Job, who was religious, honest, kind, industrious and patient, and yet has been denied earthly joys. If there be no future compensation then it would seem that Nero, abandoning himself to pleasure and to display of power gets more than Paul, deluded by a false faith and mocked by an empty hope.

"There is a robust faith which declares that the balances of God must hang evenly and to secure this another life will be required.

Man Must Live Again.

"Man must live again, for unrealized aspirations demand it. God has planted in the human soul a hunger for immortality. Surely that unconquerable aspiration must be something more than a fruitless hope. Man refuses to be tethered wholly to this earth in thought and desire because aspirations tells him of a better country. His aspirations for purity of heart and mastery of life are liens upon the immortal life.

"If there be no future for gifted souls like Arthur Hallam and Charles Emerson, in which they might realize their aspirations, and make use of their creative energy, then it is evident that human reason has a right to cry out against apparent injustice in the working out of human affairs.

"There are to be found in earnest lives great unrealized aspirations which are asking today for a larger sphere, for unhampered use of good energies, and for an extended period in which to work out personal destiny. Unrealized aspirations require that if a man die, he must live again."

G. W. U. WILL MARK VERGIL BIMILLENIAL

NOTABLES ARE INVITED

In recognition of the bimillennial celebration of the birth of the poet Vergil, the George Washington University will hold the fall convocation of its 110th academic year next Wednesday, with his excellency Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambasasdor, as the convocation orator.

The ceremonies will take place in the Memorial Continental Hall at 8:30 p. m. Degrees will be conferred upon 104 graduates of the university at that time.

Guests of honor will be the members of the Diplomatic Corps and Government officials, the high school teachers of classics and of romance languages of the Washington public schools, and members of the Classical Association of the District of Columbia. The public is invited to attend.

The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, D. D., canon of the Washington Cathedral, will offer the invocation and pronounce the benediction.

Promptly at 8:30 the academic procession will enter the hall, with the Italian Ambassador and the president of the university in the places of honor, and led by Prof. Elmer Louis Kayser, university marshal. Members of the board of trustees, administrative officers and faculty, and members of the graduating class will form the procession.

Candidates fo rdegrees will be presented by the provost of the university, Dr. William Allen Wilbur. President Cloyd Heck Marvin will confer the degrees and will deliver a brief charge to the graduates. He will then introduce the Italian Ambassador, who will give the address of the occasion.

The ceremonies will close with the pronouncing of the benediction by Canon Stokes.

Plague Hits Goldfish Minneapolis Wonders

Minneapolis, Oct. 12.—What's killing the gold fish?

Dealers, owners and city water and health officials are at a loss to know.

Nevertheless, pet fish have been dying by the hundreds, dealers report.

City and State health officials said they could see no reason why increased chloronation of city water would have a bad effect on fish. The chlorine in the water was increased in an effort to eliminate a swampy taste caused by a seasonal increase of microscopic matter.

PASTOR CHARTS WAY BACK TO PROSPERITY

Dr. Albert J. McCartney Says Laws of God Essential to Well-Being.

LAUDS HOOVER SPEECH

Speaking yesterday at the Church of the Covenant on the subject, "Our Unclaimed Heritage," the Rev. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney charted the way back to a real period of prosperity along the road directed by Christian standards," asserting that all true substantial prosperity is grounded on the laws of God.

"Any other kind of prosperity we do not want," he said.

In his opening remarks the minister paid his tribute to the address of President Hoover last Tuesday at Kings Mountain, N. C.

"With chosen sentences and compressed paragraphs he told the romance of the growth and development of our national wealth, enumerating things material, political, educational, cultural and spiritual, and summing it all up until our imaginations were baffled at the extent of our national heritage," he said.

Dr. McCartney made the point that the channels of trade and the pathways of commerce, the centers of business and industrial life, are the real heritage of the church and should leave the stamp and seal of Jesus Christ upon the policies of business, political and industrial life.

"An era of prosperity such as that through which we have passed, in its last stages, breeds indifference to the Ten Commandments and when men and women live in open defiance of those great old laws of God they begin to lose confidence in themselves and in one another," he declared. "They lose the power of courage that comes from the possession of a clear conscience and this element of distrust in them brings on a period of lack of general confidence with the resultant spirit of depression which broods over the business world of today like a heavy fog. The only way out to a real period of prosperity is along the road directed by those virtues for which Christ stands. All true substantial prosperity is grounded on the laws of God and any other kind we do not want."

$3,000 Brooch Is Lost Near Fifteenth Street

Thomas A. Duboise, of New York City, yesterday enlisted the aid of police in the search for a brooch which he said he lost about 1 a. m. in the vicinity of New York avenue and Fifteenth street.

The brooch, which is said to be of platinum set with approximately 70 daimonds, was declared to be worth $3,000.

PENNSYLVANIA G.O.P. HEAD BACKS PINCHOT

Party in 66 of 67 Counties Will Support Whole Ticket, He Claims.

RESIGNED LEADER IS HIT

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican State committee, in a statement tonight said the Republican county organizations in 66 of the 67 counties of the State were "standing steadfast for the whole Republican ticket."

"And this," he added, "despite the fact that a certain gentleman in Venango County resigned from a chairmanship which he never held."

Although Mr. Martin did not mention to whom he referred, it was taken to mean Marshall Phipps, whose resignation as "chairman of the Venango County Republican committee" was reported last night by Representatives of the Liberal party State committee.

Mr. Martin came to Philadelphia today to ask Auditor General Charles A. Waters to take charge of the campaign here, 47 of the 48 Republican ward leaders, including James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican city committee, having revolted against the candidacy of Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee. The ward leaders announced they would support John Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party candidate. Waters said he would announce his decision tomorrow.

Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, tonight gave out telegrams purporting to have been received from 66 of the 67 Republican county chairmen stating their organizations were supporting the entire Republican ticket. The mayor has announced that he would support the whole ticket, including Pinchot.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, said here today if public utilities operating in Pennsylvania have engaged in politics and were spending "money which must necessarily come from the rate payers," he favored a senatorial investigation.

Senator Borah, a Republican, said he had been in communication with Pennsylvania Republicans, who said the utilities had declared war on Gifford E. Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, and that W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, had resigned as Republican national committeeman "in order to oppose Pinchot."

"Vast sums are being used, it is said, by these companies to bring about Pinchot's defeat," said Borah. "I know only what was sent me in the way of information.

"I have been asked what interest I may have in investigating this situation in Pennsylvania. If these companies, which are engaged in interstate commerce, and whose expenses and expenditures are always a matter of public concern and within the jurisdiction of the National Government, are engaging in politics, in the sense that they are using money, which money must necessarily come from the rate payers, then it ought to be investigated and I shall do what I can to see that an investigation is had.

"Nothing could be more far-reaching in its demoralizing influence than for such utilities to engage in politics in that way.

"The public will be entitled to know just what they have been doing.

Mr. Pinchot, a former governor of Pennsylvania, is running for the office again.

FITZGERALD REPLIES TO ATTACK ON CODE

SENDS BARGER LETTER

Representative Roy G. Fitzgerald, chairman of the House committee on revision of laws, takes all responsibility for any errors that may appear in the new District of Columbia code which recently was released by the Government Printing Office.

Mr. Fitzgerald makes this statement in a letter to Harry S. Barger, local attorney, who with other lawyers some time ago criticized the new code. Mr. Barger and others declared that the new code was a revision instead of a codification.

Sections of Mr. Fitzgerald's letter follow:

"It is very difficult to mark definitely the line between codification and revision. The purpose was to make the code a compilation in scientific form and arrangement of the existing general and permanent Feedral statute laws in force in the District of Columbia. In so far as this course has been in any way deviated from, it is an error, and I am happy to have you call attention to every specific instance.

This code is but prima facie evidence of the law and an effort to get the existing laws without change into a convenient form for consultation and practical use. If I understand correctly your statement that the words "British statues," &c., as contained in the 1901 code are omitted from the present new code, I assume that it is because the new code undertakes to set forth with certainty all of the British statutes so in force and no longer leave them to doubt or conjecture or to th etoils of antiquarian research.

I do not have the 1901 code before me and am not quite sure about the provisions of Chapter 60, which you tell me have been deleted. If I understand it correctly, these provisions are covered by the general provisions of Title I of the Code. If any attempt, such as you say, has been made at revision it is an unconscious one. This code is the result of appeals to Congress by the people of the District of Columbia through members of its bench and bar. It was reported to the committee on revision of the laws of the House of Representatives as if vital necessity for the orderly administration of justice in the District.
